EFFORT TO SLAY FORMER KAISER SEEN IN ARREST

REFUSES TO EXPLAIN PURPOSE OF MISSION

Inquiries From All Parts of Europe Are Received After Incident.

Doorn, The Netherlands, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Mystery enshrouds an unidentified man, captured this afternoon with a pistol and a large dagger as he crouched in a tower of the castle of former Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany. The man stubbornly refuses to say who he is and explain the reasons why he sneaked into the former kaiser's castle heavily armed.

Police authorities learned the man, a German, had been loitering about the streets of Doorn since Saturday. Unseen by any one he had scaled the high wall which surrounds the castle. He was found in a tower near the study in which the former kaiser usually reads afternoons.

The significance of the arrest was enhanced by a strange occurrence last Sunday when a man, also unidentified, managed to slip into the imperial garden unnoticed by the gate guards.

Under Heavy Guard.

The man, pretending he was to see the former kaiser, was stopped in the castle's lobby by servants who surrendered him to police. This person made an insane impression and was released. He declared he would return to the former kaiser soon. It was not revealed whether in both cases it was the same person.

Efforts of the Doorn police have failed to clarify the intentions of the man captured today—whether his was the deed of a mentally deranged person, whether he was a burglar or whether he really planned an attempt on Wilhelm.

Meanwhile the intruder is being kept in the town hall under heavy police cover because there is no prison in Doorn. The investigation will be resumed early tomorrow morning.

Refuse to Answer Calls.

The Doorn Telephone Exchange was flooded with calls to the castle from anxious inquirers in all parts of Europe, especially Germany, but connections could in no case be established, as the castle refused to answer.

Berlin, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—"The suspected attempt is really suspicious," the Socialist Vorwaerts said today in commenting on the report that an attempt had been made on the life of the former Kaiser.

"It must either have been an oversalous patriot or a mentally deranged person, because the idea of an attempt on the life of the politically dead can only emanate from sick brains."

Wealthy Illinois Man Is Believed Kidnaped

Spring Valley, Ill., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Investigators from Chicago's "Secret Six" were reported searching today in Peoria, Ill., and Davenport, Iowa, for traces of Fred DeFillippi, 38, wealthy business man, believed held by kidnapers.

DeFillippi was said to have been last seen Friday night in the company of two men, one of them believed to have been Joseph Bruno of Davenport. Mrs. DeFillippi said her husband went with them in their automobile to negotiate for sale of a farm. Sheriff

Lynn S. Hornor Is Reported Dying

Heart Attack Grips House Member at Home in Clarksburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Dec. 12.—Representative Lynn S. Hornor (Democrat), of the Third West Virginia District, was in a critical condition at his home here today and hopes have practically been abandoned for his recovery.

Ill since November 20, of high blood pressure and heart affliction, Mr. Hornor suffered a relapse last Friday and has been in a critical condition since. Dr. Sidney Liller, a specialist, of Baltimore, was brought into consultation here yesterday and he pronounced the patient's condition so serious that the end might be expected at any time.

A strenuous campaign for reelection is believed to have undermined Mr. Hornor's residence. At one time he collapsed on a speaking platform at Clay Courthouse, but soon recovered and completed his campaign itinerary.

COURT ACTION BARES $1,500,000 ESTATE

Mrs. McCormick-Goodhart's Son Seeks to Take Over $84,000 of Assets.

Mrs. Henrietta Laura McCormick-Goodhart, who died at her home in Prince Georges County, Md., on November 20, left an estate valued at $1,500,000, it was disclosed in District Supreme Court yesterday when her son, Frederick H. McCormick-Goodhart, asked the court to grant him letters so that he could take possession of about $84,000 worth of assets his mother had here.

The National Metropolitan Bank is holding $39,000 in cash and about $25,000 in bonds, besides having in one of its lock boxes about $20,000 worth of jewelry.

Another son, Leander McCormick-Goodhart, an attache of the British Embassy, was named with his brother as an executor, but because he is a British citizen he could not legally serve.

The sons are named as the principal beneficiaries. There are a few minor bequests of jewelry and household effects, and after they are satisfied the remainder of the estate goes to the sons.

An agreement between Frederick McCormick-Goodhart and his wife, Gladys S. S. McCormick-Goodhart, by which she is given a life annuity of $11,000 was disclosed. The mother directed that if it should become necessary to purchase this annuity out of the estate, it should be taken from the share allotted the husband. Attorneys Richard H. Wilner and Douglas D. Hatch appeared for the executor.

Ultimatum Given Police of Chicago

Clean Up or Get Out, Says Cermak, to Pave Way for Legal Beer.

Chicago, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Mayor Anton J. Cermak ordered the police department today to "clean up or quit—get the gangsters or else get out."

The mayor called every one of the city's police captains to his office and personally delivered the order. Liquor resorts, gambling places and all hangouts for gangsters, he said, must go.

The chief reason for the drive against crime he gave as: "Chicago must clean up to be ready for legal beer."

Police Commissioner James P. Allman and Cook County's new State's attorney, Thomas J. Courtney, added a vigorous "aye" to Cermak's pronouncements. Allman said any police captain would be shifted or suspended for failure to clean up his district. Courtney already has "laid down the law" to police of suburban towns.

1932 ELECTION IS DISCOUNTED IN DRYS' PLEAS

Families Will Go Hungry if Beer Bill Passes, House Group Told.

REPORT THIS WEEK IS HOPE OF LEADERS

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Prohibitionists before the House ways and means committee yesterday brushed aside the recent national election as of no significance in the prohibition battle, insisted that prohibition had made national prosperity, described the Republican and Democratic national conventions as "mob conventions" to which members of Congress should not pay attention, and pleaded that if the man gets his beer his family will not get food and clothing and there'll be no toys for the children at Christmas.

They said they represented 10,000,000 organized women and spoke for the mothers and children of the country, attributed the World War to "beer soaked brains" of Europe, criticized appearance of brewers, grape and wine producers' representatives before the committee, and warmly applauded statements of one after another of their group, despite several warnings from Representative Henry T. Rainey (Democrat), of Illinois, presiding, that applause was forbidden and that they weren't helping their cause any by it.

Will Appear Again.

The drys are to have another day before the committee today, and tomorrow the committee expects to hear Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills. It is planned to set about drafting a measure modifying the Volstead act immediately thereafter and committee leaders are hopeful that the beer bill, carrying light wines as well, will be reported favorably to the House by the end of the week.

While the ways and means committee is listening to the last of the drys, a Senate judiciary subcommittee, headed by Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, will be meeting in executive session at the north end of the Capitol to consider the several prohibition repeal amendments which have been introduced in the Senate.

Appointment of the Blaine subcommittee to handle the antiprohibition measures was made yesterday and the chairman immediately called

Legislature Ignores Two Roosevelt Bills

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The Republican-controlled New York Legislature marked time tonight on two of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's proposals for its extraordinary session, adjourning after only 20 minutes work in the Senate and 8 in the Assembly.

There was no sign of a bill in either house to meet the recommendation of the Democratic governor and President-elect, for virtual State receivership for communities that may default in their financial obligations. Nor was there any mention from the floor of the so-called Smith bill, to reorganize the New York City government along lines suggested by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

HIGH COURT REFUSES RUTH JUDD'S APPEAL

Arizona Decree Says She Shall Hang Feb. 17; Slayer Calm on Getting News.

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The Arizona Supreme Court decreed today that Winnie Ruth Judd, pretty trunk murderess, must die February 17, 1933, for slaying two women friends, but her attorneys announced two new appeals would be made to save her from the gallows. The high State tribunal set the execution date after denying Mrs. Judd's appeal for a new trial.

Every attempt, through the various avenues open to them, will be exhausted to prevent Mrs. Judd being the second woman to die on the gallows in Arizona, her attorneys said.

The trial court sentenced her to death for the slaying of Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, two of her close friends, here October 16, 1931. Dismembered bodies of the victims were shipped in a trunk and suitcase to Los Angeles. Mrs. Judd, arrested in Los Angeles, was convicted February 8, 1932. The appeal to the supreme court automatically stayed execution.

Arthur C. Verge, of Los Angeles, one of her attorneys, said application for a rehearing before the Arizona Supreme Court will be filed immediately. In the event a hearing is denied, he stated, a writ of error will be filed with the United States Supreme Court.

There remained also the recourses of an appeal to the State board of pardons and parole or a sanity hearing before a Pinal County jury, provided it is requested by the warden of the State prison.

Florence, Ariz., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Winnie Ruth Judd was calm when word of the Arizona supreme court's affirmation of her murder conviction and death sentence was carried to her 'Clan Alpine' Reports Men Taken Off Schooner in Mid-Atlantic.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The crew of the schooner Frank Baxter abandoned their ship in mid-Atlantic today and were taken aboard the steamer Clan Alpine, the Radio Marine Corporation was advised by wireless. Both ships are of British registry.

The Frank Baxter was set afire after the men were taken off. Details of the schooner's plight and of the rescue were lacking in the brief message from the Clan Alpine's master received at the Tuckerton, N. J., station.

"Schooner Frank Baxter abandoned 20:06 Greenwich meridian time (8:06 p. m. Eastern standard time) in latitude 42:49 north, longitude 52:32 west," the message read. "All crew on steamer Clan Alpine. Fired vessel." The Frank Baxter left Cadiz November 2 for St. Johns, Newfoundland. The Clan Alpine arrived at Cork November 10 from Freemantle.

Amy Johnson Missing On Hop to Cameroons

Dualla, Cameroons, Africa, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Amy Johnson, British airwoman seeking a new Capt Town-to-England record, was unreported here tonight many hours after she was overdue from Benguella, Angola. Little fear for her safety was felt, since there are numerous places along the coast at which she could have landed if she encountered trouble with her plane or with the weather.

On the basis of her speed between Cape Town and Benguella, she should have arrived here this afternoon. She took off from Benguella at 4:30 a. m. (G. M. T.) (11:30 p. m. Sunday, Eastern standard time).

FURLOUGH HELD LIKELY TO PASS IN HOUSE TODAY

Apparent Futile Fight on It Will Be Led by LaGuardia.

WOOD SAYS ALL U. S. UNITS OVERMANNED

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

House leaders moved yesterday to make the payless furlough and other provisions of the economy act fixtures on the Treasury-Postoffice appropriations bill.

The House rules committee reported a rule to waive all points of order against continuing the provisions. The rule will come to a vote when the House convenes today. The vote is equivalent to a direct vote on the furlough.

Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, who yesterday launched the furlough opposition drive, will take the leadership in a determined, but apparently futile, fight to defeat it.

Most members of the "Federal employes' bloc," including Chairman James M. Mead, of the House Postoffice committee, acknowledge the uselessness of attempting to stop the furlough. They will content themselves with amendments to remedy a few economy act hardships.

Counteramendments.

Not so, Mr. LaGuardia. He will offer amendments too, if he finds he can't block reenactment of the economy act. But his first fight will be to divert the furlough.

"I will go just as far as the parliamentary situation will permit," he said.

The special rule was reported out yesterday after LaGuardia objected to a motion by Appropriations Chairman Joseph W. Byrns, which would have had the same effect. Previously Byrns had indicated there was not sufficient opposition to the furlough to make a rule necessary.

French Urges Back Pay.

Most of the attempts to amend the economy act provisions will be aimed at sections permitting 8 1-3 per cent deductions from employes making less than $1,000 a year.

Mead has an amendment which would do just this. LaGuardia's amendment would prevent deductions from workers earning less than $83.33 a month. Representative Burton L. French (Republican), Idaho, put in a bill to pay back to employes deductions already made from earnings of less than $1,000 annually. Mr. Mead will seek to get back pay for employes retired for age on July 10, who received no compensation the remaining 21 days of the month.

The furlough fight got off to a lively start yesterday, when LaGuardia clashed with Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), Indiana, original pay-cut sponsor, on the wisdom of continuing provisions of the economy act.

LaGuardia was aroused by Byrns' statement that the appropriations committee thought it better not to

Payment Is Urged In Mexican Deaths

Borah Proposes U. S. Give $30,000 to Nation as Act of Grace.

(Associated Press.)

Payment of $30,000 to Mexico as "an act of grace" for the killing of Emilio Cortez Rubio, relative of former President Rubio, and Manuel Gomez, near Ardmore, Okla., last year was proposed in a resolution yesterday by Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee.

Borah proposed that $15,000 be paid on account of each death "as an act of grace and without reference to the question of legal liability."

The two youths were killed on June 7, 1931, by two deputy sheriffs near Ardmore, Okla., as they were returning to Mexico from attending school in this country.

Party Will Liquidate War, Says Col. House

Asserts Roosevelt to Aim for Goal at Which G. O. P. Failed.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Declaring three Republican administrations "have failed to do so," Col. Edward M. House, in the current issue of Foreign Affairs, says the aim of the Roosevelt administration will be to "liquidate the war—so that world confidence will be restored, world trade freed of its shackles and the minds and energies of statesmen everywhere turned to new and constructive purposes."

The confidant of Woodrow Wilson, and one of President-elect Roosevelt's close advisers, says the next administration "should make the greatest possible effort to put the war debts once and for all on such a basis that they are no longer a political question."

Col. House expressed the "hope" that "without default or postponement of present installments, the individual debtor governments will in

Many Payment Foes Are Believed Won Over By Talk.

London, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The British government is expected to phrase a new war debt note to Washington at a cabinet meeting tomorrow.

It was not divulged tonight just what tone this new epistle will affect, but a hint as to its contents may be found in a speech made by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, at Birmingham, in which he said the British did not insist upon acceptance of their reservations to payment now, but would see that they were taken into account in forthcoming discussions.

Stanley Baldwin, acting head of the government in the absence of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, announced that general debate on war debts would be held in the House of Commons Wednesday.

Promises Free Discussion.

He promised full and free discussion of all phases of the question, with a comprehensive statement by Mr. Chamberlain. No special legislation, Mr. Baldwin explained, would be required to withdraw gold from the Bank of England to cover the $95,550,000 installment due Thursday.

Wednesday's debate may reach a white heat, although cabinet ministers expressed the wish that it be conducted with moderation and with an absence of statements likely to create ill feeling in America.

Paris, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Assailing the Hoover moratorium as the cause of all Europe's debt troubles, Premier Herriot told the Chamber of Deputies today that he proposes to pay, with reservations, the $20,000,000 due the United States next Thursday.

Silent on Reservations.

He would not say what reservations he had in mind, explaining that before doing so he wanted to consult the foreign affairs and finance committees of the Chamber. Presumably he plans to make the payment with the stipulation that it will be the last under the present debt system, pending negotiation of a new arrangement.

The two Chamber committees met tonight to hear the premier and Finance Minister Louis Germain-Martin on the subject of reservations, but the premier told them it would be advisable to wait until tomorrow, as he expected to hear from London about noon. The British cabinet will hold a meeting on the debt tomorrow morning.

The premier informed newspapermen that if unilateral reservations were necessary he would accept them, but in conformity with England. He added that if the chamber threw him out on this issue he would not form a new government.

In his speech at the chamber session, M. Herriot reminded the members that a new administration was coming to power in America. He read various declarations of President-elect Roosevelt, particularly emphasizing a statement of November 25 to the effect that debtors can always

42 ARMY AND NAVY PROMOTIONS MADE

Hoover Names 28 Captains, 9 Rear Admirals and Five Generals.

Acting upon the recommendation of a naval selecting board and the Secretary of War, President Hoover yesterday named nine new rear admirals and 28 captains of the Navy and one major general and four brigdier generals in the Army.

Brig. Gen. James F. McKinley was named the adjutant general of the Army for four years, with the rank of major general. He will succeed Maj. Gen. Charles H. Bridges, whose four-year tour of duty expires February 1.

Col. Edgar T. Conley, only recently named adjutant general of the Third Corps Area, was selected as assistant to the adjutant general with the rank of brigadier general, succeeding Brig. Gen. McKinley.

Col. Creed F. Cox, Field Artillery, was chosen as chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs with the rank of brigadier general for four years, commencing January 9.

Col. Albert E. Truby, Medical Corps, was promoted to brigadier general, assistant to the surgeon general, succeeding Brig. Gen. Edward Munson, who retires December 31.

RETURN OF PAYMENT WITH STRINGS SEEN

Rejection of British Fund, if Linked to New Accord, Is Believed Likely.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Activity in the debt negotiations shifted its axis yesterday to Europe, where Premier Herriot indicated his government would pay with "reservations," still to be revealed, and the British government pondered the swift reply of Secretary Stimson to the British offer of payment.

Meanwhile, officials of this Government confidentally prepared to await the notification from the Federal Reserve Bank of New York next Thursday that J. P. Morgan & Co., fiscal agents of Great Britain, had forwarded the bank a check to cover the British debt payment of $95,550,000. It is still possible to arrange an eleventh hour waiver on the payment of $30,000,000 principal of the British debt. No formal application has been received at the Treasury Department from Great Britain for such a remission. All indications point to the prompt and honorable payment of the British installment on the date and under the conditions of the Baldwin-Mellon debt funding agreement.

Nevertheless, officials of the Government were still puzzled at the maneuver of the British authorities

Britain Urges Mediation In Manchurian Dispute

Tokyo (Tuesday), Dec. 13 (A.P.).—The Associated Press learned from an official source today that Great Britain, through Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon at Geneva and Ambassador Sir Francis Oswald Lindley at Tokyo, has made formal representations to Japan, urging acceptance of a scheme to work out a solution of the Manchurian conflict through a commission of conciliation, including the United States and Russia.

The question was referred to today's cabinet session.

Plan Is Offered to Give All D. C. Cadets Equal Chance

Central High P.-T. A. Committee Reform Proposals Include Elimination of Stressing Perfection of One Company; No Discriminations.

Roundly scoring the "archaic" practices in vogue in the high school cadet organizations, Dr. John C. Eckhardt, chairman of the cadet activities board of the Central High Parent-Teacher Association, last night revealed a plan—indorsed by two Army officers who asked that their names be withheld—which he said would be a new deal for the average District youth who is a member of a cadet corps.

Eckhardt and his committee have presented their plans to the principals of the five high schools and to Dr. Stephan F. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of high schools. Although they submitted them two days before the last meeting of the Board of Principals, it was learned last night that the topic had not been brought up for discussion.

Under present cadet conditions, Eckhardt's committee charges, each school stresses the perfection of one company, giving that company the cream of the cadets with a view to making a bid for the coveted prize presented yearly at the cadet drill. So much stress is laid on one company in each school that hundreds of boys who make up the minor and less important companies compete each year with only one chance in several

ROBINSON URGES DRY STATES' PROTECTION

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Still doubtful whether the necessary three-fourths of the States would ratify unqualified repeal of the eighteenth amendment Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, told a national radio audience last night he regarded Federal protection of the dry States as essential in any resubmission proposal considered by the short session of Congress.

His statement which was part of an address outlining the Democratic objectives in legislation before March 4, came only a few hours after the Senate judiciary committee had appointed a special subcommittee of five members to consider all repeal and modification proposals.

Although Senator Robinson did not mention the Garner repeal proposal rejected by a margin of six votes in the House a week ago his discussion indicated that the Democratic organization in the Senate would give no consideration to that type of naked repeal resolution. The prospects for early resubmission were further complicated by the fact that Speaker Garner has declared without qualification that no Senate proposal different from his own would be allowed to come to a vote in the House this session. Unless there is some reconciliation of these conflicting programs in the House and Senate, repeal is doomed until the first Roosevelt Congress.

Sees Approval Doubtful.

"It is extremely doubtful in my judgment," Senator Robinson told his radio audience, "whether the States would approve repeal of the eighteenth amendment with no safeguards against the return of saloons or with no protection to the dry States against the gangsters who thrive by unlawful business in liquor. The form of the amendment and the language to be submitted are of primary importance. With this in mind, let all who would like to have a test of public opinion on the subject cooperate in efforts to have the annoying and difficult issue acted upon as promptly as the necessary deliberations and the proper dispatch of business may warrant."

Predicting that the revenues from the proposed beer tax probably would be considerably less than is promised by advocates of the measure now under consideration in the House ways and means committee, Senator Robinson suggested that enactment of a beer measure should follow an authoritative determination of intoxicating content. He offered no method for arriving at such a determination, but urged that the whole question be disposed of "as speedily as practicable, to the end that if a beer tax is not to be relied upon other methods of raising additional money may be resorted to."

Long-Term Issues Plan.

In his discussion of general taxation measures, Senator Robinson advanced the possibility of substituting Gov. Roosevelt's plan of long-term bond issues covering all public works, in lieu of a strict balance between revenues and expenditures. At another point in his discussion of the budget, he anticipated a considerable volume of relief and emergency expenditures above and beyond the President's 1934 budget of $4,218,000,000.

"There is much ground upon which to rest the conclusion that national expenditures for capital account may be passed on to the future in the form of bond issues insofar as this may be done without defeating the purpose to sustain the Government's credit," Senator Robinson said. "This proposal might be made to apply to some $300,000,000 or $400,000,000 in our necessary annual expenditures."

Urges Extreme Care.

But deferred payments, if accepted by Congress, should be followed with extreme care, he added.

"Since the Government debt is already very heavy and daily on the increase, any new legislation which seeks to pass on to the future the costs of present operations should be scrutinized with care lest in the long run it increase, rather than diminish, the difficulty of the problem pertaining to the deficit."

Next in importance to Federal finances and additional relief measures in the Democratic program, Senator Robinson said, is the urgent problem of agricultural rehabilitation. Without specifically indorsing the domestic allotment plan approved by Gov. Roosevelt, he described the improvement of the agricultural price structure as the first objective of his party's program. Secondly, he anticipated some emergency relief measures to be applied directly to the farm mortgage situation.

Loans Held By Companies.

"Any plan which deals with this subject which does not take into some account the large amount of loans outstanding held by insurance and private farm mortgage companies will prove incomplete, however beneficial it may be to the particular class of borrowers effected," he said.

Without indicating any prospective date for a special session of the Seventy-third Congress next year, Senator Robinson announced that whatever essential measures in the Democratic program could not be realized in the short session would be "vigorously pressed in the new Congress," in which the party will be in effective control in both Houses.

Peer Sees Britain Paying Installment

Harry Armstrong States Revision Is Wanted for World Benefit.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Sir Harry Gloster Armstrong, former British consul general in New York, said on his arrival today that he believes Great Britain will make payment of the $95,550,000 due Thursday on her war debts.

He said he had read the notes exchanged between Great Britain and the United States and though the answer of Secretary Stimson was "very good." The overtures and conditions in the British note, he said he believed, were more for a change in the debt set-up for the benefit of the rest of the world than for Great Britain herself.

Sir Harry was accompanied by Lady Armstrong. They will visit friends here for three weeks. The liner Britannic brought about $1,600,000 in gold bullion due on private debts in this country.

Financial Elections Activity Urged on Antisaloon Body

Would Gain Many More Supporters in Congress, Blanton Tells Banquet Closing Convention; "You'll Hear From Us," Replies Dr. Russell.

Finahcial aridity of the Antisaloon League in giving aid to senators and representatives in election campaigns was charged last night by Representative Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas, in an address at a banquet of the association at the Raleigh Hotel, which concluded its national convention here.

Representative Blanton, militant dry, unblushingly told the attendance of more than 1,000 he had not received a dollar of aid from the Antisaloon League, or any other dry organization in his recent battle for reelection on a dry ticket, or at any other time.

Making the observation that he was the only member of Congress present at the banquet, Representative Blanton told the association that "if you'll get behind these dry senators and representatives in their campaigns and do something for them you'll find your next banquet full of them."

Representative Blanton's subject was "Why Dry Congressmen Vote Wet?" He answered it with a laconic, "I don't know." He added, however, that many of the senators and representatives are turning against the prohibition law "for self-preservation and because it is the path of least resistance."

When Representative Blanton had finished Dr. Howard Russell, of Westerville, Ohio, founder of the Antisaloon League, declared, "You will hear from us in the future."

Dr. Russell told of the activities of the Lincoln Lee Chain in Ohio in contributing toward the cutting down of the antiprohibition vote.

Bishop Ernest G. Richardson, of Philadelphia, president of the Antisaloon League of America, who was presiding, declared that although the league hasn't much money it ought to get behind its friends. "There is too much truth in what Mr. Blanton has told us," he said.

An attack on radio companies and a recommendation they be investigated for their participation in the broadcasting of "liquor propaganda from France," was made by John Joy Morgan, editor of the Journal of the American Education Association.

Mr. Morgan asserted "There is not a single news interpreter on the radio today who is not wet, and that their subtle suggestions that the eighteenth amendment is wrong are having an influence on the entire country."

Too much meekness by dry workers in the past was decried by Mrs. Lon Hocker, president and founder of the Daughters of the American Constitution. She said that the time has now come for the dissemination of knowledge about the evils of alcohol. "We have not come this far to surrender," she said. "Let us go forward to certain victory."

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the last speaker, declared that if legislation repealing the dry law is enacted, that "the Frankenstein will destroy its creators in the next four years."

The board of directors of the league was still in session early today mapping out a sweeping campaign for the immediate future. Dr. A. J. Barton, of the Southern Baptist convention, told reporters that the program "would be specific, and one around which the whole country can rally."

One recommendation, it was learned, will be for the formation of an organization to be known as "Olympians," composed of young men and women pledged to abstinence from alcoholic beverage. Any person of high school or college age will be eligible.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, executive secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Mrs. Ella C. Boole, national president of the W. C. T. U., assured the rally yesterday afternoon that there is nothing to worry about and that the dry cause will triumph.

The efficacy of prayer in the fight against the wets was called to the attention of the league members by Mrs. Boole. "Never forget," she said, "that while we work we need to pray to God for help."

Dr. Wilson denounced the argument that the result of the presidential election was a verdict in favor of the wets. "Twelve million Americans," he pointed out, "stayed away from the polls, and millions of others went protestingly. But the nonvoters will rally in the next four years and there will be a dreadful reaction, and prohibition will be pedestaled in triumph."

Dr. Wilson's reference to the platforms of both parties was a repercussion from the discussion carried on throughout the day at a meeting of the directors, superintendents and workers of the league. Criticism of both parties and recommendations for the creation of a third and independent one were reported to have been made at this meeting.

Mrs. Boole announced a campaign program of the W. C. T. U. for the coming year. Its slogan, she said, will be "Advance instead of retreat." The program will include an educational campaign to promote voluntary total abstinence from alcoholic liquors as a beverage, enlistment of the younger generation in the warfare against alcohol, emphasis on the necessity for State cooperation in law enforcement, "with adequate punishment in fines and imprisonment for deliberate violation of the law."

Edward B. Dunford, attorney for the Antisaloon League, another speaker at the rally, declared that repeal of the eighteenth amendment would deliver the country to the liquor traffic with new facilities for exploiting the citizenship for private profit.

Fred B. Perkins, of Providence, R. I., a former assistant United States attorney of that State, directed an attack on Representative James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania, denouncing his proposal, made in a recent article, that the House of Representatives could circumvent the prohibition law by refusing to make an appropriation for its continued enforcement.

Mr. Perkins presented a legal argument containing evidence that nullification was rendered intellectually dead by the Haines-Webster and Lincoln-Douglas debates.

Thomas E. Gales, league superintendent of North Dakota, said "the spirit of triumph is going out from this convention."

The Rev. A. C. Miller, of Arkansas, member of the executive committee of the league, presided at the rally and the Rev. C. C. Rasmussen, of the Luther Place Memorial Church, offered the invocation.

One Slain, 4 Hurt By Young Gunmen

Near-Beer Saloon Is Scene of Robbery; Woman Among Wounded.

Detroit, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Four youthful gunmen who opened fire without warning with .45-caliber revolvers in a St. Clair Shores near-beer saloon late today killed one man, wounded the woman proprietor and three men customers and drove away with a small amount of money.

William Marshall, a creamery truck driver, was shot through the heart by one of the four as he stood at the bar. He died instantly. Amy Frazier, the proprietor, was slightly wounded as another began shooting, and George Rose, Detroit; Walter Webb, Detroit, and Emery Paul, Flint, Mich., fell as the other two unlimbered their guns. Physicians said they were not seriously injured.

Mildred Walker, a waitress, told police the four had been in the place for nearly an hour. There were eight other men customers, she said. Without warning one of he gunmen fired at Marshall, who stood next to him. In an instant the three others were shooting.

$15,000 and $20,000 Asked in Auto Crash

Two suits aggregating $35,000 were filed in District Supreme Court yesterday by John W. Walsh, and his wife, Elizabeth G. Walsh, of 5407 Kansas avenue northwest, with Peyton L. Hinkle, 2501 Upton street northwest, the defendant.

The Walshes charge that they were riding in a automobile on the Lee highway, near Warrenton, Va., when an automobile driven by Hinkle crashed into them. Mrs. Walsh asked for $20,000 damages and her husband wants $15,000. Attorneys A. Coulter Wells and William E. Carey filed the suits.

Social Service League Names Miss O'Brien Aid

Appointment of Miss Katherine L. O'Brien of Washington as a caseworker in the family department was announced last night by Miss Willie Greene Day, executive secretary of the Montgomery County Social Service League. Miss O'Brien will begin her new duties at once.

The new worker is a graduate of Wellesley College, where she was an instructor in psychology. She later was psychiatric social worker at the School for the Feebleminded of Massachusetts and was a caseworker in the Boston General Hospital.

Rome Suitcase Murder Solved by Confession

Rome, Dec. 13 (A.P.).—A 3-week-old mystery involving three suitcases containing the dismantled body of a woman was solved today with the confession, police said, of Cesare Servietti, 47, of Subiaco. The body was said by authorities to have been identified as that of Paulina Corietti, of Assisi, his sweetheart.

10,908,000 JOBLESS AT END OF OCTOBER

Labor Federation Reports Idleness Near Peak of Last August.

Unemployment approached the 1932 high during the month of October, the American Federation of Labor reported yesterday. Basing its estimate upon reports from affiliated trade unions throughout the country, the federation placed the unemployed at 10,908,000 at the end of October, against a peak of 11,460,000 at the end of August and 10,304,000 at the end of January this year. The figure for September was 10,880,000.

"Union reports for November show one encouraging fact," the report said. "Unemployment has increased less this year than in any November since we have kept records.

"Usually 1,000,000 persons in the country lose their jobs from October to November. This year it is to be hoped that efforts to keep men at work may prevent much of this winter lay-off."

The October index showed 24.1 per cent of all trade union members unemployed, against a high of 25.4 per cent in July this year.

Simultaneously with publication of the latest unemployment reports, Henry Woodhouse, who describes himself as an expert in economic surveys and planning, submitted to Vice President Curtis a bold scheme to put 11,930,000 persons back to work in 60 days. This he would accomplish by means of Federal loans up to $7,000,000,000 to States, counties and municipalities. All branches of business and industry would be urged to place additional employes on their pay rolls. This campaign, in addition to 5,000,000 employed on public works, would absorb all those now out of work.

"Do not hesitate to send me as long a list of questions as you wish me to answer," the letter to the Vice President said, in conclusion.

Roop Will Present Savings Estimate

Goes Before Committee as Opposition to Hoover's Plan Increases.

In the face of House and Senate outcroppings of opposition to the President's reorganization proposals, Budget Director J. Clawson Roop will be called on to give an estimate of savings under the plan at a meeting of the House expenditures committee, set for 10 a. m. tomorrow.

"We are going to give the President's message the consideration it deserves," said Representative John J. Cochran (Democrat), Missouri, chairman of the committee. He added, however:

"Just switching a man from under one boss to another doesn't save money."

The most sweeping opposition to the 58 proposed regroupings materialized in the Senate yesterday, where Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, introduced a resolution disapproving of the entire reorganization program.

American Federation of Labor opposition to transferring functions of the Employes Compensation Commission to the Labor Department and the Civil Service Commission was taken up in the House by Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, who introduced resolutions to block the move.

1932 ELECTION DISCOUNTED IN PROHIBITIONISTS' PLEAS

the meeting for this morning. Senator Blaine is one of the increasing army of antiprohibitionists and has said he will push the work of the subcommittee with all speed.

Guard Fund Cut Rejected.

Representative John C. Schafer (Republican), another Wisconsin wet, yesterday sought to deal prohibition enforcement a blow when he proposed to amend the Treasury-Postoffice appropriation bill to prohibit any funds given the Coast Guard being used for prohibition enforcement. He wanted the Guard's funds cut from $25,000,000 to $16,000,000. His proposal was voted down without a record vote as was a proposal by Representative John J. Boylan (Democrat), of New York, to cut the appropriation to $15,000,000.

Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), of Texas, who still is unreconstructed so far as prohibition is concerned, was one of the few men who participated in the show before the ways and means committee yesterday under the direction of Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, an elderly woman, who moved down to Florida to get into dry territory. Mrs. Peabody is chairman of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement, which she described as "an affiliation of nine great national organizations of women, aggregating more than 10,000,000 members." She said "There are 20,000,000 Protestant church women, and of that number one-half are in organized groups which have taken action in favor of the prohibition law."

"We are here to present our opposition to any increase of alcoholic content from one-half of 1 per cent as authorized by the Volstead act," Mrs. Peabody said. "This content was established by the brewers themselves 70 years ago, in 1862, in their defense against the soft drink trade. Let this decision stand.

Estimates Challenged.

"Ninety per cent of the drunkenness before prohibition was beer drunkenness. For this Government to secure an income by creating an appetite for alcohol, defined as 'a habit-making narcotic drug' would be infamous. This is the avowed object of the brewers. We challenge their estimates of revenue and assert that to insure such revenue would compel everybody, men, women and children, to drink several gallons weekly."

Mrs. Peabody quoted Dr. Howard A. Kelly, of Johns Hopkins Medical School as saying one-half of 1 per cent was the "safe" limit. Bringing up the end of her parade of witnesses, she told the committee that the recent elections were not a mandate against prohibition.

"The only mandate in force is in the supreme law, which all members of Congress are solemnly sworn to support and defend," she said. "Action in mob conventions is not the voice of the people, but of party machines. Such conventions have no power to dictate changes in the Constitution. The voice of women, one-half of the electorate, was not heard in those conventions, and free speech was denied men who asked to testify for the law. In the name of womanhood and the name of our God, we ask you to listen now to a mandate from mothers instead of from brewers and their supporters, wet politicians and self-interested capitalists."

Commission Criticized.

Representative Blanton criticized the Wickersham commission as composed of a majority fundamentally and notoriously wet. He said the brewers were spending hundreds of thousands of dollars to turn Congress and the country against prohibition.

It was Mrs. Leigh D. Colvin, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of New York, who dramatized her condemnation of beer by pulling articles of food, clothing and toys from a suitcase and saying that "if the man gets his beer his family will not get these." Mrs. Colvin said President-elect Roosevelt had, in a letter, absolved Democrats in Congress from heeding the party platform. When she was questioned she quoted a letter containing the statement that "I might say that Democratic senators and representatives are bound to vote in accordance with the views of their constituents regardless of their personal views."

Mrs. William L. Darby, of Washington, chairman of the department of legislation and law observance, National Council of Federated Church Women, said that "the eighteenth amendment is essential to the control of interstate liquor traffic which always defies every State law." Like others, Mrs. Darby protested against the proposal to submit prohibition repeal to special State conventions. The women drys want it handled by State Legislatures.

Is Declared Insidious.

Commander Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army, in a statement presented for her, also opposed modification or repeal, saying that "among the formidable foes of human weal there is nothing so insidious...so implacable, so utterly inexorable, as intoxicating drink."

Among others who testified were Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, of Washington; Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, of Chevy Chase, Md.; Miss Margaret Hamilton, secretary of the woman's law enforcement committee; Mrs. A. Haines Lippencott, of Camden, New Jersey chairman; Miss Vida Milholland, of New York; Mrs. F. J. Johnson, of Delaware, Ohio; Mrs. Eugene Levering, of Baltimore; Prof. Melton Conover, of Yale University; Representative Grant E. Mouser, jr. (Republican), of Ohio; Mrs. Anna Marden DeYo, of San Joaquin, Calif.; Mrs. Margaret C. Munns, of Evanston, Ill.; Mrs. Nellie Burger, of Springfield, Mo., and D. Leigh Colvin, of New York, representing the Prohibition party.

FARM LEADERS SEE JONES BILL PASSAGE

Success of Allotment Plan Given Impetus at All-Night Conference.

(Associated Press.)

A "decided turn" toward the voluntary domestic allotment plan at 11:30 o'clock last night convinced leaders of the National Farm Relief Conference that the Jones bill would be enacted at the short session of Congress.

As Chairman Jones, of the House agricultural committee, outlined the proposal on which he hopes to win concerted farm support before its introduction, the voluntary allotment plan would be stripped of State and county committees set up to regulate local acreages.

For the 1933 crop it would employ provisions of the old Norbeck-Rainey bill, under which producers would be issued redeemable Treasury certificates approximating the tariff on the domestic consumption percentage of the commodity served. For the following crop, certificates would be issued only when 70 per cent of the producers entered voluntary contracts to scale their acreage to supply and demand requirements, as stipulated by the Department of Agriculture. Only those who did enter into the contract and did not subsequently abrogate it would be included. The measure would be effective but for two years.

Committee Meets Today.

The House committee will meet today to receive the report of the farm leaders.

L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, said the conference would continue all night, if necessary, but that an agreement might be reached before morning.

Washington headquarters of two national groups interpreted Taber's indicated necessity of haste as suggesting measures to protect 1933 crops and therefore intimating that if the allotment plan could be cut down to a bare working structure, the more complicated scheme along with the equalization fee and export debenture might be held over for the Roosevelt administration.

The President-elect, who was described as leaning strongly toward the allotment idea, but desiring to await his inauguration before influencing measures for permanent rehabilitation of agriculture, was represented at the conference by Henry Morgenthau, jr., sometimes mentioned as his possible choice for Secretary of Agriculture.

Morgenthau previously had conferred with Chairman Jones of the House agricultural committee.

If substituted for the stabilization clause of the agricultural marketing act the allotment plan would require the Department of Agriculture to estimate the 1933 production of wheat, cotton and tobacco and the probable domestic consumption and fix percentages for home use and for export.

Would Free Islands.

The assembled leaders appointed committees to recommend legislation broadening farm credit, stabilizing monetary fluctuations and easing farm mortgage and tax burdens. They convened at the Capitol yesterday afternoon to present their views on Philippine independence to members of the Senate.

They asked for complete political and economic freedom within five years, during the last four of which duty-free tonnage of imports be reduced 25 per cent annually or the tariff stepped up 25 per cent each year on all imports.

Any conferences on trade relations were opposed, the group insisting that at the end of five years the islands be treated as foreign territory, whose vegetable oils and sugar competed with domestic animal fats and sugar. To prevent Philippine repudiation of independence they opposed provisions for a plebiscite at the end of five years. Otherwise they asked that the whole question be deferred until the next Congress.

PHILIPPINE BALLOT IS NEAR IN SENATE

(Associated Press.)

Driving toward a vote on Philippine independence, the Senate yesterday became involved in a heated argument over the length of the trial period before complete withdrawal of American sovereignty and deferred a decision on this point until today.

Indications pointed to a final vote on the Hawes-Cutting measure, granting full freedom to America's possessions in the Pacific, by Wednesday, if not late today.

Amendments approved yesterday included one by Senator Long (Democrat), Louisiana, reducing the bill's annual quota of duty-free cocoanut oil imports from the islands from 200,000 to 150,000 long tons, and one by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to restrict immigration from the Philippines to Hawaii on the basis of the latter's industrial needs.

Differ on Time Limit.

Senator Broussard, Louisiana's senior Democratic senator, proposed substituting the House provision to withdraw all American sovereignty in eight years instead of eighteen and repealing the clause providing for an island plebiscite on independence.

Senator King (Democrat), Utah, favored the shorter period and said so long as the islands were under the American flag "we have no moral right to impose upon them restrictions as to commodities coming into this country or as to immigration."

Chairman Bingham of the Territories committee explained the committee fixed the transition period at from 15 to 18 years because it would result in the "least harm to all and the most justice to the Filipinos themselves."

"We wanted to let the Filipinos experience some of the rigors of independence and some of its blessings and then vote whether they wanted complete independence," he said.

Hawes Sounds Warning.

Long's cocoanut oil amendment was the second he has had approved reducing duty-free import quotas from the islands. His first, adopted last week, reduced from 850,000 to 615,000 tons the amount of sugar which may be sent to the United States annually without tariff for the first 10 years.

Senator Hawes (Democrat), Missouri, warned that if these amendments are retained the Filipinos would not be able to live.

Opening debate yesterday, Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, described the pending measure as leaving the United States with its "flag half up and half down" in a region where its sovereignty might be jeopardized at any moment.

"It is absolutely unthinkable," he said, "to create a twilight zone of authority in the islands, where our flag will be half up and half down and where we can not control a possible menace. We might infinitely be better safe than sorry."

Vandenberg will offer a substitute for the bill to provide for adoption of a constitution in the islands at the end of the trial period instead of at the beginning, and the placing of tariffs against imports from them after five instead of ten years.

Senator Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, probably will bring up today his motion to reconsider the long amendment cutting down the sugar quotas.

FILIPINOS' FREEDOM URGED BY SCHURMAN

Speaker Says Japan Too Busy in China to Bother With Islands.

The time for granting complete independence to the Philippines has arrived, Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, president of the first Philippine independence commission and former United States Minister to China and Ambassador to Germany, last night told a distinguished audience at Catholic University.

Against the argument that Japan may seize the Philippines after the withdrawal of the United States, Dr. Schurman pointed out that "Inner Mongolia, China south of the great wall, and eastern Siberia, present to Japanese militarists and expansionists far greater attractions than the Philippines."

He also took issue with Secretary of War Hurley's contention, in testimony given before the House committee on insular affairs, that Philippine independence should be withheld until the Filipinos have achieved not only stable government, but also economic independence and more perfect social standards.

"I must reject the Hurley doctrine," Dr. Schurman said, adding that he preferred the doctrine of Elihu Root, "our greatest Secretary of War."

"I fall back on the Root doctrine which is historically the American doctrine; that a people with a Government capable of maintaining peace and order and fulfilling its obligations is entitled to independence if it wants it, especially when, as is the case with the Philippines, the people are so unanimously and enthusiastically behind their government and so emphatic and insistent in their demand for independence."

Dr. Schurman also stated that in his opinion the pending measures before Congress, giving independence to the Philippines, delay too long the relinquishment of American sovereignty over the islands.

$100,000 Damage Suit Is Filed Against Krenn

Chicago, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The praecipe of a suit for $100,000 damages was filed today against Edwin D. Krenn, realtor and heir to five-twelfths of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick's fortune, on behalf of Robert Somerville, art show owner.

Attorney George J. Drelske said the declaration of the suit would charge malicious prosecution in connection with an embezzlement charge against Somerville two years ago. Somerville was charged with misappropriating a check, allegedly delivered to him by Krenn for another firm.

PAYLESS FURLOUGH FOES FACE FUTILE HOUSE BATTLE TODAY

tamper too much with economy act provisions that already had called forth 250 individual decisions from the Comptroller General's Office.

The New York progressive charged the House was abandoning reasoning in attempting "to take the whole cost of the depression out of the hands of the working people." In reenacting provisions of the economy bill, Congress is destroying standards 50 years in the building, he said.

"It is not the fault of the Comptroller General that he has made so many unpopular decisions on the economy measure, because it was drawn up so quickly that I do not think even those who framed it understood it provisions," said LaGuardia.

Another Reduction in 1933.

"In the Postoffice appropriation bill we read about postal clerks and carriers and substitute clerks and carriers. We have grown-up men with families who have been substitutes for years and who are drawing checks for but $15 every two weeks. Out of their poor salaries they must keep up trucks and then suffer a deduction of 8 1-3 per cent because of the furlough plan. Bear in mind that these substitutes must report every day."

He added:

"As sure as we pass this bill we will have another reduction in Federal salaries next year. If the future of the country depends on the reduction of salaries, then the future of the country is indeed hopeless."

He said the economy act had "shot to pieces the morale of the Government worker."

Wood, a former chairman of the appropriations committee, and who more than two years ago made the first Federal pay-cut proposal, made a bitter retort to LaGuardia.

He said it was not the function of Congress "to legislate for a favored class when there are thousands walking the streets who have to pay their salaries."

"We have an army of 75,000 Federal employes in this town who devote more time to getting their salaries raised and in blocking attempts to decrease them than they do in performing the duties for which they were hired," Wood said.

"If Government employes were performing the work of those employed outside of the Government service, the functions of government could be carried on by two-thirds of the present working force."

Referring to efforts of Federal workers to raise their wage standards, he said:

"They had better accept and accept with good grace the reduction they now have, or they will come back not only begging for the same pay, but for a job."

"Departments Overmanned."

He said every department of Government is overmanned, and cited testimony of Postmaster General Brown that there are 5,000 employes in the Postoffice Department whose service could be dispensed with.

Later, Mead said that if this condition prevails, it is because of the present high postal rates. Once the rates are reduced to normal, he said, volume will return and the Postoffice Department will find itself undermanned.

Representative John J. Boylan (Democrat), New York; John W. McCormack (Democrat), Massachusetts, and others, are expected to line up behind LaGuardia today in the fight on the furlough. McCormack last night said he knew of no organized opposition to the revamped furlough plan, but if a fight was made, he would be in it.

A mass meeting, sponsored by the District Department of the American Federation of Government Employes, will be held tomorrow night in the Hamilton Hotel. Plans will be made to fight any threatened pay cut, and Representative Boylan will address the group. Friday night the District Federation of Federal Employes Unions will hold a protest meeting at the Raleigh Hotel.

WANDERWELL RITES 15 MILES OFF COAST

Rain, Fog and Wind Dampen Burial; Guy Is Still Held; No Charges Placed.

Long Beach, Calif., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The body of the slain Walter Wanderwell, traveler of the world's long trails, went to an ocean grave today under a brooding storm.

Cold rain fell, thick fog was wraith-like over the harbor, chill wind furrowed the waters as the little schooner yacht, on which the adventurer was mysteriously shot in the back just a week ago, put out to a sullen sea.

Aboard the ship a little band of wanderers, seeking after the glamour of strange and distant places, huddled about the widow, Aloha Wanderwell. Beside the yacht as it drifted ghost-like through the mist a water taxi carrying newspapermen chugged fretfully. Reporters were not permitted aboard the Carma, but police detectives were there "to see that all the witnesses come back."

Funeral Atmosphere.

The Carma was a funeral barge sailing in an atmosphere altogether funereal. At the start its motor protested. It wheezed and sputtered and refused to start. Finally a tug drew the Carma to the harbor's mouth. Gray sails went up, caught the strong wind. The water taxi dropped behind, and soon the Carma was one with the wet mist.

On shore the search for Wanderwell's slayer continued uncertainly. No formal murder complaint was issued against the jailed suspect, William Guy, foe of Wanderwell since a quarrel in South America, and authorities would not indicate when and if one was to be issued.

District Attorney Arrives.

District Attorney Buron Fitts suddenly took a hand in the investigation, arrived hurriedly from Los Angeles and announced that all witnesses and principals in the case would be summoned to his office for requestioning tomorrow.

"The so-called 'alibi witnesses' for Guy will be taken before the grand jury," said Capt. William Bright, of the sheriff's office. "Putting these witnesses under oath before the grand jury may clear up one of the mysteries surrounding Guy's movements and whereabouts at the time of the shooting last Monday night."

Edward de Larm, Glendale aviator, at whose home Guy lived, and De Larm's mechanic, Ralph Dunlap, were detained as material witnesses after they had been examined again as to their statements in behalf of Guy.

RUM BOAT'S SINKING PARTIALLY CLEARED

Ferry Proprietor Tells of Rescuing Three Men Leaving Yacht.

The mystery of the sinking of the 60-foot power boat off Dahlgren, Va., which was believed to have been loaded with liquor for holiday consumption in the Capital, was penetrated slightly last night when Capt. John Quincy Adams, a ferry proprietor, revealed that he had rescued three men who put out from the burning yacht in a dory.

The men, who refused to give their names or otherwise identify themselves were landed by Capt. Adams at Potomac Beach, Va., and they immediately boarded a bus bound for Washington.

Sailors at the Naval Proving Grounds at Dahlgren first saw the flames from the boat. Capt. G. L. Schuyler, commanding officer at the grounds, ordered a boat put out, equipped with fire extinguishers to aid the stricken boat.

When the sailors arrived at the spot near the Maryland shore, the fire was beyond control. The owners of the boat made no report of its loss to the customs service. Coast Guard officials and Army engineers were summoned to determine whether the boat sank in a region where it would be a menace to navigation.

The depth of the water near the spot where the boat disappeared is 86 feet.

Capt. Adams picked up the men, who had left the boat in the dory. He was making a crossing from Morgantown to Potomac Beach, Va., when he saw the boat in flames and went to the aid of the men.

Congress Veterans' Body to Ask Time

(Associated Press.)

The joint congressional committee on veterans' legislation virtually decided yesterday it would have to ask an extension of time beyond January 1 for its study of benefits to former service men.

The committee, after an all-day executive session with Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of veterans affairs, failed to reach a decision on its course of action—whether to formulate an immediate economy program or make a general review of all veterans' legislation. Gen. Hines spent the day explaining to the committee the problems it would face in taking either course.

CREEKMORE ADMITS 'EDUCATING' FARMER

Cotton Man Says Association Spends $1,000 Monthly for Publicity.

(United Press.)

E. F. Creekmore, vice president and general manager of the Government-financed American Cotton Cooperative Association, testified before a congressional committee yesterday that more than $1,000 a month was being spent by the organization on publicity "to keep its members in line."

Creekmore appeared before the House Shannon committee investigating Government competition with private enterprise. He said it had been necessary to "educate" the farmer into joining the cooperative movement.

Creekmore insisted that any losses of Government funds incurred by the association's purchases of cotton for stabilization purposes were justified by the resulting upholding of prices and the checking of price declines over two years.

Representative Rich (Republican), Pennsylvania, set the losses to stabilization at $63,000,000. Creekmore said the figure would amount to this if the association sold at current prices the cotton it carried over from the 1930-31 crop, as the result of an agreement with the Farm Board. However, he added that the Farm Board never had intended to hold his association responsible for any losses resulting from stabilization efforts.

With the Farm Board having "millions, yes, hundreds of millions," of dollars outstanding to be liquidated and with stabilization only an incident of its operations, Creekmore said he emphatically opposed its dissolution.

China and Russia Resume Their Diplomatic Relations

Reconciliation Seen Prompted by Sino-Japanese Peace Efforts and Renews Talk in Geneva of Soviet Recognition by America.

Geneva, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The reestablishment of normal diplomatic relations between China and Russia was announced here today and was hailed in international quarters as an event having a significant bearing on efforts to settle the Chinese-Japanese conflict.

In a statement accompanying announcement of the reconciliation, Maxim Litvinoff, Russian foreign commissar, expressed sympathy for the Chinese people and added that it was only when all states maintained relations with one another that "we shall be able to speak seriously of international cooperation for the cause of peace."

Mr. Litvinoff announced Russia's stand in a letter to Dr. W. W. Yen, China's spokesman before the League of Nations.

This reconciliation and more particularly Mr. Litvinoff's comments bring sharply into the spotlight the question of American-Soviet relations, which authorities in Geneva believe have recently tended toward "a normal status."

The return of the two great Asiatic powers to friendly associations generally is regarded here as a great diplomatic victory for China and one which will strengthen her position in the face of the Japanese policy in Manchuria.

Nevertheless, the Russian commissar, while emphasizing his government's friendly feelings toward China, asserted that the improvement in the relations of one country does not mean the straining of relations toward another.

This statement was interpreted as meaning that Russia does not aim at a change in relations between the Soviet government and Japan.

The cordial tone in which Mr. Litvinoff spoke of international peace efforts and of peace pacts and of "universally recognized and authoritative international organizations" inspired the belief among league authorities that the Soviet government now regards ideals of the League of Nations more warmly.

Dr. Yen joined the Russian in issuing the announcement by an exchange of letters.

There was a Soviet ambassador at Peking, then the Chinese capital, in 1924, under a treaty which established diplomatic realtions between the two countries for the first time since the Russian revolution. In 1927 factional differences in China led to a raid on the Soviet embassy and relations were severed.

DEATH RIDES SECOND COLD WAVE OF YEAR

Icy Winds From Northwest Send Mercury Down to 30 Below Zero.

(Associated Press.)

Icy winds from the Northwest carried winter's second cold snap over a wide section of the Nation last night, bearing death and suffering with it.

There was snow, sleet and rain in the New England States and California. In the vast section between the two coasts temperatures fell as low as 30 degrees below zero.

Traffic accidents caused many of the two-score deaths reported, but there were several instances of persons freezing to death.

Live stock died on the prairies of the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa and other States. The Midwest feared for its winter wheat, although protecting snow fell in several States.

The lowest official temperature was 37 degrees below zero at Elko, Nev., while Coalville, Utah, recorded an unofficial 40 below.

In Chicago the temperature hovered near zero, Illinois being one of the fifteen States where the mercury fell below that point.

Weather forecasts said the temperature would rise slowly today. From the Dakotas and Minnesota, the cold wave was reported moving southward. Transportation was returning to normal in Wyoming, which had a low of minus 13 at Cheyenne early yesterday. A light snow fell over Montana, bringing warmer weather. Temperatures in Colorado also were moderating.

Wisconsin had 6 inches of snow, a cold mark of 8 below at Superior, and slowly rising temperatures.

Slippery highways brought death to thirteen persons in Pennsylvania, nine in Southern California, and seven in the New England States. New York had its first snowfall of the season and many California children frolicked in snow for the first time in their lives.

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Inconsistencies in the weather in the South were being blotted out tonight as a cold wave spread from the Northwest, chasing the balmy temperatures along the Gulf and in the Midsouth.

Floods followed in the wake of abnormal temperatures and steady rains over the week-end in Mississippi, Alabama and west Georgia, where streams spread into the lowlands and covered some highways.

The subfreezing wave that enveloped Arkansas and north Louisiana moved Eastward, with low temperatures forecast for most of the area lying between the Mississippi River and the Atlantic Coastal Plains.

New Orleans, after enjoying several days with minimum readings in the sixties and near summer temperatures for maximums, prepared for a low of 38 tomorrow.

Fayetteville, Ark., Fire Causes $200,000 Loss

Fayetteville, Ark., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—A fire which threatened two blocks in the downtown business section was brought under control today after it had destroyed two three-story buildings and damaged a third structure. Estimates placed the loss at about $200,000.

Originating in the Boston Store, from an undetermined cause, the blaze destroyed that building, spread to the adjoining Red Cross drug store, razing it, and then leaped across the street to the Home Furnishing Store, where it was controlled. Firemen were handicapped by frozen water lines. The temperature was around 16 above.

EXTENSION OF RAIL PAY CUT PROPOSED

Joint Session Gets Plan of Operators on 10 Per Cent Temporary Slash.

Chicago, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Railroad executives proposed today an indefinite extension of the 10 per cent wage cut now in effect, and tossed fuel for conflict into the joint wage conference.

Spokesmen for the shop workers and trainmen expressed fear that such a plan would facilitate a reduction in the basic wage, which has remained unchanged during the last year, or that it would lead to a reduction greater than 10 per cent.

Under the agreement signed last winter, railway employes acceded to a temporary reduction of 10 per cent until next January 31. The present conference was called by the railroads to deal with a new agreement beyond that date.

W. F. Thiehoff, general manager of the Burlington Line, appeared before the 1,500 railway brotherhood men as chairman of the joint meeting this morning and asked that the January 31 deadline be forgotten. He suggested that the temporary 10 per cent cut be continued without definite termination, and that either side might give 30 days' notice of a desire to change the status, whereupon the question would be taken directly to the Federal Mediation Board instead of summoning another joint conference.

After a discussion of the proposition, the labor representatives, headed by Alexander F. Whitney as chairman, asked Thieoff to explain why the carriers needed the indefinite extension. Whitney already had publicly announced labor would unremittingly oppose any further wage cutting and "damage to labor's purchasing power." The 21 brotherhoods represented here authorized their negotiators only to consider extension of the 10 per cent cut and not to talk of any greater deduction.

At the afternoon session Thieoff described the carriers' position as "much worse" than a year ago.

Both freight and passenger traffic have fallen off, he said, and on August 31 last the carriers had 28.4 per cent less cash than a year ago while their loans and bills payable had advanced 42.2 per cent. They had borrowed more than $290,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and face heavy maturities in the next few years. Thieoff asserted that solvency of many insurance companies and savings banks depends upon prevention of railroad defaults.

Northern Baptists Back Mission Program Unity

Chicago, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Representatives of the Northern Baptist convention at a meeting here today adopted resolutions advocating a unified home mission program to consolidate activities and eliminate overlapping of functions.

Some 300 persons representing the American Baptist Home Missionary Society, Woman's American Baptist Home Missionary Society, American Baptist Publication Co., secretaries of the State Baptist conventions and the Baptist city missionary societies attended. Discussions of the national boards of the Northern convention regarding budgets for the next two years were continued.

The condemned woman was having a visit with her father and mother, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, of Darlington, Ind., when the warden and the matron entered. Her white-haired father stood, smiling, beside his wife and daughter.

"I have unpleasant news for you, Mrs. Judd," the warden said. "We have just received word that the supreme court has handed down its decision and has denied you a new trial."

Ruth Judd stood for a moment, staring fixedly at the warden. Then she said:

"Mr. Belbridge, I am no murderer. I fought for my life when she (Mrs. Agnes Leroi) came at me with the gun."

Then she threw her arms about her mother and kissed her.

Edna Ferber Ban Issued by Mexico

Author Is Barred Forever Because of Article Flaying Hotels.

Mexico City Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The department of immigration announced today that orders have been telegraphed to the frontier not to permit Edna Ferber, American writer, ever to reenter Mexico because of statements she made in an article in the July issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine.

"Miss Ferber was given every class of facilities when she came to Mexico last spring," said Rafael Perez Taylor, chief administration official of the department of interior. "Despite the fact that she was treated courteously and well, she wrote that Mexico was a dirty country of dogs and fleas, without good hotels or restaurants."

The hotel men's association called the immigration department's attention to the article and requested that punitive action be taken against Miss Ferber.

Miss Ferber visited Mexico last February with Marc Connelly, American dramatist, and his wife. She was received by former President Ortiz Rubio at the same time that Mr. and Mrs. Newton D. Baker and his wife were received at Chapultepec Castle.

Mississippi Labor Quiz Is Proposed in Senate

(Associated Press.)

Senate investigation of labor conditions on the Mississippi flood control project was asked yesterday by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York.

Immediate consideration of a resolution authorizing the inquiry by the Senate commerce committee was requested, but Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, objected and the proposal went to committee. Colored organizations have protested against conditions on the project.

Embezzler Hangs Self After Arrest

He Prefers Death to Going Home to Face Bank Theft of Million.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—After wandering over this country and Europe the last six months, Walter C. Davis, 50-year-old president of the City Savings & Loan Association, of Colorado Springs, Colo., chose death by suicide today rather than return to Colorado to face a $1,000,000 embezzlement charge.

Davis' wanderings came to an end yesterday when he was arrested in fashionable Gramercy Square by a detective who recognized him from a photograph published in a "wanted department" of a detective story magazine. Apparently resigned to a return home to face trial, Davis was placed in a cell to await the arrival of Colorado authorities.

He gave no hint of suicide and no particular watch was placed over him. Shortly after 3 a. m. a patrolman walked down the cell block aisle to investigate a disturbance in another cell. He saw Davis apparently standing in the door frame of his cell and ordered him back to his cot. When Davis did not move he investigated and found the man had hanged himself with his necktie.

Herbert C. Sparrow, Student at West Point, Chosen by Maryland Committee.

Baltimore, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—An athletic student preparing for the bar and a future Army officer will represent Maryland and the District of Columbia as nominees for the Rhodes scholarships from the Middle Atlantic States to the University of Oxford in England.

William Harrison Triplett, of Baltimore, a senior at the Johns Hopkins University, and Herbert C. Sparrow, of Washington, a cadet at the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., were nominated today by the Maryland committee.

The selections were made from a list of thirteen Maryland and District of Columbia students attending Eastern colleges and universities. The two will appear before the district committee at Philadelphia Wednesday with nominees from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and West Virginia for the four scholarships to be awarded.

Members of the Maryland examining committee were Dr. J. S. Ames, president of Johns Hopkins, chairman; E. H. Niles, of Baltimore; Felix M. Morley, of Washington, and Dr. B. M. Baker, jr., of Baltimore, with Dr. H. E. Yntema, of Johns Hopkins, as secretary.

Herbert C. Sparrow is the son of Mrs. Louise Kidder Sparrow, a sculptress, 1661 Crescent place northwest, and the late Capt. Herbert Sparrow, U. S. N.

J. L. O'Brian Quits Anti-Trust Office

Attorney Prosecuted Debs and Curbed Scope of Radio Corporation.

(United Press.)

President Hoover yesterday announced O'Brian's retirement as head of the antitrust division of the Department of Justice. In this post, O'Brian has kept a close watch on the expansion of the Nation's industrial structure.

His first appointment came from Theodore Roosevelt to fill the post of United States district attorney in western New York. He remained in office under President Taft and although a stanch Republican, served two years under President Wilson.

One of O'Brian's most notable victories came only a few weeks ago when he obtained a consent decree in the Federal court at Wilmington, Del., in his action against the Radio Corporation of America. He also opposed successfully proposed changes in the packers' consent decree, affecting the so-called unregulated business of the packers and prosecuted Eugene V. Debs.

in suddenly creating a condition to the debt payment.

The two most frequent hypotheses offered for the unexpected British note were that it was a sop for home consumption for those die-hards in the British Parliament, consistently opposed to payment, and the second theory was that the British note was sent after consultation with the French foreign office.

Dispatches from Paris yesterday announced that French Ambassador Claudel had warned his government against any last-minute efforts to change the American official program with regard to the French debt payment. The appropriateness of such a warning received ample justification in the repeated assurances from executive as well as legislative leaders here.

High authorities close to the President declared that the nub of the American thesis with regard to the last British note was contained in the third paragraph of the Stimson-Mills reply. This paragraph was as follows:

"I therefore assume that in paragraphs 5 and 6 of your note you are not proposing to make this payment otherwise than in accordance with the terms of the funding agreement, but that you are stating your views as to steps which your government may desire to propose subsequently after a reexamination of the entire problem."

Officials of the Treasury Department here are inclined to believe that any British debt payment that is received unencumbered, with specific reservations, will be accepted. If, however, the payments are accompanied by formal reservations from their respective countries regarding the use to which such sums are to be credited and specifically limiting their application to the new debt agreements to be drawn up at some future time, the payments in all probability will be returned. Such payments would be inconsistent with the terms of the debt-funding agreement by which all debt transactions are bound.

The Lithuanian government yesterday presented a formal request from Bronius Kasimir Balutis, the minister here, requesting revision of its $6,030,000 debt and postponement of the $92,000 interest thereon.

The note courteously declared:

"The Lithuanian government has the honor to request and ventures to hope that the Government of the United States will consent to examine and reconsider the question of Lithuanian indebtedness with a view to its more proper adjustment to the new financial conditions."

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

LADIES, the men took first honors this week in award of the prize for the best paragraph and Federal Diary feature story. But then next week, who knows but that the men will be runners-up? It's just anybody's race for the five-dollar merchandise prize, cashable with any Post advertiser of your preference in Washington.

H. G. Nichols.

The five-dollar merchandise prize for this week, the first award in this interesting and amusing contest, goes to H. G. Nichols, Airways Division draftsman, for his story about the 11-point buck Wesley Huntress, chief draftsman, Airways, shot up in Maine while shooting at a bunny.

That's the way it is. We go out hunting for rabbits and the first thing we know we fire, BANG, and we have a deer. Those who didn't read the story last Wednesday can profitably turn to it and enjoy the story.

It's little human equation stories that make life more livable. That's the why of the Federal Diary. A little fun, a little feature, sunshine with fewer clouds. Give the other 89,000 Federal employes a kick. Let them enjoy your funny story, a joke. It's all in a day's work and a big part of life.

Who'll be the winner next week? We wonder. You decide. But you can't decide unless you're entered in the contest and you can't be entered in the contest unless you whisper into Swarmi Fedd's pink ear what it's all about. And if you tried last week, the same effort may be the pushover this week. Remember, merchandise free at your favorite store. Step up, Mr. Nichols.

BRUSHING the loose crystal dust from the old glass doorknob, Swarmi Fedd squints, calls for quiet and proceeds:

Jimmie Horne, comptroller's office, Home Loan Bank. Jimmie, you're the undiluted hard-luck boy. Jimmie returned from Germany, found a job with the Postal. The next week they cut. Worked nights Washington Post mail room. ——— ———. Started in with Home Loan Bank. Mr. Hoover says "cut." Well, Jimmie, maybe hearings in Congress will last till Mr. Hoover gets out and then the "new deal," whatever that'll be.

"THERE'S a reason for everything," said Swarmi Fedd, who up to this point had taken no part in the conversation. "But I hope someone can account for the why of some doors being "left-handed" and some "right-handed" as they lead off the Commerce Building corridors.

First you see a door with the hinges on the right side, then the next door swings to the left. Sounds like the words to the old song, 'Ballin' the Jack," which in turn moves Old Swarmi to quote the creed of some who do get what the others don't—cash:

Jack, be nimble,
Jack, be slick,
Jack, get the "jack"
And do be quick.

But then back to those doors. We still like those doors, those swinging doors in the Postoffice Department Building. So much like the old family entrances on Sunday afternoon. And that suggests beer. Can we get it now, or must we hear Mr. Hoover's recommendations for another cut put through?

SWARMI FEDD took up his position near the Treasury, because, as he said, there's more money in it. Hardly had he finished his drink from the big fountain on the checkerboard terrace (Swarmi is like that) than he suddenly rememberd that often we have to go away from home to get the news.

"I see," said the old Swarmi, "by the handful of cards received in the mail that a lot of Washington folks are not in Washington. They're in Kansas City attending the annual convention of the American Vocational Association." Getting the old glass nestegg from his pocket, he proceeded to read:

Arthur E. Holder, Labor; E. R. Burton, director of employment (and what a job he must have); Dr. C. H. Lane, Federal Board for Vocational Education; James Arentson, supervisor of vocational education; W. T. Spanton, Federal agent of agricultural education; W. Harry King, Federal Board for Vocational Educatio ; E. W. Barnhart; H. B. Swanson, R. V. Billington, Perry W. Reeves, all Federal Board for Vocational Education; J. C. Wright, director, Federal Board for Vocational Education; Dorothy G. Ellis, assistant supervisor of home economics; John Holst, supervisor of Indian schools; Irving E. Reeves, vocational director, National Training School for Boys, and Edna Groves, supervisor of home economics, Indian Office, Washington.

"Don't trust him. He's a crook!"

Such is part of the kidding Frederic A. Newman, money order division, Postoffice Department, meets daily. No, Fred is no criminal. He has never even been arrested among those elite who get nabbed for bigamy and illegal parking. His home is in Auburn, N. Y., the town wherein is located one of the largest penitentiaries in the United States. Hence, his friends say he bears the appellation "The Prison City Kid" and subsequent good-natured fun.

The "Phooey" type magazines, running strongly to pictures of fair stenographers perched upon the knees of the boss, would find no inspiration in the office of Dr. Leon Truesdale, Population Statistics, Bureau of the Census. The doctor insists upon a male stenographer. Perhaps it is because gardening is his hobby and he feels he may need some one to help with the spring plowing.

Let's roll out the old clothes wringer and see what the crystal ball reveals:

"I'm in a rut," cries a stenographer of the Interior Department. "I'm in a wide, deep and much-traveled rut and I don't want to get out. I enjoy the security of my position, the assurance of the monthly pay checks, and I have no office worries from the time I cover my typewriter at 4:30 p. m. until 9 o'clock the following morning." Again, "I'm in a rut," she heralds. And we believe she means it. Who's she?

Quaint Philadelphia customs in that city of Brotherly Love. And of customs, let us say: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Woodcock, Customs Bureau, weekend visitors in Philly.

"I'll give over my old glass fly-swatter if they didn't turn on the electric fans to warm the Interior Building the first day the thermometer dropped below 32 degrees, by Mr. Fahrenheit's watch and chain," continued Mr. Swarmi, who still insists that after all has been said and done it's ready to be served.

Laila Cornish, Income Tax, knows her economics. Professors admit it, too.

Miss Louise Hill, secretary to W. S. Douglas, chief clerk, Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Navy Department, is "happy to be back," although she admits she had a pleasant visit in New Orleans.

Pvt. J. F. White, fireman, who recently received heroism recognition with a gold medal award, is in a hospital "for minor repairs."

WILLIAM D. TERRELL, chief, field operations division, Radio Commission, is leaving Washington for Cleveland, Ohio, to attend the Radio Distress Conference, Thursday, at the invitation of Capt. H. H. Wolf, U. S. Coast Guard commander, Lakes Division. It's for better coörganization and understanding among various Federal and commercial agencies.

Just so there wouldn't be any slip-up around the White House and War-State Department Building, sand was strewn on the frozen sidewalks after the recent snow. The Treasury turned a cold shoulder, however, and let it lay.

It's Dr. Julius Klein of the "Go-Get-'em-Pelicans Club." Recently the Assistant Commerce Secretary referred to the plight of the pelicans in a certain section which had lost their ability to fish for themselves since they had become accustomed for generations to feed from the nearby canning factories refuse. But when the canneries closed the pelicans, well, it was then necessary to mix some wild pelicans with them to show them the ropes on flying. "Doc," were they just kidding you when they sent you a life membership card and button from a Mid-west city, labeled "Go-Get-'em-Pelicans Club?"

It's "Old Shoes Man" to his friends. A. H. O. Rolls, Census Bureau, has been designated so by his friends because he offers to receive shoes which employes of his department wish to give to unfortunates. The shoes will be delivered to the Central Union Mission, or perhaps to "The Old Lady in the Shoe," for distribution.

Those sidearms strapped to the guards at the Commerce Building mentioned in the Federal Diary last week, it is suggested, may be in preparation for the army of canvassers and peddlers so prevalent nowatimes.

The Washington office of the Panama Canal Lodge, No. 6, of the American Federation of Federal Employes will be presented with its charter at the Lee House, Fifteenth and L streets northwest, Friday evening, by John Arthur Shaw, president of the federation, who will discuss the organization's policies and outline its legislative plans. Michael D. Schaefer, president of the District department, will tell of the work to be done by the federation's lodges in the District of Columbia. E. Claude Babcock, of the Civil Service Commission Lodge, will be a speaker. C. M. Mears is president of the Washington Panama Canal Lodge. Other officers are: Roger S. Erdman, first vice president; Ada L. Mason, second vice president; E. P. Springer, recording secretary; Maud W. Gilliman, financial secretary, and Vernal R. Brown, sergeant at arms. W. J. Fisher, James P. Pettit and D. J. Crowell are trustees.

A highlight of the entertainment will be vocal numbers by Miss Anne Wilson, who at present is a member of the Civic Opera Group, and recently appeared as soloist with the Marine Band Orchestra at the dedication of the War Memorial in the new Agriculture Department Building.

CADET REFORM PLAN OFFERED BY GROUP

This state of affairs is said to have been the cause of wholesale numbers of "slackers." A week ago an investigation proved that nearly 68 per cent of the boys above 14 years of age in the high schools do not belong to the cadets. Varsity athletic competition and physical exemption are the two legal reasons why a District boy, over 14, may be excused from cadet service. Most of the rookies are shunted into companies by themselves, with little or no chance of breaking into, and catching the stride of, older and more seasoned companies.

The committee has suggested the following reforms to high school authorities:

1. Each company in each high school should contain the same number of seniors, the same number of juniors, the same number of sophomores and the same number of freshmen.

2. Companies should be "sloped" from high to low, and contain a gradual succession of heights.

3. A company's ranks should not be closed to a new boy. Each company should be skeletonized only to that degree which will permit of its absorption of an equal number of new men in February and throughout the year.

4. February recruits should be divided equally between all the companies according to size and all recruits throughout the year should be equally divided according to size and year in high school.

5. Abolition of so-called February companies.

"We are cognizant of the fact that this may interfere with the snappiness of the drill, but we are sure that if this scheme should be brought publicly to the attention of all fair-minded citizens and parents, they would recognize its equity. At a time when so much stress is being laid on 'character education' we believe that parents and school officials can not afford to allow any degree of unfairness to continue."

One of the Army officers interested in the movement stated yesterday that the entire change over to the program recommended by the committee could be accomplished in one hour.

LIEUT. HABEL BURIED.

Wreath on Washington Statue Hits Debt Stand

Paris, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—A delegation of French war veterans, as a gesture of protest against the United States stand on a war-debt payments, placed a wreath on the statue of George Washington which stands opposite the United States Embassy. The wreath bore the inscription:

"To our American comrade. He would not have wanted this."

have a discussion with their creditors and that no action of Congress can limit the constitutional power of the President to continue these contacts and to pursue diplomatic exchanges with foreign governments.

"This, thus, is an invitation to conversations which ought to be free," the premier continued, "and, although President Hoover said that only Congress can pronounce itself, President Roosevelt has revindicated the right to negotiate."

The chamber was under heavy guard to prevent demonstrations. In the surrounding streets 460 arrests were made, most of the persons arrested being students. Almost all were released after producing their papers. Some 300 royalists Camelots du Roi were surrounded and kept in a nearby cafe.

Speech Is Applauded.

It was a straightfo ward, uncompromising speech he made in the Chamber of Deputies, and the members liked it, bursting into applause time and again. He talked for more than two hours and when the chamber adjourned until tomorrow afternoon, there was a general opinion that he had won over many of those who had opposed payment of the December instalment with or without reservations.

The debts holiday which President Hoover declared last year was the cause of all the troubles in which America's debtors are now involved, he said.

"That is my interpretation of the Hoover moratorium," he declared. "If the United States did not want to concern itself with the problem of reparations, Mr. Hoover should not have, become involved in it. He should have allowed Germany to ask for the moratorium provided for in the Young plan."

But, he insisted, America did become involved in the reparations issue when it allowed Charles G. Dawes and Owen D. Young to frame the reparations lans under which the German payments were carried out up to the time of the Lausanne conference a few months ago.

He went over the post-war relations between France and America in some detail, criticizing several phases of American foreign policy, beginning with the refusal of the American Congress to approve the League of Nations as sponsored by President Wilson.

"At this time, when there is talk of a link between debts and disarmament," he said, "I have the right to recall these things to the attention of all the American people who have lofty and just ideals."

Since the armistice, he said, misunderstandings have arisen between France and the United States, principally as a result of the fact that the pact of guarantee, which was arranged to complete the Versailles Treaty and was to have been signed by the United States and Great Britain "has become null and void."

American League Refusal.

"Moreover," he said, "we did not have the pleasure of receiving the United States into the League of Nations. I am telling you now about some of the early difficulties which influenced succeeding events."

There was a burst of applause as he said, after hesitating just long enough for dramatic effect:

"It was the intervention of President Hoover which destroyed everything and reopened everything.

"The Hoover moratorium cost France more than the £16,500,000 in cash actually involved. It cost us our title in the reparations.

"I would like to make understood abroad, especially in the United States, the disappointment of France which having listened to advice that she collaborate in international reconstruction, on the day when she asks even temporary benefit from her colloboration, is met by doctrines exactly contrary to those on which the appeal for her help was made."

MRS. E. S. HOBBS IS BURIED.

Funeral services were held yesterday at 3 o'clock for Mrs. Margaret Hobbs, prominent temperance worker and wife of Ernest S. Hobbs, statistical analyst for the Interstate Commerce Commission. She was buried in Cedar Hill Cemetery after the rites at Saffel's Chapel.

Mrs. Hobbs, who died Friday, was president of the Anna Gordon Chapter of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and a member of the Fifth Congregational Church. She had lived in Washington since 1908. Her survivors are her husband and her three children, Robert, Richard and Charlotte Hobbs.

Col. Ament, Escort in 1926 To Queen Marie, Is Dead

Heart Trouble Fatal to Medical Corps Officer at Army and Navy Club; Was Decorated by Three European Nations; Served as Relief Work Chief.

Col. Lynton Gray Ament, 48, of Washington and New York, died suddenly of heart disease early yesterday at the Army and Navy Club.

Born in Shelbyville, Tenn., December 31 1883, Col. Ament served overseas in the Medical Corps during the World War. He was in charge of an evacuation hospital in Paris, and later was named chairman of the American Children's Relief work in Roumania. He was decorated by the Roumanian, French and Czechoslovakian governments.

Following the war, Col. Ament was connected with the Public Health Service and the Veterans' Administrations. He gained prominence in 1926 when he accompanied Queen Marie of Roumania on her tour of the United States.

In 1927 he married Mrs. Edward Russell Thomas, widow of the multi-millionaire publisher of the New York Morning Telegraph, and the former Lucy Cotton, stage celebrity, whom he met on his tour with the Roumanian Queen. They spent their honeymoon in Roumania as the guests of Queen Marie. After the marriage Col. Ament assumed the general managership of the Telegraph.

Mrs. Ament obtained a divorce at Reno in May, 1930, on charges of lack of affection and indifference.

Private funeral services will be held for Col. Ament at the Tabler funeral home, 928 M street northwest, at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Burial with full military honors will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Department of Stars Gets Child's Santa Claus Letter

It is a strange destiny indeed that guides a letter addressed to the "Department of Stars, Washington, D. C.," to the Naval Observatory.

But it is a good destiny, for the letter was intended for Santa Claus, and the "Department of Stars" have resolved that it shall be Santa Claus as well.

The missive, from a little town in Tennessee, tells its own story. It reads:

"Dear Santa Claus, I am a little girl 6 years old and I want you to send me Xmas present hear is what I want. I Want me some new Dresses amd under shirts and bloomers. amd stockings amd a pair of slippers size 6. I amm poor amd need good warme cloes to wair So pleas semd me a tam ask others Santa Claus to send me a warm slip over. Will be lookin for a box for god will bless you for helping a little like me. O Santa pleas send me a Cry Doll. Will Close By Saying Dont forget me for I need me some good cloes. Good by Santa. Your little girl."

HOUSE MEMBER'S CHILDREN TO AID TOY FUND WITH SALE

are not in the least restricted to those children specially invited to attend. Any prospective purchaser, young or old, is more than welcome. It is hoped many of the visitors will bring toys to add to the growing pile of toys assembled for The Post Toy and Doll Fund to aid it to carry out its aim: "No needy child in Washington without a Merry Christmas this year."

The idea of the sale originated with the Kelly children. With their customary vim and vigor they quickly crystallized it into action. A big poster in the yard tells all about the sale. It is certain that 3730 McKinley street northwest is going to be one of the interesting places in Washington on Saturday. When Ding-How of Hydegreee, mascot of The Junior Post and chief Santa Claus Aid, was told about the sale he sniffed reflectively and barked: "Yes, I'll be happy to attend that function in person. I always liked candy, cookies and even popcorn." Then Ding-How pulled out a crisp new $5 bill from the pocket of his plaid overcoat and said: "Look how I was matched today. Ming, a member of our Pekinese family, gave it to me for The Post Toy and Doll Fund. Ming is a great friend of mine and such a good fellow. He lives with the Gracious Lady and Little Laughing Waters and he never forgets the needy and distressed."

A young visitor came to the Santa Claus headquarters in The Post Building yesterday. He is only 4 and sometimes his hands are cold and there is no breakfast in the little room he shares with his mother and 8-year-old sister.

But Charlie has a simple faith in Santa Claus that not even cold or a rather empty stomach can shake, at least not around Christmas time. He knows good old Santa will bring him an airplane just like the gorgeous one in a store window.

Sister, wise beyond her years with the early knowledge of poverty, has faith also. But she thought it better to apply to Santa Claus through The Post Toy and Doll Fund. The little ones brought their letter in themselves. Sister wants a doll, of course, but then girls are like that.

Thousands of trusting girls and boys are looking to The Post Toy and Doll Fund to fill their Christmas stockings.

That their faith is not misplaced, is proven by the fact that about 3,000 toys and dolls have already been sent in to the Fund, which will be distributed in such manner as to do a full part in keeping the ugly wolf of empty stockings away from the doorways of Washington children this year and to insure gifts to the boys and girls whose parents are out of work or sick this yuletide.

The parade of the wooden toys, the stuffed bears, other animals and the doll show, doll furniture, iron toys, games and books is one which would make Old Santa clap his hands with joy and laugh in the fashion depicted in all the Santa Claus poems.

MODER CASE POINT SCORED BY COUNSEL

Lower Court Is Ordered to Show Why Mandamus Should Not Issue.

(Associated Press.)

Adolph R. Moder and others convicted in the District of Columbia Supreme Court of unlawful manufacture and sale of peach brandy, were yesterday granted permission by the United States Supreme Court to proceed without cost to them in filing proceedings seeking a mandamus to compel the District Court of Appeals to act on their motion for a rehearing and to prohibit that court from dismissing their appeal. An order was issued to the lower curt to show by January 9 why the mandamus should not issue.

Convicted in Rum Case.

Moder and three others were convicted in the District of Columbia supreme court of violating the national prohibition act. They appealed and applied for bail. The trial judge refused to act on bail until the bill of exceptions was presented. The men then applied to the District Court of Appeals for a mandamus to compel the District Supreme Court to grant bail. It was pointed out that the men were without money and claimed it was impossible for that reason for them to prepare the bill of exceptions. Counsel for the men asserted he was informed that United States Attorney Rover would prepare bill of exceptions under these circumstances, and asserted the district attorney refused to permit him to see it.

Refused Mandamus.

The District Court of Appeals refused to grant mandamus, and counsel for the men then applied to Chief Justice Hughes of the United States Supreme Court last summer for assistance. Before the Chief Justice could act a representative of Rover's office presented a bill of exceptions, and the Chief Justice thereupon refused to take any action, referring counsel to the District courts. Counsel for the men then appeared before Justice Letts, charging Rover's office had deliberately falsified the bill of exceptions, and renewed the application for bail, which was granted to Moder's associates but refused him. Last July counsel for the men asked leave to have his clients permitted to continue the case without court charges on the grounds they were paupers, and charged Justice Letts, United States Attorney Rover and one of the latter's assistants were deliberately obstructing justice and with falsifying the records. Last August Court of Appeals granted leave to proceed in forma pauperis, refused to reduce bail for three and held there had been no abuse of discretion in refusing bail to Moder, asserting he was a fugitive from justice and was under indictment on another charge on which he had not been tried. Counsel for Moder then last August applied to Court of Appeals for a rehearing, asserting he could prove there had been material falsification in preparing the bill of exceptions and that much material matter had been omitted. Court made no ruling on that motion and in November last counsel for the men applied for an extension of time to file brief on merits. Expressing fear the appeal would be dismissed before the controversy over the bill of exceptions was concluded, counsel for the men asked the United States Supreme Court for permission to file a petition for a writ of mandamus to compel the District Court of Appeals to act on the motion for a rehearing and to prevent that court from dismissing the appeal.

ALEXANDRIA ROTARY HAS FIFTH BIRTHDAY

Kenton Kilmer, Son of Poet, to Be Chief Speaker at Celebration.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Alexandria Rotary Club will celebrate its fifth birthday at a luncheon at the George Mason Hotel today. Since its organization the club has had as presidents C. S. Taylor Burke, S. Nelson Gray, William S. Snow, Fred C. Goodnow and Francis H. Fannon. The feature of the meeting will be the chief speaker, Kenton Kilmer, son of Joyce Kilmer, war poet, killed in France.

Rotary Club members have made arrangements with the Kiwanis Club for a joint performance, to be given between January 20 and February 1, for the benefit of the clubs' charity funds. Frank Steele, local dramatic director, will be in charge of the performance.

The outstanding work of the Rotary Club has been the initiation of a movement to establish a children's home and day nursery in Alexandria. Opening in a rented house on Prince street, public interest was aroused. The home and nursery has grown to such an extent that it has acquired a building on Duke street, formerly the home of Leo P. Harlow. The day nursery has proven a boon to mothers who are compelled to work.

William A. Smoot, chairman of the Alexandria United Charities, yesterday issued an appeal for funds to carry on relief work. Donations should be sent to Elliott F. Hoffman, chairman, or Thomas Chauncey, treasurer.

Oriental Lodge, No. 6, Knights of Pythias, will hold a class initiation tonight at 7:30 o'clock for fifteen candidates. They will be known as "The Pete Ford Class," in honor of the grand chancellor of Virginia. In addition to Mr. Ford, other distinguished guests expected are Col. George C. Cabell, of Norfolk, past supreme chancellor; Reno S. Harp, of Frederick, Md., supreme vice chancellor; Edward J. Newcomb, grand chancellor of the District of Columbia.

Martha Washington Temple, No. 11, Pythian Sisters, will also hold a class initiation tonight in the Virginia Public Service auditorium. This class will be known as the Bertha Laws Class. The degree work will be conferred by the drill team of Friendship Temple, Pythian Sisters, of Washington, D. C. A joint program of entertainment will follow the two meetings in the Virginia Public Service auditorium.

Thomas W. McHugh, past president of the Potomac Truck and Engine Company, No. 2, Alexandria Fire Department, will be honored by his brother firemen at a meeting at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, when Richard A. Roseberry will present him with a gold-rolled past president's cap shield. Mr. McHugh is one of the charter members. A number of distinguished guests has been invited to attend the meeting.

The Rev. James Mitchell, of the Episcopal Theological Seminary, will speak at 7 o'clock tonight in the George Mason Hotel, to the Alexandria Business and Professional Women's Club. A Christmas program will be the feature.

LIQUIDATION OF WAR URGED BY COL. HOUSE

Hoover, said he favored such negotiations through the regular diplomatic channels.

"At Lausanne," Col. House continues in his article, "the allied governments mad a sincere effort to forget war hatreds and took a long step toward disposing of the reparations question, once and for all. They were able to do this because their peoples had come to realize that the black reparations cloud hanging over Europe carried less promise of fruitful rains than the threat of catastrophic new storms. In the same manner, for similar reasons, the American people must be ready, as practical business men, for reasons of cold common sense, to do what is necessary in order to dispose finally of the war debts as a political question."

In this first discussion of the Roosevelt foreign affairs policy, Col. House links together war debts, tariffs and disarmaments and says the President-elect's attitude will be a "realistic spirit of international cooperation," while that of the Republican administrations was "parochial."

"Indeed, it is no exaggeration to say," adds the colonel, "that the policies of the Harding, Coolidge and Hoover administrations—inspired by the selfish and uncooperative attitude which the Republican party adopted because of its implacable hatred of Woodrow Wilson—must be held in large measure responsible for the continuation of war psychology, the frustration of all attempts at thoroughgoing economic rehabilitation, and the sense of insecurity now prevailing in every quarter of the world."

Because of the Republican tariff policy, Col. House says "a war of strangulation is in progress between almost every country and every other country."

As he views it, the tariff problem facing Roosevelt is "how to enable foreigners to earn enough dollars here to pay their debts and take our exports, without the necessity of foreign loans. According to present schedules, foreign countries must pay us something like $1,200,000,000 a year on what they have already borrowed.

Picture of Prosperity.

"We must permit them to pay without borrowing more. They can pay us partly in goods, partly in services, partly in gold. We must adjust our tariff policy so that our foreign lending will be safe while at the same time our domestic undertakings are adequately protected against undue competition. Many schedules must be reduced moderately and some sharply.

"I am not proposing free trade or even a tariff for revenue only, but rather the 'competitive tariff for revenue' called for in the Democratic platform. If foreign goods are admitted on a competitive basis, our farmers will regain their farm markets."

As a final word, Col. House says "in the same way that the American people have got to understand that the nations of the world are 'all in one boat,' the peoples of other lands will have to realize that pictures of fabulous and everlasting prosperity in the United States were unreal and misleading."

Wife Veteran Wounded Gets $750 Court Award

Danville, Va., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Lois Setliff was awarded a jury verdict of $750 in Corporation Court today, the money to be paid for support of herself and three children out of funds which have been paid Setliff by the Government for disability incurred in Army service.

Setliff is under sentence of four years in the State Penitentiary, having been convicted of feloniously wounding his wife.

Setliff, it was charged, fired an Army automatic at his estranged wife several months ago, the bullet grazing her forehead and inflicting a slight wound.

SECOND BALL TRIAL SET FOR JANUARY 3

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy at the opening of the December term of the circuit court set Tuesday, January 3 as the date for the second trial of former County Treasurer E. Wade Ball in connection with alleged shortages of more than $500,000.

Of the three indictments pending against Ball, which were returned by the grand jury at the October term, Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas selected the first, which charges Ball with failure to turn over to William H. Duncan, then county clerk, a sum totaling $515,959 at the time of his resignation as treasurer.

Others Are Continued.

Mr. Douglas said action on the two other indictments, one charging Ball with misappropriation of $117,300 during the last half of 1931 and the other with misappropriation of $75,000 during 1930, will be continued until the next term of court. The amounts involved in these two indictments are included in the total charged, in the indictment upon which Ball will be tried.

Frank L. Ball, counsel for his brother, requested the Commonwealth's attorney to furnish a bill of particulars in which he asks the following:

1. If any charges were made by the State auditor or any credits allowed E. Wade Ball as treasurer after February 24, 1932, to disclose in what manner public funds were misused and also to whom such public funds were paid; and, 2, to require the Commonwealth to state whether it is its contention that Ball stole or appropriated any public funds or that they were converted to his own use or paid out for any other than public purposes.

Arguments Next Monday.

The court set next Monday for arguments on the bill of particulars and the request of Mr. Douglas for a jury from another jurisdiction to hear the case.

The cases pending against former County Clerk William H. Duncan and F. J. Hallock, former clerk to the Arlington County School Board, were continued until the February term.

The case of Duncan was continued to await the result of an appeal of his conviction on one of the indictments against him for alleged misuse of public funds. Duncan is under sentence of three years in connection with an alleged shortage of State funds.

Indictments returned by the grand jury follow

Harry Valentine, 19, and George Poore pleaded guilty to the charge of housebreaking and after consideration by Judge McCarthy, sentence was suspended.

Arlington Welfare Campaign Planned

Committee Named to Start Drive Jan. 16 for Relief Funds.

Faced with urgent need of funds to carry on its work, the Arlington County Welfare Board met last night with representatives of the chamber of commerce, service clubs, civic federation, woman's clubs and civic organizations. Plans were perfected to start a county-wide drive for funds.

After considerable discussion in which many advocated a community chest for Arlington County, E. J. Skidmore, chairman of the board, announced the following committee for the drive, which is to start January 16: Gilbert Hall, chairman; Mrs. Catherine M. Rogers, Walter U. Varney, E. J. Skidmore, Mrs. H. W. Baldwin, Mrs. C. E. Miles and J. G. Pepper.

Chairman Skidmore, in outlining work accomplished last year by the welfare board, when it was aided by funds from the District of Columbia Community Chest, contributed by residents of the county, said that a total of $13,000 was expended. Of this amount he stated that $4,000 was used for unemployment. At the present time the board is spending about $1,000 a month and could use more were it available. He stated that $5,000 was on hand.

Fairfax Fireman Is Hurt As Blaze Damages Home

Fire caused by an overheated stove destroyed the interior of the home of Mrs. Frances A. Nunez, of the Lee highway between Fairfax and Legato, Va., yesterday afternoon. Lewis M. Coyner, a member of the Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department, was badly cut on the hand while on the roof.

The fire had made much headway before it was discovered. The volunteer fire departments of Fairfax and Vienna were called and after fighting the stubborn flames for more than an hour confined the fire to the interior walls.

L. Hansen, of Tremonton, Utah. The child since his discovery has been placed in an orphanage.

FAIRFAX TO CONDUCT DRIVE ON DIPHTHERIA

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 166.

A diphtheria prevention campaign will be conducted in Fairfax County, Va., from Thursday to February 1, it was decided at the quarterly meeting of the Fairfax County Medical Society. Members of the society will work with the County Health Unit and they are inviting the cooperation of all civic associations, Parent-Teacher Associations and clubs, so as to reach every child in the county.

The doctors decided to make a uniform charge for giving the vaccine and where private funds are not available the doctors will donate the vaccine.

The doctors plan first to reach the school children. They ask that all children over 8 months old be vaccinated. They point out that in Fairfax County practically all deaths from diphtheria have been in the cases of children under 6 years old.

The doctors propose to give each child a test free which will reveal all who are not immunized by the first dose. They point out that this vaccination, if done properly, is a guarantee of immunity from diphtheria for life. They emphasize the fact that there is no case on record where absolute immunization has not been secured where the second dose was given.

The Fairfax County Pomona Grange voted in favor of making diphtheria immunization compulsory under the State law in the same manner as the smallpox vaccination is required for school children.

The Parent-Teacher Association of Falls Church, Va., will meet today at 2:30 o'clock at the Madison School. George A. Hastings, of the extension service of the White House Conference on Child Welfare, will speak.

Health Menace Seen In Food Restrictions

Restriction of foodstuffs to the minimum required for actual existence as is being done now because of the unusually hard strain on social service funds may result in health and social problems that can not be foreseen now, Miss Willie Greene Day, executive secretary of the Montgomery County Social Service League, told a meeting of the Woman's Community Club of Kensington, Md., yesterday in the Masonic Temple.

Mrs. B. Peyton Whalen, president of the Montgomery County Federation of Women's Clubs, outlined the plans of the clubwomen, and Mrs. H. H. Milburn led in the singing of Christmas carols.

Dawsonville Robbery Confessed by 3 Men

Following questioning by Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley, three colored men arrested by Montgomery County Police have confessed that they were the men who held up and robbed the store of Oscar Stang, at Dawsonville, Md., November 22. The men escaped with about $40.

Earl Wims, colored, admitted that he sat in the car while George E. Wims and William G. Campbell entered the store and held up Stang at the point of a pistol. The men will be arraigned before Police Judge Ronald A. DeLashmutt in Rockville police court.

3 of 7 Fleeing Convicts Captured; 2 Are Shot

Parchman, Miss., Dec. 12. (A.P.).—Three of seven convicts, who escaped from the Parchman prison farm today, were captured near Inverness this afternoon after Deputy Sheriff W. H. Pratt had shot two of them. The wounded men were Woody and J. P. Conner, brothers, each serving a fifteen-year sentence. The other captured convict was Henry Bowen, serving five years for robbery.

The break occurred early this morning. Investigation disclosed that visitors apparently had smuggled a brace and bit into the prison, which the convicts used to cut a hole in a door.

Hyattsville Town Council Dismisses Its Fire Chief

By a vote of 5 to 4, the Hyattsville town council last night adopted a resolution dismissing Noble F. Rushe as chief of the volunteer fire department. Following this action, the position was offered to J. Wells Fainter, assistant chief of the department, who declined, but finally agreed to take charge of the apparatus pending the selection of a new chief.

The charges against Rushe as set forth in the resolution were: That he presided at a fire department meeting when it was voted to ignore the council's orders; that he had received funds from the county association in violation of the council's ordinance; that he had dismantled fire apparatus and had taken it out of town without permission; that he had contracted debts against the town and maintained the department as a closed corporation, to which only those were admitted who did his bidding.

The proposal to dismiss Rushe evoked an instant storm of dissent from four councilmen who have always supported the fire chief. When a new fire ordinance was proposed last spring, giving the council power to appoint the chief, the same four councilmen opposed it. The vote of the mayor, L. L. Gray, was required to settle the question at that time, as was also the case on the dismissal vote last night.

Mother Saves One Child As 2 Others Die in Fire

Harlan, Ky., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Neighbors' hands held a frantic mother today to prevent her rushing back into her flaming home to save two children. They burned to death. The mother had succeeded in saving another child.

The dead are Jack Jones, 4, and his sister Irene, 9 months old. Their parents were Mrs. Mary Jones, 29, and Henry Jones, 32, a coal miner. Billy, 4, was saved when his mother, who had been visiting a neighbor, saw her home afire and ran to the scene.

DAMAGE SUIT WON BY LIQUOR RAIDERS

Montgomery Jury Rejects Former Sheriff's Case Against Policemen.

A jury in Montgomery County Circuit Court last night returned a verdict for the defendants in the suit filed by former Sheriff George Nicholson, of Olney, against Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley and Sergt. Guy L. Jones, of the county police.

Sheriff Nicholson had asked damages of $5,000 from each defendant, alleging that his reputation had been damaged by a raid on his property at Olney, Md., in search of liquor. He was represented by P. Bernard Welsh, of Rockville.

Chief Moxley and Sergt. Jones contended that they had not raided Sheriff Nicholson's property, but went to his house by mistake in looking for the residence of his son, Guy Nicholson, for which they had a search warrant. The son's home is on the same farm.

The police found a dismantled still in a smokehouse on the son's property, but he was later acquitted when he contended that he used the still merely to supply himself.

The defense held that the police department had not revealed the visit to the former sheriff's residence, but that Mr. Nicholson himself had made it public.

PAY DAY APPROACHES.

Premier Herriot's speech yesterday in the French Chamber of Deputies makes interesting reading on this side of the Atlantic. It discloses that French and American public opinion are as far apart as the poles.

Although M. Herriot did not go quite so far as to denounce the United States for befriending France during and after the war, he did assure the Chamber that the United States was responsible for all of France's disappointments. First, President Wilson created the League of Nations and then the United States refused to become a member; second, President Wilson drew up a treaty guaranteeing American support to France, and the treaty was not ratified; third, the United States imposed the Dawes plan upon France, and later the Young plan; fourth, President Hoover brought about the moratorium, which linked reparations and war debts together and caused France a loss of many millions; fifth, President Hoover and Premier Laval issued a statement which gave France the right to expect that if German reparations were scaled down the United States would scale down the war debts accordingly.

Americans know very well that no treaty, whether it proposes a League of Nations or a guarantee of French security, is valid unless approved by the Senate. Until approved, a treaty is barely more than a recommendation by the President. They know, also, that the United States Government did not impose the Dawes plan or the Young plan upon other nations, and was not a party to these plans. Americans are aware that the Hoover-Laval statement made all reservations regarding possible re-examination of the debts, and that the United States has repeatedly refused to link reparations and debts.

France was the last debtor to make a settlement with the United States. It ratified the debt agreement only after four or five years' delay and then with great reluctance. Nevertheless, it ratified; and Premier Herriot declared that France would not dishonor its signature.

The British and French governments are working in close accord, hoping to induce the United States to accept such conditions as will enable them to avoid payments hereafter. Apparently the British note presuming to impose conditions was written for home consumption and to aid M. Herriot in his arduous task of persuading the French Parliament to meet the obligation to America. Both of the debtor governments knew that the debt settlements could not be changed by President Hoover. They may have felt that it was necessary to reassure their respective peoples that everything possible was done to avoid unconditional payment. The onus is thus thrown upon the United States, and particularly upon President Hoover.

Neither Mr. Hoover nor the American people will become excited over these maneuvers if the two debtors come forward and pay their installments. France and Britain may try their best to "isolate" the United States, but each of them must negotiate separately if negotiations are to be opened. The Anglo-French entente has no standing so far as debt revision is concerned.

The House of Commons is to discuss the debts tomorrow. Nothing that may be said will alter the fact that the debt payments will fall due on the following day. The credit of the two nations depends upon their faithful execution of their obligations.

NATIONAL DEBT CONVERSION.

Attention is once more called to the vast sums of idle capital lying in bank vaults awaiting the return of confidence. Secretary Mills offered $250,000,000 of one-year certificates at three-fourths of 1 per cent interest. Investors put in bids for $4,128,000,000 worth of such certificates. The interest was the lowest ever paid on one-year certificates, yet it brought forth a tremendous outpouring of capital seeking safe investment.

This situation is of grave concern to the entire country. Idle capital means idle men, closed factories, smaller purchases, dull business and falling prices. Extensive efforts have been made to force capital out into industry, but confidence is still weak. It is apparent that the committees which are functioning in every Federal reserve district have not yet stimulated the flow of capital back into normal channels.

Only one advantage accrues from this situation. The Government is able to borrow money at low interest charges and thus reduce to some extent the cost of carrying the $20,000,000,000 national debt. The experience of the Treasury with its one-year and four-year notes suggests that a considerable volume of the national debt might be converted into bonds bearing lower interest rates than those now outstanding. Both France and Great Britain have converted vast sums of their national indebtedness, thus saving large amounts in interest. In both countries the conversions were even more successful than had been anticipated. Why should not the United States also take advantage of this opportunity to reduce the charges on its public debt?

Capital is seeking safety at present rather than high interest rates. The very fact that vast sums of Government bonds bearing relatively high interest rates are outstanding tends to keep capital from business enterprises. It is true, of course, that ample money is available for fundamentally sound enterprises where the danger of loss is reduced to a minimum. But such enterprises are few at present. Business ventures that could have obtained all the capital they needed a few years ago are now unable to go forward because their hazards are considered too great by the lenders of money. This situation might be improved if the interest rates on Government bonds could be reduced. Federal securities would then become less attractive and investors might be induced to place their funds into active business again.

It is, of course, a mistake to assume that all banks are hoarding capital. Bankers must necessarily safeguard the funds entrusted to their keeping. Yet if money continues to pile up in the banks and unemployment increases, disaster can be the only result. The Treasury might seriously consider whether a new form of pressure upon capital to drive it out into active business once more is in order. If such a plan could be carried out with complete safety, two objectives—reduction of interest charges against the Government and stimulation of business with credit—might be achieved with a single stroke.

JAPAN ON "DISARMAMENT."

Japan is trying to consolidate her position in Manchuria by an increase in her relative naval strength that would make it impossible for any other navy to meet her on an equal footing in Far Eastern waters. A few days ago Japan informed the League of Nations that under no circumstances would her policy in Manchuria be surrendered. Now she brings forth a plan that would insure her military domination of Asia.

In the London naval conference Japan agreed to a ratio of 3 to 5 with the United States and Great Britain. Naval experts calculate the proposed ratio under the new Japanese plan at about 8 for Japan and 11 for Great Britain and the United States. That would be a notable increase for the Japanese navy.

Other features of the Japanese plan are perhaps even more objectionable. Tokyo officials want to divide the world into separate spheres of naval influence. Naval tonnage would then be allotted so as to make each major country supreme in its own region. Japan would give herself unquestioned impregnability in the Far East. Great Britain seriously objects to this on the ground that her trade routes lead to all the world and that a navy strong enough to protect them is needed. Other powers object because such an agreement would be equivalent to approval of Japan's policy in Manchuria.

Since Japan's navy is called upon to function only in a limited area of Asiatic waters, she would declare all heavy and long-range craft "offensive armaments." Smaller craft which suit Japanese policy would be tolerated on the ground that they are "defensive." Submarines would be multiplied under that pretext. This is sufficient to dismay the British government and render consideration of the Tokyo plan hopeless. Of course, the United States would not agree that 10,000-ton cruisers, which are suitable for this country's needs, are "offensive," nor that Japan's lighter craft are mere agents of self-defense.

Japan's policy in Manchuria and her constant attempts to increase her naval ratio with the United States and Great Britain put that country in the position of being the chief obstacle to naval arms reduction. For many years France has been the chief obstruction in the way of land disarmament. These two countries, pursuing extreme policies, force the world to waste billions of dollars on armaments every year.

GUARDING FEDERAL TRADE.

The Federal Trade Commission in its annual report to Congress urges that its authority be established beyond question to conduct investigations at the request of the President or Congress, and to end any doubt of its authority to investigate alleged violations of the anti-trust act. In most instances the right of the commission to make such investigations is not questioned, as witness 92 complaints issued against companies and individuals during the last fiscal year, charging unfair methods of competition.

The commission is a quasi-judicial and administrative body charged primarily with preventing unfair competition and to find facts in aid of legislation. Aside from banks and common carriers the commission is empowered to investigate the organization, business, conduct, practices and management of any corporation engaged in commerce. During the past year seven general business investigations have been under way, prominent among these being hearings on power and gas utilities. This investigation has already extended to groups with an aggregate gross revenue of more than $1,000,000,000.

An exhaustive survey of chain stores has been completed. Field work has terminated and final reports are being written, and will be issued in serial form, covering such divisions as sources of chain store merchandise, wholesale business of retail chains, chain store leaders and loss leaders, cooperative drug and hardware chains. Among the other investigations before the commission are cottonseed prices, peanut prices, price bases, cement industry, building materials and bread and flour.

The commission's special board of investigation handling false and misleading advertising cases reported on 406 investigations during the year, the cases including abuses in newspaper, magazine and radio publicity. The commission suffered considerable reduction in the general economy program, its appropriation having been reduced nearly half a million to $1,396,000, necessitating a reduction of personnel.

THE TAX PROBLEM

By SENATOR JAMES COUZENS, in the Kiwanis Magazine.

The Nation, the State and the municipality are confronted with how best to raise taxes. The raising of taxes is always a disagreeable task for public officials, primarily because no tax always does exact justice to all our citizens. There is also a great problem confronting the country as to how to raise taxes without double and triple taxation. I mean by that that each political subdivision should endeavor to avoid taxing the same sources of revenue. For example, in nearly every case, the so-called gasoline consumption tax has been considered a source of revenue for the States, principally for the construction and maintaining of highways. The real property tax has always been an exclusive State and municipal source of revenue. The Federal Government has never attempted to tax that source of revenue. There has been quite a general acceptance of the theory that the income tax is an exclusive Federal source of revenue, although there are a number of States that have also adopted income taxes as a source of revenue. What I am endeavoring to point out is the great difficulty confronting 48 different States, with different constitutions, and the Federal Government, with the United States Constitution, in trying to raise revenues without infringing upon each other's sources of revenue and without causing any undue burden on particular groups of our citizens or upon any particular industry. * * *

For some time in the future, it seems to me, a more liberal or larger share of the profits of industry will have to go for taxes, because even with the strenuous efforts made at the last session of Congress to balance the budget, it now develops that the budget is by no means balanced. The estimated revenues have not come in, and therefore efforts will have to be made to find additional sources of revenue, even though Congress should be able to materially cut down the costs of Government. This may mean the adoption of a general manufacturers' or retail sales tax, but if such should eventuate, I intend to do my best to make it only temporary. The soundest and most equitable tax, if our generally accepted theory of taxation is correct, namely, the ability to pay, is the graduated income tax. * * *

Nearly every citizen will say, Why not cut down expenses instead of raising taxes? That is a perfectly obvious statement to make, but it is made without much consideration of the realities. No one will deny that there is latitude for materially reducing expenses, but we would still have to raise taxes even though we cut out completely all of the activities of the Department of Commerce and all of the commissions which we hear so much about. Of course, it is obvious that it is not possible to cut out all these commissions. For example, there could be no radio broadcasting or communications except for the Federal Radio Commission which regulates it. I doubt if the country could exist without the Interstate Commerce Commission, which prevents ruinous competition between the railroads, the favoring of one shipper over another or one community over another. I doubt if a tariff law could be written without the information and facts collected by the Tariff Commission. Certainly the Federal Trade Commission does prevent much unfair competition in industry. However, the aggregate of these commissions is not comparable with the enormous amount of money needed for interest on the national debt, for sinking funds, for Army and Navy and for the care of the veterans of the wars.

With a String to It.

POST HASTE

Aren't we going continental, though, devoting all day Sunday to public business!

The better the day the better the deed, but it happened to be a mortgage under discussion—no collateral.

Now there are only two war debt note days left before Thursday.

Disarmed Germany having been enticed into the disarmament conference again, it has regained the position it started with six months ago, so it will now take a rest.

It is going to be something of a puzzle for the scientists, the humane societies and the newspapers to occupy their time fully until another spider tries to snare a tiger, or something.

What about branch banks? Well, as Jasper says, "the chain stores seem to be doin' purty good."

The plight of Chicago teachers is improving. Their unpaid salaries have been cut, so they are not out as much as they thought they were.

The booze experts could not offer more conflicting opinions if they were alienists, but of course Congress wouldn't listen to the latter on a purely domestic question.

Complete funerals are being advertised so cheap that many are tempted to utilize them as holiday presents for a selected list.

Surely they wouldn't be rude enough to put that taboo label on them if we just had cozy beer and wine parlors for winter and ditto gardens for summer, would they?

If the French press did not make it clear to the street crowds that it is Uncle Sam who threatens to default it was probably due to deficiencies in the language.

Mussolini has turned the great statue of Julius Caesar around so he could look up a new street. There is talk of turning the Statue of Liberty around, too, to face inland.

Much was said during the war about poor German psychology with regard to American reactions. It seems to have been contagious.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE WRESTLING MATCH.

Two men of giant frames began
To claw each other, man to man;
To slam, as one might slam a door,
Each other on the canvased floor;
To strike with elbows sides and chins
And twist each other by the shins,
The while the crowd with lusty roar
Of such excitement begged for more.

One held his rival high in air
And twirled him like a lariat there.
With mighty fling from thigh and heel
He tossed him like a sack of meal,
Then leaped, as angry beasts attack,
To pin his foeman on his back.
A mighty kick, with skill designed,
Contrived to change the fellow's mind.

For five and thirty minutes long
The wrestlers groaned to please the throng.
They hauled and twisted, jumped and clawed
And grinned to hear the crowd applaud.
It seemed to be each wrestler's whim
To tear the other limb from limb.
I wondered was this thing the craze
In Rome and Nero's circus days.

He Robs You When He Blows Up a Bridge That Your Taxes Must Rebuild

By ROBERT QUILLEN

If you are one of the mythical "average" Americans there are many times when you are shamed and saddened by your inability to provide for your family.

Your wife needs a new coat and you can't buy it; your children are denied pleasures that a very little money would provide; at times you risk disaster to avoid calling a doctor.

What can you do? Perhaps you can't earn more money, but you can get the same result in another way. You can get twice as much for your money.

If some individual kept you poor by doubling the cost of all that you buy you would hate him and do your utmost to destroy him.

Why, then, are you so blindly indifferent to the many individuals who keep you poor and fatten at your expense?

Do you know who the people are who get a cut of your pay check before your wife and children get their share?

Well, Al Capone paid several hundred young men $200 a week to manage his various "rackets." Where did the money come from? No matter who paid it to Capone, it came from the pockets of consumers.

When some business man pays $5,000 to "fix" an agent of the law or a buyer, or to buy protection from thugs, does he take the loss? You know he doesn't. He adds it to the cost of the thing he sells.

When the "big" man is forced to pay heavy taxes because of Government waste, does he bear the burden himself? You know he doesn't. He adds it to the things you buy.

Men in position to know place the annual cost of fraud and crime at $12,000,000,000. Do the immediate victims pay that dreadful toll? They do not. It is added to the bill of the consumer.

You pay the cost of every fraud, every graft, every racket, every crime, every tax levied to "soak the rich."

Aren't you tired of it? Haven't you had enough of being the ultimate sucker?

Don't say there is nothing you can do about it. When the people of America are aroused they can smash anything on top of ground.

The law has enough honest servants to clean house when you demand it.

Your family must suffer until you realize that a thief is stealing from you when he steals a fund you must replace.

POLITICAL COMMENT

War on Home Loan Banks.
Houston Post.

Senators Borah, Glass, Couzens and Fletcher have opened an attack on the new Federal Home Loan Bank System. Senator Borah thinks the act creating the banks should be repealed immediately. The others assert that the banks are not giving and will not give any help to the home owners who really are in need of aid.

Back of some of this criticism seems to be a political motive. A desire to take a whack at Chairman Fort of the home loan bank board of directors is evident. Mr. Fort made some speeches for President Hoover during the campaign, and he is charged, therefore, with having neglected his work with the banks.

If the new home loan banking system is not measuring up to what was expected of it, this criticism of it, though obviously partly politically inspired, may do good. Officials of the system may be spurred to renewed activity in getting the banks to functioning usefully.

The New Deal.
Owatonnia (Minn.) Journal-Chronicle.

We hope, for the benefit of all the people—Democrats and Republicans alike, and any other classes—that the people of the United States will get "a new deal." But we predict that President-elect Roosevelt and his administration will be able to do very little for them, if they do not spend a lot of money and energy in helping themselves.

Bring on the Bullion.
Indianapolis Star.

Uncle Sam is now engaged in doing some watchful waiting at the cashier's cage.

Prosperity Barometer.
Arkansas Democrat.

Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Informed citizens will not take kindly to the reduction of the Marine Corps personnel by 1,700 men. This military group now is relatively small, as it always has been. But it has proved of incalculable service to the country. Aside from the phenomenal achievements of the Marines in the World War—a story known wherever men talk of feats of arms—from time immemorial they have protected with the least possible friction the interests of the United States and other countries in all parts of the globe. These "soldiers of the sea" are recognized as international police. Their presence on alien territory is not regarded as an act of war, whereas the landing of other troops means usually that hostilities are imminent.

An Error of Emphasis.
Cincinnati Enquirer.

Congressional hearings on modification of the Volstead act are centering largely around the question of what alcoholic content makes a beverage intoxicating. The legislators apparently are assuming that there must be a point at which drink is wholly satisfying and yet harmless. They are seeking a golden mean through legal formulas. Naturally, the evidence is conflicting.

It is quite likely that the Congress has erred in approaching the liquor question in this light. Instead of emphasizing the issue of alcoholic content, it might well search for a method of inducing temperance and a plan for responsible drinking.

It Is Strange.
Waterbury Republican.

Gov. Roosevelt is already getting mail and telegrams addressed to the White House from people who apparently are under the impression that he is already President. Every little while we wonder how a democracy can manage to get along.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Walter Johnson Holds Special Place in Baseball Annals—A Detroit Tribute.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When the baseball season opens next spring, the fans will miss the presence of the "Old Master," Walter Johnson. The following editorial from the Detroit News pays a worthy tribute to Walter:

"Professional base ball gives the average player more than he can give the sport, but now and then some figure in it is plainly less a beneficiary than is the game itself for his presence and participation. It is a pleasant thing that 600 fans gathered in Washington the other night to tell Walter Johnson that this is so.

"In 25 years he has lent the game a personal character and integrity that would have set him apart, even if he were not the supremely skillful player that he was. The game is well supplied with artists whose personalities off the field are unexceptional, but Johnson in public or private had an Olympian touch that lifted him to a place peculiarly his own. It must be that such a character, joined to the talents he has evinced in the management of an interesting contender in Washington, can find an active place in baseball. It will be distinctly the game's loss if there is no room in it now for Walter Johnson."

Though the Washington ball fans will greatly miss Walter, they will be backing the new young manager, Joe Cronin, heart and soul. They will urge the team on to win the pennant. Washington ball players and fans will remember Walter Johnson as long as they live, and there will always be a warm spot in their hearts for the masterful pitcher. FAN.

"Buy American" Idea Approved as a Boost to Home Industry and Added Employment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The article "Buy American," by Samuel G. Blythe, in the Saturday Evening Post, is a wise and timely suggestion for every citizen of this country. There is too much American money going to foreign countries today. Much of this money gets into foreign countries through the tourists, but there is a vast amount that would stay at home if the policy "Buy American" were adopted.

Besides keeping money at home, this policy will also help to boom American industry, which will in turn put more men to work and thus increase the monetary circulation in this country. The people should be educated to "Buy American." The newspapers of this country can so educate the people. AMERICAN.

"Buy American" Slogan Appeals to Citizen as Means of Checking Depression.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Might I have space to call attention to the article in the Saturday Evening Post entitled "Buy American" by Samuel Blythe?

I am impressed with two facts by this article, (1) that the average American is not aware that he is almost daily aiding in prolonging the depression, (2) that the average American has the weapon in his own hands for stopping the depression.

Why not a "Buy American" Club? Why not insist on a "Made-in-America" stamp on every article of merchandise we buy.

"BUY AMERICAN."

Guessing Can Now Begin as to Mr. Hoover's Plans After March 4.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that Mr. Hoover has been nominated to become head of Harvard University after he leaves the White House it is quite apparent that the guessing season is open as to the position the next former President will accept. Mr. Hoover said recently that he had not decided as yet what he will do after March 4. Therefore, it is up to the public to help him to decide. Will he be the head of some college, a railroad president, head some large life insurance company, write columns for some newspaper, undertake a great engineering project, or just retire to a life of leisure for some years to come? S. PARKS.

Three Suggestions for Improving Traffic Conditions—Speed Register on Windshield!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: First—To each fine imposed for violation of traffic regulations add 4 per cent and give half of it to the policemen's fund, and the other 2 per cent to the Community Chest.

Second—Increase the police force 30 per cent and put half of this percentage on traffic patrol in plain clothes.

Third—Have the speedometers so constructed that they shall register on the windshield in plain figures large enough to be read at a glance by the pedestrian. G. C.

Permit Europe to Pay War Debts in Liquor, Urges Repealist.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There have been so many suggestions lately about how Europe might pay her war debts to this country, I feel that one more suggestion can not do any harm. Why not let Congress get busy and kill two birds with one stone? Namely; repeal the eighteenth amendment and the tariff on liquor, and let Europe pay her war debts in good liquors. REPEALIST.

Former Resident Pleased With Method of Handling Red Marchers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a former resident, I have been pleased to note how differently the "hunger" marchers' situation was handled by the Washington police from the languid way in which the bonus marchers' situation was handled last summer, when I happened to be in Washington. J. C. R.

Bachelors' Cotillion Is Brilliant Affair.

Diplomatic, official and residential Washington was represented at the first of this season's Washington bachelors' cotillions given last night at the Mayflower with an attendance of nearly 400. This marked the beginning of the fifth season for these very popular balls which have attracted Washington society since their inauguration by a group of local "Bachelors" in the winter of 1927-28.

Countess Szechenyi, wife of the Minister of Hungary, stood at the head of the receiving line last night, that formed in the Chinese room, the guests being presented by Brig. Gen. William E. Horton, U. S. A., who has proven to be a very capable president of the cotillions for the last three years.

Others in line were Mrs. Hamilton Fish, jr., Mrs. J. Wilbur Carr and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson.

Miss Gladys Szechenyi, daughter of the Hungarian Minister and Countess Szechenyi, was chosen as the partner of Mr. Herbert C. Hengstler, who led the figures that were directed by Mr. George H. Calvert, jr., vice president of the "Bachelors."

Immediately preceding the dancing of the figures that began promptly at 11 o'clock, miniature brass pirate chests suitable for use as jewelry or cigarette boxes were presented to all the young women dancing in the figures by their escorts, and they in turn were given attractive flashlights that were flashed on and off during the dancing of the intricate numbers when most of the lights in the grand ballroom were turned off to give a more effective setting. The "Washington Bachelors' Cotillion March," written especially for the occasion by Sidney, director of the Mayflower orchestra, was played during the dance.

THE PARADINE CASE

By ROBERT HICHENS

SYNOPSIS.

Sir Malcolm Keane, K. C., is asked by Sir Simon Flaquer, a noted English solicitor, to defend Mrs. Paradine, who has been arrested for the murder of her husband, who had been blinded in the war and had been decorated with the V. C. Sir Simon tells Keane that Mrs. Paradine is a beautiful Dane, who had been rescued from a life of degradation in Copenhagen by an American diplomat, taken as a servant to America and later made her way to England. She'd married Maj. Paradine after the war. He agrees to handle the case and becomes immediately intensely interested in it.

Sir Malcolm is happily married to Gay, but when he calls on Mrs. Paradine at Holloway jail he feels the strange fascination of his beautiful client. He is worried because Lord Horfield might be named as judge of the trial and endeavors to be friendly to him. He and Gay give a little dinner party to which they ask Lord and Lady Horfield. After the party Sir Malcolm studies a photograph of William Marsh, Col. Paradine's valet, and the idea occurs to him that the man who acted in so intimate a relation to his blind master might have had an opportunity to kill him. His plan of defense begins to take form in his mind.

Gay meets a Swedish painter, Baron Sedelsward, at the Flaquers', and he invites her to a private view of his paintings. Sir Malcolm decides to go to the exhibition when he learns that Sedelsward was acquainted with Mrs. Paradine.

INSTANTLY Keane was able to concentrate. He gazed—they were now at the entrance of the principal room—and saw Sedelsward, in a frock coat and looking slightly official, his naturally rosy cheeks a little flushed, listening to Lady Horfield, who, even more congested than usual and with unmeaning gesticulations of her small, flapping hands was making the conversation that she thought obligatory.

"Shall we go to the rescue?" said Keane. "I think it would be a Christian act. I feel she's in dark Chaos."

And without waiting for Gay's assent he moved resolutely in the direction of the painter. Gay followed him.

Sedelsward was delighted to see them. He beamed upon Gay, and when Keane was introduced he grasped his hand with a heavy warmth that was almost clinging.

"I am glad to see you, Sir Keane," he said. "I was anxious to know you. I hope——"

But here Lady Horfield's oldly small hand flapped its way to Malcolm and her little, restless eyes, feverish and distressed, summoned him to attention. Since the dinner in Portland place, with its strange conversation, their relation to each other had changed. Keane was conscious of that, and so, evidently, was she. Since that dinner they meant something to each other that they had not meant before it.

He spoke to Lady Horfield and Gay spoke to her, and then the Flaquers. Lady Flaquer and Judith, came up and there was some general, disjointed conversation in which Sedelsward took or tried to take part—for he was constantly interrupted by guests who claimed his attention—and Keane cursed private views in his mind and himself for having been such a fool as to come to this one with a hope that was now, of course, to be frustrated.

"You aren't happy here!" said Judith Flaquer's clear, rather ironical voice in his ear. "You are too big for this sort of thing. An elephant in a duck pond. And you are hating our quack-quack. Why did you come?"

Suddenly Keane longed to be frank, to liberate his soul in sheer frankness.

"I wanted to get to know Sedelsward," he said; "I had a special reason."

He lowered his voice.

"He used to know Mrs. Paradine when she was a girl in a barber's shop."

"Mrs. Paradine!" she said. "But she is beginning to overshadow our lives."

"Our lives?"

"Well, she comes to us through papa, though he doesn't speak of her. And she comes to you through her case. And you, I'm sure, hand her on to Gay."

"No—indeed!" he said, with decision.

"Sure?" Judith said.

"I never mix Gay up in my cases."

"Sure?" she repeated.

And her eyes, he thought, were merciless, compelling him to be truthful with himself.

"It isn't always talking that does it," she went on. "Sometimes, more often probably, it's being papa, now—but I feel he's going to let out to me. Sometimes he does, you know. I call it treating me like a solicitor. He has his rule—'no family in my business!' But now and then he breaks it with me. And I know he's going to break it over this Paradine case. I feel it coming. The solicitor link between us! I ought to be in the office."

"I wish you were," said Keane, seized by a sudden wish to consult with this clever, enlightened and clear-brained girl about Mrs. Paradine's prospects and his difficulties in connection with her.

"But perhaps then I should be completely overshadowed, too. I begin to see Mrs. Paradine as a cloud lowering over all those who come into contact with her. Even papa isn't immune. What will be the end of it?"

"I don't know. But I must have a talk with the painter."

"You never can here. Ask him to dine with you."

"But then——"

"At your club—tonight. That's what I should do. W'ell ask Gay to dine with us. I will—now."

She turned away from him, but not quickly. No intention seemed to be in her movement. Soon he saw her speak to Gay, and Lady Flaquer taking part in the conversation. He wished he could hear what they were saying, but at this moment Lady Horfield spoke in his ear.

"Horfield is going to try her."

The voice, in the midst of the murmur of voices all around him, sounded strangely cavernous, even sinister.

"Do you hear me?" Horsfield is going to try her."

"I know."

"I hate it when he tries a woman for"—she whispered—"murder."

Struggling against the painful and bizarre effect which her extraordinary expression and manner had upon him, Keane said:

"Dear Lady Horfield, you shouldn't have married a judge."

"He wasn't judge then. He was nobody. But"—again her voice sank to a hoarse whisper—"not to me!"

"You ought to be proud of his great career."

"But I'm afraid"—she made a queer movement with her little right hand as if sawing something—"of—you know—when he has to put on the black cap—for a woman."

Keane, in spite of the crowd pressing around them and the heat engendered by it, felt a coldness spreading all over him.

"Try—do your best—don't let him——"

In desperation Keane, forgetting his manners, turned his back on her. He found himself face to face with Sedelsward. The relief was tremendous. But still Mrs. Paradine was with him. There was no escape from her.

"I wanted to ask you something, baron. Could you possibly dine with me tonight at my club the Cleveland, Pall Mall? It's short notice but I should be so very glad to have a talk with you. No party. We should be alone."

"I will come."

And then some one spoke to Keane.

"We've captured Gay for dinner tonight," said Lady Flaquer. "We want her really to know Bortages, and he's coming. Can you manage without her?"

In her brilliant Italian eyes he read smiling comprehension. He and she were playing a game.

"Of course. I'll dine at the club."

Gay did not play the game. She did not even ask her husband where he was dining. She seemed oddly subdued as they went home, and said scarcely anything. In the house he told her he was going to meet the baron that night, "as you are dining out."

"I know you wanted to meet him," she said.

Then she went upstairs with Sausage.

Keane stood looking after her. In the midst of the crowd at the private view he had asked himself the question, "What's the matter with Gay?" Now, in the quiet and the loneliness of his home, he asked himself that question again, and from somewhere there came an answer. But it was an answer that then he wouldn't accept. He repelled it. He tried to put it from him, tried to assert to himself that it was a lie and that Gay, of all people, so well balanced, so full of trust and loyalty, couldn't believe such a thing.

Her rather tall and very slim figure turned the bend of the stairs, with Sausage hurrying behind it. And it seemed to Keane that that figure, still strangely girlish, looked weary and heavy hearted. An impulse came to him to leap up the stairs to take Gay in his arms and say to her:

"It isn't true! It isn't true! A thought like that comes to you from the devil."

But almost as it was born in him the impulse died, and instead he went rather furtively to his library, sat down at his table, and opened its long, wide drawer.

Something there he must look at.

* * * *

Keane was at the Cleveland at a quarter to 8. He went at once to the guests' dining room and ordered a dinner that ought to be excellent to be ready in about half an hour. Swedes, he knew, were fond of good eating and were well taken care of in that respect in their own country. By his appearance, the painter, Keane judged, was no exception to the general rule. England must not let him down in one of the most famous of London clubs. Having arranged about the dinner, he got hold of an evening newspaper and settled himself in a deep armchair to wait for his guest.

The shrill voice of a page fell on his ears calling:

"Sir Malcolm Keane! Sir Malcolm Keane!"

He swung round.

"I'll come."

Keane strode across the hall eagerly, came up to the baron with outstretched hand.

"I'm so glad to see you."

They were in the guests' dining room now and Keane stopped by a table in a corner.

"Will you sit here, baron?"

"Thank you. Am I late?"

"Only a few minutes. Here is what we are going to have. You drink champagne?"

"With greatest pleasure."

Keane ordered a bottle of Pommery. He had become grave, was looking preoccupied. The baron was evidently a charming and well-meaning fellow as well as a consummate painter. But was he also a sieve?"

"Oh, by the way, you'll have a cocktail?"

"With greatest pleasure."

"What sort? A Martini? Sidecar? Manhattan? Bronx?"

"A Manhattan, if I may. It is my favorite."

Keane ordered two Manhattans. The baron began to beam and, when the Manhattan came, sipped his with an air of joyous anticipation.

"I like your London clubs," he remarked, looking round him at the lofty room with its thick carpet and dark green curtains hanging heavily under the gilded cornices. "This is indeed O. K."

And he applied himself with gusto to the turtle soup which had just been served to them.

Sedelsward, who was a thoroughly well-bred man, accustomed to the world, though preserving happily a bonhomie that was almost schoolboyish at times, had probably felt as Keane had, that it would be indiscreet to rush upon the topic that had drawn him toward the lawyer. At his private view he had shown without mentioning it that he had a special reason for being glad to meet Keane, but he did not refer to it during dinner until, at last, secretly impatient, Keane brought it up.

"My wife tells me you have met some one in whom at present I'm deeply interested," he said, "Mrs. Paradine."

At once Sedelsward's face changed. Under the influence of good food and excellent wine he had beamed with geniality. Now he suddenly looked grave.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Flat fur makes the muff, sleeves, collar and vestee of this chic and comfortable winter coat. (Dah-ray designed.)

LYING on the plush couch before the fire, I studied the women in the room, all stranger to me.

It was Sunday and I was spending the rainy day comfortably chaperoned by fourteen fashion magazines and ten newspapers, of assorted nationalities. I have driven miles from the city to the little inn hidden in the hills, possibly in an effort to recapture my fleeting youth, probably to get caught up on my fashion reading.

And I couldn't help wondering why the American woman will do these things:

Wear a brown sweater if she has gorgeous dark eyes and iron-gray hair.

Wear a pale yellow dress with white collar and cuffs if she has light brown hair and blue eyes.

And talk too loudly.

How lovely she would have been in gray or rich blue, she with the iron-gray hair!

How dignified she in the shapeless ensemble might have been in an ensemble or one-piece dress that fitted her figure!

Why go on? How charming, interesting or beautiful women can be; how little of these, also! Whatever you are, it is so easy to make the best of it with the clothes and colors you wear!

* * * *

You can be comfortable as well as smart, these days! How about this Dah-ray-designed coat, I ask you? Doesn't it defy the coldest weather? Yet it doesn't look anything like a raccoon skin coat, now does it? I would match them both for warmth though, even if they couldn't possibly be matched for chic. The sleeves and waistcoat of the coat are of flat fur, matched with a biggish muff—which you carry only when you wish. The material of the coat is a soft and supple wool, warm and comfortable as all the new wools are, but very smooth on the figure. Nice?

The clever mother makes her own Christmas tree ornaments, oh such big and glittery and gorlicious ones! She sends us a stamped, self-addressed envelope, you see, and gets this week's leaflet which tells her how to go about it. Even if you have saved all the Christmas tree ornaments you need from other Christmas trees, this leaflet has other funny little gadgets in it that you can make to delight the kiddies, as well as to add color to the tree. Better send for it—we know you will find something at least in it that will please you and help you out with your Christmas cheering.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

YOU are probably weary of the time-worn warning, "Do your Christmas shopping early." But, there's wisdom in those words! Shopping slowly and leisurely makes for more satisfaction and less fatigue.

First, let me urge you to be thoroughly rested before starting off on a shopping tour. If you feel at all tired, please put off the shopping for another day. There's danger in overworking an already weary body. Plan to retire a little earlier the night before you have arranged to do strenuous shopping.

Before you retire, start storing a little additional energy. Cleanse your face and neck thoroughly. Then apply a little nourishing cream. Pat it over face and neck with upward and outward movements. While you are doing this, draw water for a quite warm bath (not hot, because the hot bath saps strength). Add a cupful of ordinary table salt or epsom salts to the bath. These add a tonic effect to the restful bath. Soak in the tub for about 10 minutes. Rub briskly with a coarse turkish washcloth or a medium bristled bath brush; the long-handled kind is particularly satisfactory. Out of the tub, pat dry with a turkish towel, but don't rub too briskly or the stimulation may keep you awake.

Leave a thin film of cream on overnight if convenient. Take some warm milk or similar nightcap to help you sleep soundly.

In the morning, take a cool shower, and this time a quick, brisk rub, shoe-shine fashion, with turkish towel. Cleanse skin again and finish with a mild astringent or skin tonic. Then, for a lasting make-up, I know of nothing like shopping to make every trace of rouge disappear and leave that dreaded, wilted look. Cream rouge blended carefully over a foundation cream or lotion will give a very warm, natural effect and will last throughout a busy day. Then pat powder over it. Finish with a touch of compact rouge. Then a little lip paste.

Brush and adjust your hair in the best "stay-put" arrangement you know of, using a hairnet if necessary. Be sure your hat is on at just the right angle, your coat, shoes, gloves, every detail quite right. Remember good grooming is always necessary. Wear simple, tailord, smart clothes for shopping. You are bound to meet a friend or acquaintance at a time you least expect to do so. There's a wealth of self-confidence in the knowledge that you look appropriately dressed and lovely.

With a start such as I have described you should manage to look well throughout a strenuous shopping day, and finish without feeling fatigued.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

DIPHTHERIA GOING DOWN.

THERE seems to be a fair chance that diphtheria can be wiped out. In communities with well-developed health departments this objective is almost within sight. Day has broken, the eastern sky is red, and the sun is almost due to rise.

The rule is that we have succeeded best with those diseases about which we knew the least—that is, from the laboratory standpoint. Let us use smallpox as an example. The laboratory people can tell us nothing of practical value about this disease. We do not know what microbe causes it, nor have we a laboratory diagnosis test for it that is on a working basis. We have no antitoxin nor antibacterial remedy for it. The method of vaccination against it was worked out in practice without any laboratory help except as to some minor points adopted in this century.

There is consumption, which is coming under control in spite of the fact that we have no specific cure or prevenitve that is in general use.

Diphtheria is an exception. The bacillus is known. The disease can be proved diagnostically in the laboratory. It can be transmitted to animals and thus theories can be checked. We have specific vaccines worked out in laboratories for its cure. Fifty years ago diphtheria was regarded as one of mankind's most terrifying menaces. When the total number of deaths from a given disease among nearly six million people is less than two hundred yearly, the end may be regarded as within sight. That is New York's record.

When a city of more than one hundred thousand can go for four years without a death from diphtheria, not much is to be feared from the disease. This end has been achieved by making use of each discovery as it became available. In the last decade of the last century it was the use of antitoxin. Now it is the use of vaccine. Enough experience with the latter procedure has been accumulated to create a demand for a book. This demand a Frenchman, Debre, has supplied with a volume entitled "Vaccination Against Diphtheria."

The main questions have all been settled. The present day debate is over such minor questions as: Which is better, toxin antitoxin or toxoid? Shall one or three injections be given? Shall the injections be made into the skin or under? Shall it be used as an ointment; as a throat and nose spray? Shall babies be vaccinated at one year or at an earlier age? Should vaccination against diphtheria precede vaccination against smallpox? Shall diphtheria vaccination be required as a requisite for attendance on school, entrance to children's homes, and hospitals? When children have been exposed to diphtheria how shall they be immunized against the disease?

WOUNDED KNEES.

F. C. writes: A school friend of mine hurt her knee by falling on the cinders in the school yard. A spot about as large as a quarter was scraped off. This was at the close of school in June. It refused to heal, although first aid was given immediately. It was treated at home for a month, and then a physician treated it twice. Proud flesh was in it continuously. It is now practically under control. Do you think her blood is impure? Would a good tonic be proper for her?

REPLY.

The history does not mean that her blood is impure or that she needs a tonic. Tell her not to do it again, and beyond that she need not go. Any skin wound is liable to develop proud flesh, especially if it is not treated well.

HEART MURMURS.

B. A. J. writes: I have been told by a doctor that I have mitral murmurs of the heart. Is this condition serious? Is exercise dangerous? How long may one live with this disease? Is there any special diet one should follow? I am a male, aged 18.

REPLY.

It does not follow that you are to die this year or within the next 70 years. It does not even follow that you will have any other symptoms or need alter your diet or your work.

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF December 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m., from 5:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to 11:50 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m.

A general feeling of fear may manifest itself on this day; fear for your self, or for a dear one away from home. It may possibly be a fear that some plan or business idea may be disrupted. Do not be too alarmed, as it would seem that in all probability your fears are ungrounded. Rough spots in your affairs may appear, however.

Born on this December 13, the child will be high-strung, restless and extremely critical. He will not take to strangers, and this aloofness will be a part of him all his life. Easily depressed. Very loving and kind to his family. Inclined to be headstrong and to have occasional fits of temper.

If December 13 is your birthday, you are slow and methodical in all that you do. You do not learn things, or pick up new ways quickly. You must work hard for all that you get; but once you have learned something, you retain it forever. You are physically slow, one might almost say lumbering. To all appearances you have a disposition that is not easily disturbed, but you often surprise those about you by your not infrequent outbursts of temper. You do not get over these periods as quickly as you might, and you are inclined to hold a grudge. Once your friendship is gained, you show yourself a warm and faithful friend.

Born on December 13, you may find yourself plodding along with a reasonable degree of success in almost any line of business. You should find a happy place for yourself in the field of commercial banking, where your keen money sense and sense of values should aid you tremendously. Teaching is a vocation that is often followed by the women born on this date. They have an understanding of children that is helpful in such a line of work. They make ideal mothers and usually have large families. They prefer girls. Whatever work they have at hand, their best efforts appear when they have a personal interest.

A VERY BIG CARD.

As long as there remains a mathematical chance of the fulfillment of a contract, the Declarer should not abandon hope, no matter how absurd that chance seems to be. This is the settled conviction of Mr. Charles H. Goren, of Philadelphia, Pa., who offers in proof of it the hand below, which was played in the Philadelphia Mixed Pair Championship Tournament at the Wissahickon Club in Philadelphia last June.

South—Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

Through a misunderstanding in the bidding, South had reached the contract of six hearts. Although lacking a trump trick, East could not be blamed for thinking that the contract was an overambitious one, so he doubled, and South, still thinking that his partner had given two Raises to his heart bid rather than one, redoubled as a matter of course.

The Opening lead was the club Knave, and when the Dummy went down it was, of course, apparent that the contract was an entirely hopeless one. However, as the play of the other hands had been fairly rapid, and play was in progress at other tables, Mr. Goren decided to play it out. The second round of hearts was won in the Dummy, and a low diamond led toward the Ten in the closed hand. East could not wait, and went up with the Ace, dropping his partner's singleton King. The fulfillment of the contract was now routine, since both losing spades were discarded on the established diamonds.

While West was delivering a short lecture from the text, "Second-Hand Low," Mr. Goren's partner suggested that the Slam bid was slightly optimistic.

"Ah, but I had a very big card you knew nothing about," he retorted as he proudly pointed to the diamond Ten.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

North—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Abundance of Christmas Trees and Evergreens Found in Southwest Markets at Exceptionally Low Prices; Choice Pecans Selling at 20 Cents a Pound.

Crisply spreading evergreen trees with their spicy fragrance and Christmas significance are dominating the market places. Tall spruces from Maine, sent by freight to Washington by the thousands, truckloads of pines from Maryland and Virginia and carefully prepared living Christmas trees ready for planting or all ready for the holiday in their bright green tubs; all are awaiting their eager buyers.

The festive greens for the holiday are spread over more than half the city squares on lower Tenth and Eleventh streets southwest. One dealer alone has ready more than 2,000 trees. Prices for the trees vary with their size so that price quoting is difficult, but if one is ready to pay cash for his tree and carry it home, the price is sure to be low.

One of the best values the Meanderer saw was a pine tree, very green and well shaped, about 2 feet high, in a green-painted tin tub, for only $1.50. Another interesting offering is a row of arbor vitae, the lacy-green type of Christmas tree, in sizes about 3 feet tall, with roots carefully protected with soil and suitable for potting for Christmas and planting afterward, for $3 each. One customer for the arbor vitae type of tree said he had paid as much as $10 for the same kind of Christmas tree two years ago. Furthermore, this customer said the trees were growing well and were to be used again as Christmas trees. After Christmas, he said, he will merely sink the trees, tubs and all, into the ground to await another holiday up-coming.

A young Jewish musician, his pretty, capable wife, and a woman cook with a city-wide reputation for Kosher cookery, are serving Washington with excellent Kosher dishes in a delicatessen near the waterfront in the Southwest Market. Gentiles, as well as those for whom Kosher cooking is essential, are frequent customers in the little shop. As the spicy dishes after the Kosher method are appetizing these winter days, the Meanderer is including a number of such foods in today's report.

A poppy seed tea cake, biscuit size, and biscuit texture, is a popular seller in the Kosher shop. It sells for 20 cents a dozen. Fruit and nut strudel sells in generous pieces for 5 cents each. Onion buns, potato pudding and apple puddings are much in demand.

Gefiltefish, made of fresh fish flesh, nicely seasoned and the whole wrapped in the fish skin, is a delectable dish, prepared in this Kosher kitchen, served hot or cold.

Pastrami—smoked, spiced Kosher beef—is, of course, in the front row of foods in this shop. Pickled lox, or salmon; pickled herring, both domestic and imported; home-made dill pickles, green tomato pickles, sauerkraut, pickled tongue, corned beef, soup nuts, egg barley, cereal grits and the complete showing of foods pleasing to both Jews and Gentiles, all are available in this Kosher corner newly visited by the Meanderer.

The Christmas season is bringing in some of the best fresh pineapples Washington has enjoyed in months. Customers who buy the pineapples return quickly for more, according to a retail fruit and vegetable dealer on Connecticut avenue. Oranges, too, are attracting buyers as their quality is improving with the advancing of the winter season.

Paper shell pecans, so much wanted for Christmas cookery and for the holiday fruit bowl or for filling the toes of the Christmas stockings, are found in one of the Meanderer's haunts in the Southwest Market for a very low price. They are sold in 10-pound bags for 20 cents a pound.

New, tender carrots, beets, turnips, broccoli and spinach from Texas are among the most appealing of the vegetables for midweek meals and are found in everyone's neighborhood market.

Apples were never of better quality as they are made ready for Christmas selling, according to a wholesale dealer whose apple dealings are by the hundreds and thousands of bushels. Prices on apples vary from 75 cents to $2 per bushel.

Telephone questions about Market Meanderings to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 52, or address the Market Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

As old-fashioned as a Godey print, and yet we've never seen anything newer! Figured satin, quaintly pink and blue, with big pouff sleeves, and an enormous blue taffeta bustle bow at the back. One of an enchanting collection in the Junior Deb Shop.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

IN view of President Hoover's statement that he has under consideration further consolidations and groupings in the different Government departments, in addition to the sweeping changes advocated last week, there is conjecture as to whether or not the President may recommend sending the Federal Radio Commission back to the Department of Commerce.

"Personally, if I were the President, or a senator or a congressman, with the urgent need of economy staring me in the face," a man well known in the radio industry said, "I would seriously consider amending the radio law so as to do away with the commission entirely and transfer the machinery back to the Department of Commerce.

"I am not at all sure that the Radio Commission, which costs approximately half a million dollars a year, is not now one of the luxuries without which we could exist."

Another element of uncertainty is added to the future of the Radio Commission by a statement credited to President-elect Roosevelt that he expects to abolish as many commissions as possible.

Otherwise with the Democratic caucus adopting a resolution banning the confirmation of practically all nominations sent to the Senate, it looks more and more as if President Roosevelt will be confronted with the task of reorganizing the Radio Commission.

The supposition is that President Hoover did not name a successor to Commissioner Saltzman, Iowa, because he desired to reduce the commission from five to three members. If President Roosevelt adheres to this idea, it would let both Gen. Saltzman's successor and Judge Sykes out.

However, because of the strong backing Judge Sykes is said to have from Senator Pat Harrison and the Mississippi delegation, his chances for reappointment by President Roosevelt would seem to be excellent. If reappointed either by Hoover or Roosevelt Judge Sykes would undoubtedly become chairman of the commission.

If, as commonly reported, Commissioner Sykes is slated for a Federal judgeship there would be a place for another Southern Democrat. Representative Ewin Davis, of Tennessee, is being strongly urged for the place. Thus far, Judge Davis has not committed himself on the subject of his availability and has done nothing to advance his candidacy.

IF President Roosevelt appoints a successor to Gen. Saltzman, he will unquestionably be a Democrat. He would hail from Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas or Missouri, which comprises the zone in which the vacancy exists.

If President Roosevelt should cut the commission down to three members it would take the Democrats some time to get control of the body, as the terms of Commissioner Lafount and Brown, Republicans, do not expire until 1935 and 1938, respectively. If President Roosevelt continues the five-man commission, the Democrats could have a majority immediately after March 4.

FEODOR CHALIAPIN, Russian basso, will sing an aria from Mozart's "Don Juan" when he makes his first radio appearance in more than four years as guest artist of the Five Star Theater program on WJSV at 10 o'clock tonight. He will be accompanied by Joseph Bonime's symphony orchestra.

The program will open with the overture to "Mignon," by Thomas, to be followed by the "Don Juan" selection. The orchestra will then play Brahms' Hungarian dance in D flat major. Chaliapin will be heard again in a group of three songs: "The Two Grenadiers," by Schumann; "Pleasant Chat," by Meyer-Helmund, and Malashkin's "Russian Romance." Sir Edward Elgar's march, "Pomp and Circumstance," will close the program.

"The Aeroplane Dynamiters," a thrilling story of the part played by Government agents in frustrating the daring plot of a group of agitators, will be the Lucky Strike dramatization over WRC at 10 o'clock.

George Gershwin's composition, "An American in Paris," will be played in its entirety by Freddie Rich and his 45-piece orchestra over WJSV at 8:45 o'clock. This work will occupy the entire quarter hour and will mark one of the few times that it will have been heard over the radio. The composition depicts the adventures of an American visitor to the French capital.

THE first performance of a new Christmas oratoria, "Voices of Millions," by Desidir d'Antaiffy, will be presented on the stage of Radio City Music Hall at 12:15 o'clock on Christmas Day as the first of a weekly series of symphonic concerts for the benefit of unemployed musicians. The concert will be broadcast in this country and by short-wave length to Europe. Erno Rapee will direct the performance.

The second concert of the series, to be given at the same hour on New Year's Day, will present Leopold Stokowski conducting the Radio City Music Hall Symphony Orchestra, augmented to 225 men, assisted by the Tuskegee Negro Choir. This concert will be open to the public and will also be broadcast.

John Corigliano, young Italian-American virtuoso who has been first violinist with Howard Barlow's symphony orchestra for the past four years and who recently returned from a concert tour with Chaliapin, will be the soloist with the orchestra during the concert to be broadcast at 11 o'clock tonight. He will be heard playing the first movement, "Allegro non troppo," from Lalo's Symphonie Espagnole.

The orchestra will open the program with the overture to Glinka's satirical opera, "Russian and Ludmilla." Following the violin solo, the program will include the "Colonial Song" of Grainger, "A la Cubana," a dance by Granados, and, in conclusion, the Scherzo from Mendelssohn's "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

JULIAN HUXLEY, famed scientist and biologist of King's College, London, will make several astounding predictions when he addresses a WJZ network audience at 9:30 o'clock tonight, discussing "Science in 2050" • • • Antobal's Cubana, just returned from London, will be on WJZ's wave length at 7:45 o'clock tonight. Antonio, the original peanut vender, will present a new tune, "The Ice Cream Man" • • • Oskar Shumsky, violinist, will be the soloist on the Curtis Symphony broadcast at 4:15 o'clock over WJSV, playing the solo violin sections of Chausson's concert for violin and piano soli with string quartet, Opus 21. Jennie Robinor will be heard in the piano solo passages.

About The Showshops

With NELSON B. BELL

WHEN the rapidly rising Mr. George Raft, not so long ago a dancer in Tex Guinan's night club in New York, becomes prevalent on both the Earle and Loew's Fox screens next week, in "Under Cover Man" and "Night After Night," respectively, he will have in his support in the latter that seasoned and veteran comedienne, Alison Skipworth, who paved the way for this sort of thing by the excellence of her performance—with the same young man, by the way—in "Madame Racketeer."

Alison Skipworth

Miss Skipworth's role in this picturization of one of Louis Bromfield's most highly charged romances should be immensely to her liking. It falls easily, as any one who has read the story will tell you, within the ample range of her amusingly aromatic capabilities. Mae West, Constance Cummings, Wynne Gibson, Roscoe Karns and Louis Calhern are the others associated with Mr. Raft in this story which ought to be right up his alley, dealing, as it does, with a night club and everything. "Under Cover Man" is not so far off the track beaten up that same alley, either, with Nancy Carroll and Lew Cody helpful in building up Mr. Raft's stellar stature.

But that isn't what I started out to say. What was on my mind—if any—was that it seems next to impossible—which is what cleanliness is often next to, instead of Godliness, since you bring the matter up—to induce this Mme. Alison Skipworth to talk about herself.

The last time the head man of our West Coast finger-on-the-pulse department attempted it, the best he got was a story about a book. You've heard the old gag about the star photographed among her book? Well, this isn't it.

"Somewhere, some one may have a fortune in his possession and not know it," is what Miss Skipworth really said. "In England more than 40 years ago, Oscar Wilde penned an epigram to me across the cover of one of his books. Wilde's epigram was written on a volume of fairy stories, 'The Happy Prince,' published in 1888. The inscription, as I remember it, was, 'Advice to a bride: never worry over trifles and still less over serious matters. It is impossible to exaggerate the unimportance of everything.'"

Wilde's advice, it did come out, was inspired by Alison's—aren't I the familiar one, though?—marriage to Frank Skipworth, English portrait artist. Several times collectors offered her large sums for the book, as it was one of the few privately printed pieces of Wilde's writing. One bid, Miss Skipworth revealed, was $20,000.

"Once, while moving, I misplaced the book, or else it was stolen," she said. "Anyway, it disappeared."

It might be a wise thing to look at your book when you go home and see if that is it!

Speaking of books, those ardent radio fans who had their ears glued to the loudspeakers Saturday afternoon at 2 had the unaccustomed privilege of hearing Helen Hoerle on the topic of her latest work, "The Girl and Her Future," as well as a vagrant thought or two on the present state of the theater, through WRC. Miss Hoerle, as of course you know, has been in Washington doing a little missionary work on behalf of "Blossom Time" and "The Student Prince," dividing Christmas week at the National. She even had the temerity while in-our-midsting to risk some of Royal Chef Charlie McClintock's cookerey as guest at a dinner party aboard old Skipper Frank P. Morse's S. S. Frantic, now docked—did I say dry-docked?—right around the corner on K street.

Permitting, in a moment of weakness, a little business to interfere with her pleasure as a Washington visitor, Miss Hoerle, who departed these shores last night, informed me that John Charles Gilbert, who plays the role of Schubert in "Blossom Time," appeared in the part for the 1,000th time last March 3, when the operetta closed its regular season. He knows it by heart. Also that Clarence Harvey, who appears as Tony in "The Student Prince," lays claim to the distinction of being the oldest living former Capitol page, although she couldn't tell which side it was on which he did his paging, House or Senate—or maybe Supreme Court.

And if it is Christmas week you're especially looking forward to—as who isn't?—don't be surprised if you learn shortly that Wesley Eddy will be back at Loew's Fox as a special stage attraction that week. That is the present expectation among those who ought to know. If he is, he will have as a working partner on the stage, Bert Frohman, who has not been seen locally since he mastered ceremonies at the Palace the week of last April 1, when Jean Harlow appeared in person at the corner of Thirteenth and F.

There is what Mr. Hayden and the rest of the boys in the trenches know as an employment opportunity practically staring some feminine vocalist right in the face, according to what drifts in to a dramatic desk.

It seems that on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Maxim Lowe is going to hold auditions at the Shoreham to select a soloist to be heard with the new Lowe Orchestra, with Bert Bernath conducting and Walter Scott Kolk acting as master of ceremonies, in the supper room, where the Shoreham Supper Club, to be operated on the buffet supper plan, will get going this Saturday night, December 17, and continue each Friday and Saturday night thereafter.

After the Thursday auditions have been held and successful candidates registered, the final winner, to be heard regularly with the orchestra, will be chosen by a board of judges tentatively planned to include the dramatic critics of the Washington press, who, for some reason, are apparently supposed to know what a night club canary should be like.

But the first thing is for all you girls with voices and aspiration to present yourselves to Mr. Lowe at the Shoreham Thursday and get yourselves heard. We'll find out about these dramatic critics later.

Master Herman Perlman, who executes at least 50 per cent of the drawings that appear on this page from time to time, last week so impressed the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer publicity department in New York that he sold "Bill" Ferguson a painting of the Barrymores in "Rasputin" and was commissioned on the spot to execute all the art work to be used in the press book to be issued to all film exchanges and exhibitors handling the picture in which Ethel and Lionel and John are starred. Who said there isn't any Santa Claus?

And that reminds me. Mrs. Rodney Toops, wife of the manager of the Loew Theater in New Orleans, was a Washington visitor yesterday, being piloted around through the slush by the executives of the local Loew enterprises.

Word comes from the West Coast that Wade Boteler, Lon Poff and Erville Alderson, veteran character actors, have been added to the cast of "Hello, Everybody!" the Paramount picture—renamed, as usual—in which Kate Smith is to be starred. The picture, adapted from a story by Fannie Hurst, is being directed by William A. Seiter, who is Mr. Laura La Plante.

The complete cast now includes Randolph Scott, Sally Blane, Charley Grapewin, George Barbier, Julia Swayne Gordon, Frank Darien, Jack Pennick, Jerry Tucker, Marguerite Campbell, Boteler, Poff and Alderson.

Hey, mister casting director, didn't you forget Ted Collins, or was that just a mass of malarkey?

I note in the dear old infallible and sacrosanct Herald's issue of Monday yawning, in an Albany dispatch, the announcement that "Immediately after arriving here, Roosevelt conferred with Lieut. Gov. Yehman on legislative matters. . . ."

What! "Yes men" already and March 4 still three months away?

Norbeck Calls Meeting Of Banking Committee

(Associated Press.)

A call for a meeting today of the Senate banking committee, which is engaged in an investigation of the New York stock market, was issued yesterday by Chairman Norbeck.

Norbeck said the committee would meet in executive session to plan its work for the session. He announced some time ago that as a result of agents' work during the summer it was ready to proceed at once with its inquiry.

FIRST LADY ATTENDS CHALIAPIN RECITAL

Noted Basso Wins Rounds of Warm Applause, as Does John Corigliano.

Feodor Chaliapin, premier basso, actor and operatic star, came, saw and conquered musical Washington again yesterday afternoon when he appeared in a recital here for the first time in several years under the local auspices of Mrs. Wilson-Greene.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover and a party of friends occupied the stage box. Mrs. Hoover was foremost in starting the ovation for Chaliapin which spread quickly over the house upon his first appearance yesterday. The singer bowed his thanks, first to Mrs. Hoover, and then shook hands with himself, Chinese fashion, in greeting and appreciation as he bowed to the four corners of the auditorium.

Assisting M. Chaliapin in the program was John Corigliano, violinist, whose golden touch on the violin made up an enjoyable portion of the musical feast of the afternoon. At the piano Iwan Basilesky, a countryman of Chaliapin, was an acceptable accompanist for both artists.

The charm that is Chaliapin, both vocally and histrionically, has not forsaken him with the years. The first few notes were enough to enthrall the audience. It remained spellbound by his genius until after several final encores he indicated that his tired throat would not permit of further largesse.

Among the numbers he sang were those intimately associated with his name and fame: "The King and Peasant" song by T. Koeneman, the stirring "Midnight Review," by Glinka, when his impersonation of Napoleon was so vivid as to be almost startling, "The Old Corporal," and last but not least, Moussorgsky's "Song of the Flea."

Chaliapin's operatic ability was shown in an aria from Mozart's "Don Juan," while in the rest of his program different facets of his art were visible, all contributing their part to one of the most notable concerts of the early season.

The good work of Corigliano can not be passed over. From the Tartini-Kreisler "Fugue in A Major" to the adorable "Lotus Land," by Cyril Scott, the artistry of his phrasing, the mellow voice of his instrument and the impeccable bowing proved him a fitting artist to be with Chaliapin on his present tour of the United States.

Nation-Wide Groups Fix Plans to Sponsor Peace

The formation of committees interrelated to form a Nation-wide organization will be the plan of the National Council for Prevention of War in the accomplishment of their aims toward world peace, it was announced yesterday.

This plan differs in the previous programs of the organization in that while their efforts in the past have been devoted to an educational program, the new project contemplates the voicing of accumulated public sentiment.

THE THEATER LAST NIGHT

NATIONAL

"THERE'S ALWAYS JULIET." A comedy in three acts by John Van Druten, presented as the second subscription play of the American Theater Society. Settings designed by Laurence Irving; staged by Arthur Gould-Porter.

THE CAST.

Leonora Perrycoste.....Violet Heming
Florence.....Lillian Brennard Tongue
Dwight Houston.....Roger Pryor
Peter Walmsley...John Graham Spacey

By NELSON B. BELL.

Almost matching Roi Cooper Megrue's achievement, in "Tea for Two," of making an intimate romantic comedy interesting and enlivening by introducing only three characters, John Van Druten, the youthful English playwright, in "There's Always Juliet," accomplishes a similarly amiable and fascinating result by employing only four.

Fashioning his dialogue with a glib and literate facility which frequently blinds the mind's eye to the absence of physical movement by its sheer sparkle nad spontaneity, Mr. Van Druten has contrived a simple love story, light as eiderdown, capricious as a maiden's fancy and as refreshing as the first breath of spring. While he has exercised a rigid economy of character, scene and action, he has been profligate in his lavish expenditure of humor, the exquisite torture of perfect love and a naive and ingratiating quality of sophistication.

The play's delightful disclosures are founded upon the dire consequences that can result when kindred and sympathetic spirits spy each other across a serving table at a casual cocktail party in London's West End. If one is an aristocratic, or at least sheltered, young English woman and the other an adventurous and handsome young American architect, it is practically inevitable that the former will discover the latter upon her doorstep, if not in her drawing room, before the day is over. That is the way it happens here.

There is no intrusion upon the intoxicating radiance of their newfound love, save only by Leonora Perrycoste's maid and another of her admirers, appealed to as an empty and sorry solace when all seems lost. But these two are enough to lend point and counterpoint to a pithy and pungent, if powder-puff, mirroring of love's young dream as it expresses itself in the discreet impetuosity of modern youth—an engaging and a diverting bit of frivol, bereft of every vestige of any other purpose than to amuse and rich in a rare power of charm.

The play is rather more Miss Violet Heming's than it is Mr. Roger Pryor's, although both have been admirably served by Mr. Van Druten. It is only that Miss Heming's is slightly the more expository role of the two. Both are deftly, naturally and disarmingly played—Miss Heming, whimsical, cautious and subtly witty; Mr. Pryor, ardent, quizzical and contagiously enthusiastic. A nicer balance, as the evening wore on, than was presaged, perhaps, by the first diffident and staccato scene.

Lillian Brennard Tongue, as Florence, the elderly housekeeper, watching over Miss Leonora in the absence of her parents at a French spa, is a source of much of the less sprightly of the comedy's shrewdly paced movement, and John Graham Spacey acquits himself particularly well in the one scene in which he vapidly attempts to take the place of Leonora's supposedly departed lover.

The single setting of the sitting room in Miss Perrycoste's West End apartment is as bright and cheery as the brittle little charade for which it supplies the background.

The American Theater Society is to be congratulated upon the happy choice of "There's Always Juliet" as the second of its season's subscription offerings.

GAYETY

"AUTO GIRLS REVUE." An Empire Burlesque attraction, featuring Sam Raynor, Bimbo Davis, Bee Keller, "Buster" Phillips, the Reed Sisters, Lee Hickman and the Misses St. Clair and DeMuth. Reviewed Monday night by George H. Barrows.

We have no hesitation in placing our stamp of complete approval on the "Auto Girls Revue," now current at Washington's only burlesque theater. The show is unusually tuneful; scenic effects are far better than ordinary and the costumes of the chorus disulay both variety and beauty.

It is to Lee Hickman, however, that we theoretically doff our hat for his splendid portrayal of the judge, the prosecuting attorney and the defense attorney—all at one time—in a highly amusing courtroom scene. With this comedy bit entitled "The One Man Court," and with the "Bottle Scene," by Sam Raynor, Hickman and Kennear, this show gives a glimpse of the real old-time burlesque rather than the unvarnished "girly-girly" show that is so much accepted at the present moment.

The Reed Sisters and the team of Garrigan and DeMuth give a flavoring of clever dances, while Bee Keller and "Buster" Phillips win much applause with several specialty appearances.

With minor exceptions the "Auto Girls Revue" can be most aptly termed a creditable musical comedy, and, as previously intimated, it is far above the usual run of burlesque exhibitions.

If the present company continues to display the improvement so noticeable in its second week at the Gayety, burlesque patrons may look forward to a season of swell entertainment.

LINDSTROM IS TRADED TO PIRATES IN 3-CLUB DEAL

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

WHILE the American League club owners continue to ponder the suggestion that more player trades would stimulate the tune of the turnstiles, the National League continues to hog the headlines by the simple expedient of substituting actions for ideas.

The three-club deal involving five players of the Giants, Pirates and Phillies yesterday is but another example of the National League's free-handed trading policy that has served so well to maintain public interest in the second-division cities while the American League's lower flight of clubs are left on their own by the leaders.

The willingness of the National League to engage in player deals last season made a financial success of the tail-end Cincinnati Club for half the campaign and directly contributed to the coffers of every other club in the league during that period. This year the American League magnates admit that one sure cure for the depressionistic gate receipts would be a revival of second-division interest by means of trades, but they continue to laugh off reports of deals.

Trading of Lindstrom Long Forecast.

The departure of Freddie Lindstrom from the Giants has been forecast for some time, particularly since Manager Bill Terry was given full authority to dismantle the entire Giant line-up if he chose.

Lindstrom's slump of last season, when he batted only .270 after being converted from a third baseman into an outfielder, is attributed to a keen disappointment he is said to have felt when Terry was elevated to the management of the club after John McGraw's resignation.

It had been freely reported that Lindstrom was to be the man to succeed McGraw when the latter stepped down from his managerial duties and the fact that Terry selected Lindstrom as his first trading material dignifies those reports.

While Lindstrom was never noted for being headstrong or kicking over the traces of discipline, it is significant, too, perhaps, that he was the player who led a quasi rebellion against the acting managership of Hornsby when the latter player was temporarily relieving McGraw a few seasons ago.

Miami U. in Hands . . Of Receivers.

Chick Meehan, who left New York University to get away from the "high-pressure" football that he said was tearing down instead of building up the character of the college boys, is preparing his Manhattan College team for the Christmas-week game with the University of Miami in Florida, which proves two things.

First, Meehan apparently didn't mean all that he said about getting away from the "high-pressure" football, for the game with Miami was scheduled by Meehan in midseason in the knowledge that it would be a post-season game. Meehan may not choose to call keeping his boys in training an extra month "high pressure" stuff, but inasmuch as there is no championship to be decided, no charity involved, the game smacks very much of exploitation.

Second, the game proves that even though a college is in the hands of receivers, as Miami was adjudged last week, its football team still operates on schedule. Miami University is $350,000 in debt. That may be the reason for the game. But Miami should be an overwhelming favorite to win. With the entire university in the hands of receivers, Manhattan had best watch out for Miami's passing attack.

Wood Defeats Espinosa In Final

Ohio Pro Beaten by 2 and 1 for Title on West Coast.

Wood Evens Fight by Sinking Chip Shot on 31st Green.

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Forging into the lead with a subpar finish his rival could not match, Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., defeated Al Espinosa, of Akron, Ohio, 2 and 1, today in the 36-hole final of the San Francisco national match play open golf championship.

The pair fought through two rounds of close golf, with Espinosa holding a slight advantage for the morning eighteen. The Akron pro completed the first round 1 up. Wood squared matters at the twentieth and they halved nine holes in a row in a stroke-for-stroke battle that gave the gallery of several hundred fans many thrills during the closing stages.

Sinks 35-Foot Chip Shot.

At the thirtieth hole Espinosa moved into the lead again, but the blond star from New Jersey evened up the count on the next green. He sank a 35-foot chip shot to post a birdie two against his opponent's par three.

For the first time during the match Wood went into the lead as he won the thirty-second with a par 4. Espinosa had a bad lie on his second shot and was forced to waste a stroke.

They halved the thirty-third and thirty-fourth and Wood clinched the match on the next hole by running down a 15-foot putt for birdie 4. Espinosa's 10-foot putt for the half that would have kept him in the running rimmed the cup, giving him a par 5.

While the weather warmed up a bit during the afternoon play after a cold morning, the fairways and greens failed to thaw out and the golf exhibited by the finalists was not of championship caliber except on the incoming nine. On the home stretch, Wood was 1 under par, while Espinosa was a stroke over standard figures.

Wood hauled down $516.89 as the winner's share of the $2,500 purse. Espinosa received $344.60. The balance of the purse was scaled down among the other match play competitors.

Espinosa Gains Early Lead.

In the morning round Espinosa played slightly better golf to hold a 1 up advantage at the ninth and he completed the 18 still maintaining this margin.

Espinosa shot a 79, 8 over par, against a morning score of 80 for Wood.

Pitches failed to hold while the glassy greens made accurate putting almost an impossibility. Wood picked up twice on the first nine after his approach shots had skidded off the greens and putts overran the cup. The New Jersey entrant had a 42, 7 over standard figures, on the outgoing stretch. Espinosa totaled 41 for the same trip. They improved slightly coming in, each posting a 38, 2 over par.

Carnera and Levinsky Are Now Stablemates

Chicago, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Walter Friedman, manager of Primo Carnera, has signed an agreement to pilot Chicago's former fish peddler, King Levinsky, in his future ring wars.

Mrs. Lena Levy, sister-manager of the Kingfish, said she would retain an active interest in Levinsky's boxing affairs, but that she believed her brother would have more advantages under Friedman.

Levinsky fought Carnera for the second time last Friday night and lost the decision.

VINES-GLEDHILL WIN.

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill today defeated John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, 10—8, 6—4, 7—5, in the all-American finals of the Victoria doubles tennis championship.

Niblick Is Golfer's Friend in Need

Ted Johnson, Post Staff Photographer.

Al Treder illustrates the execution of the niblick shot. At left he is pictured as he starts the clubhead into the ball. At right, the start of the follow-through with ball seen lofted into the air.

By AL TREDER
(Manor Club Professional),
As Told to Dave Herman, Post Staff Golf Writer.

THE niblick, more than any club in his bag, is the golfer's friend in need. It is the implement with which the golfer combats trouble already visited upon him and the club that demands probably the most courage in the execution, in that the conditions of the shot are usually extremely hazardous.

It is one of the few clubs in the bag that is played with a full swing from 75 yards, with variations of the swing and stance up to 10 yards from the green.

Start the club back with the left hand, bringing the head of the club low and straight back for a short distance until the body begins to turn, with a shift of the weight. Continue bringing the club back with the left hand to a fairly upright position.

Do not put any tension on the left arm muscles; keep the body relaxed to insure perfect balance and the feel of the club. Allow the wrist to bend at the top before starting down. The first motion of the downward swing should be a pull with the left hand and arms, with the right arm in a relaxed position bent close to the body.

Wait until the hands are in line with the ball before applying the right hand, which is done with a rolling forward motion over the left. At the moment of impact the weight is distributed evenly, with the right heel about to leave the ground. Remember to keep the head still not only on the back swing, but also on the follow through, until the ball is well on its flight. This will eliminate the possibility of lunging at the ball.

BENNY BASS WINS.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Benny Bass, Philadelphia lightweight, stopped Dominick Petrone, of New York, in the third round of their 10-round bout at the St. Nicholas arena tonight.

Bass floored Petrone for a count of three and again for no count in the first round and belabored him lustily through the second and third rounds until the referee halted the uneven match after 2 minutes 44 seconds of the latter session.

MACK FACES LANDERS TONIGHT

Match Tops Program of Alexandria Nursery Ring Show.

BILLY LANDERS, of Norfolk, Va., and Jimmy Mack, of Philadelphia, will return to their ring wars at Portner's Arena tonight to match brain and brawn in an eight-round match that will top the weekly boxing program for the benefit of the Alexandria Day Nursery.

The Landers-Mack bout will be one of three eight-rounders that will be offered fight fans. Johnny Edwards, 118-pound native of Huntington, W. Va., facing Dick Welsh, of Norfolk, in what might be termed the semi-windup, and K. O. Tony Stetz, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., battling Arthur DeBeve, one-time French lightweight champion, in another scrap slated to travel the same distance.

Tonight's triple-barreled program marks the first time this season Matchmaker Frankie Mann has attempted to present as many eight-round duels on one card.

Barefoot Green To Show.

Hostilities will get under way at 8:30 o'clock, with Fredericksburg's farmboy sensation, Barefoot Green, throwing his 170 pounds against Charlie Estes, of Walter Reed Hospital, in a four-round opener. Making his pro debut at Portner's two weeks ago after a string of ten straight knockouts as a simon-pure, Green flattened Johnny Perussi in the third round.

Landers, familiarly known as the buzz-saw," fought at Portner's on January 12, losing an eight-rounder to Midget Wolgast, flyweight champion. A few months later he whipped Benny Schwartz and then dusted Joe Pino, Mexican bantamweight champion. In July he fought two more scraps with Schwartz, winning an eight-rounder and losing a sternly contested ten-rounder, both at Twin City. Since the latter match he has not appeared in this section.

Drew Record Crowd With De Angelo.

HEAVY HOME SCHEDULE FOR G. W.

1933 Eleven to Play 8 or 9 Games at Griffith Stadium.

GEORGE Washington University's 1933 football team will play either eight or nine home games next year, Coach Jimmy Pixlee announced last night upon arrival from the annual meeting of the Southern Conference with the signed contracts of Tennessee, Auburn and Clemson in his brief case.

This unprecedented number of home games is a continuation of a policy established this fall of bringing first-rate football attractions to Washington, a revolutionary step in the face of a popular notion that Washington is a poor "crowd" town, and a step which saw G. W.'s attendance figures jump 300 per cent to lead the Nation's football teams in the matter of percentage increase in popularity.

Glory Lacking Outside Of District.

Another reason advanced for the leaning toward home games is that the new-found football glory of the Colonials is still lacking in highly redeemable value outside of Washington. But in the District the position of G. W. at the top of District colleges in the way of attendance-provoking grid spectacles has long since been thoroughly established.

Pixlee also stated last night that efforts to bring the University of Florida 'Gators to Washington next Thanksgiving are just about closed—with success. If Florida is added to the Colonial schedule, that list will loom as the most ambitious ever attempted by a local school. Although official word is still lacking, it now seems a certainty that among the other schools represented on the next year's schedule are Missouri, Washington and Jefferson, Tulsa, Westminster, Delaware and perhaps Pop Warner's new employer, Temple.

McManus to Continue As Red Sox Manager

Boston, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—President Bob Quinn, of the Boston American League Baseball Club, today issued a statement saying he planned to continue Marty McManus as manager of the Red Sox during 1933 and never had any intention of displacing him.

"McManus took over the most thoroughly demoralized ball club that ever existed and was assured by some of the wise ones the club would not win ten games the rest of the season," Quinn said.

"He whipped that club into pretty fair shape and I feel it he could do as good as he did under such circumstances he can take the club we have now and have it finish somewhere other than last place."

McManus, an infielder, took over management of the Red Sox last June after the resignation of John Collins.

Majors Veto 'Pooling' of Players

Reject Proposal to Balance Strength of Clubs.

Nat-Yankee Deal Is Laughed Off by Club Owners.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—By way of inaugurating the "week of the fallen arches," otherwise known as the annual meetings of the major baseball leagues, club owners made the first moves today in effecting a general policy of economy and retrenchment for the 1933 season.

In a session that lasted all afternoon and most of the evening in the smoke-filled headquarters of President William Harridge of the American League, the joint "steering" committees of the two big leagues debated a number of drastic proposals, including further reduction of the player limit, banishment of the radio from all games except the world series, and even a rescaling of admission prices to meet current conditions.

The meeting, attended by four club owners of each circuit in addition to President Harridge and President John A. Heydler, of the National League, paved the way for three-day convention, to be concluded Thursday with a joint meeting of the two leagues.

Yanks and Washington Laugh off Rumors.

The magnates have tabled any proposition to "pool" their player resources, in the interests of bringing about more balanced club strength, especially in the American League, but managers took up the hunt for much-needed talent in the lobbies, led by Bill Terry, of the Giants.

Terry lost no time getting down to business with his three-cornered deal with the Pirates and Phils, but most of the other discussions led nowhere. The Yankees and Washington club both laughed off any suggestions of exchanging Ben Chapman for Heinie Manush, a brace of outfielders, and Bill Killefer, pilot of the St. Louis Browns, denied reports his star catcher, "Rick" Ferrell, was on the block.

Meanwhile the club owners canvassed recommendations for lowering the player limit by having the present limit of 23 include the team coaches, although not the manager. Naturally wealthier clubs, such as the world champion Yankees and Chicago Cubs, do not favor further curtailment of their forces, but they are willing to go along with the majority in the interest of economy.

Nats May Get Special Ruling on Altrock.

If it is decided to exempt the coaches, the player limit may be cut to 22 as an alternative measure. Several clubs already have cut down their coachidg staff for 1933, but Washington will keep the famous team of Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, even if it is necessary to get special dispensation or designation for Nick as an official comedian.

In diagnosing baseball's ills, major league owners appear inclined to regard conditions as purely temporary and due to general business depression. Several of the more aggressive leaders, however, want drastic measures taken to relieve the financial strain as well as to help second-division clubs now "in the red." More showmanship, more player shifts and lower admission prices, including 25-cent bleacher seats, are included in the proposals.

"There is no use kidding ourselves this isn't a business," said one of the club presidents today. "We've got to cut expenses but we also must put on the best show we can."

Magnates meeting today as a "steering" committee were Col. Jacob Ruppert, New York Yankees; L. C. McEvoy, St. Louis Browns; Frank J. Navin, Detroit; Alva Bradley, Cleveland; Charles A. Stoneham, New York Giants; Emil E. Fuchs, Boston Braves; William Veeck, Chicago Cubs, and Samuel Breadon, St. Louis Cardinals.

Col. Parker Speaks At G. W. Banquet

Man Who Helped in Grid Rise of Tennessee Will Address Gathering.

Col. Paul B. Parker, the old Army lineman (1912-1915), who went down to the University of Tennessee nearly a decade ago and founded a new deal in athletics for the backwoodsmen, will be the principal speaker at the football banquet George Washington University's suddenly resurrected alumni will present to the Colonial grid squad tomorrow night at the Mayflower.

Col. Parker has been the guiding light, and Maj. Bob Neyland the motivating force of Tennessee's unparalleled record of the past seven years, a period during which the Volunteers have won 60 games, lost 2 and tied 4. The team makes its first appearance in Washington next fall, meeting G. W.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university, and Coach Jim Pixlee are among the remaining speakers. The alumni are being rounded up in great numbers by Gilbert Hall, former general president of the graduated body.

A round of entertainment has been planned, including music and a quartet from G. W.'s nationally known glee club. Tickets for the banquet, which is strictly informal and stag, may be obtained at the athletic office of the university. Activities start at 8 o'clock.

Phils Also Figure in Swap, Receiving Two Outfielders With Giants Gaining Davis

FREDDY LINDSTROM.

Pirates Also Give Up Pitcher Spencer to New York Club.

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—A three-way trade involving players from the New York Giants, Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Phillies was consummated today, it was announced by James W. Tierney, secretary of the Giants.

Under the agreement, the Giants part with two players and get a similar number in return from the Phillies and the Pirates. The Pirates get one new player and the Phillies two.

The Giants will release Freddie Lindstrom, outfielder, who will go to the Pittsburgh Pirates, and Charles "Chick" Fullis, also an outfielder, to Philadelphia. In return, the Giants will get George Davis, Philadelphia outfielder, and Glenn Spencer, Pittsburgh pitcher.

Dugan Goes to Phils.

Augustin Dugas, Pittsburgh outfielder, will go to Philadelphia and in return the Phillies will part with a small amount of cash.

The deal is only the beginning of what baseball men believe will be the greatest week of bargaining the leagues have ever seen.

The trade involving Lindstrom is the most significant.

Lindstrom came to the Giants in 1924 from Toledo. He was then an infielder and was one of the stars of the world series in that same year, batting .333 in seven games.

In 1925 he fell below the .300 mark, but for the next six years he was well above that point, reaching his high-water mark in 1930 with .379.

This season he was converted into an outfielder and had a batting average of .2705. Lindstrom is 26 and bats and throws right-handed.

His acceptance by the Pirates was forecast several days ago when it became known that Pittsburgh was interested in securing another hard-hitting outfielder to join the Waner brothers combination.

Chick Fullis, the other Giant to be traded, is also a right-hander. This season he was a regular outfielder and batted .2978.

Davis May Replace Lindstrom.

George Davis, the outfielder from Philadelphia, will probably replace Lindstrom. He bats and throws right-handed and was among the first twenty batters this year in his league. His average was .309.

Glenn Spencer is a right-handed pitcher. He came to the Pirates in 1930 and for the last two years served in a relief role. This year he won four games and lost eight. His losing contests, however, came during the terrific slump which the Pirates suffered.

Dugas came from Kansas City this season and played in 55 games. He bats and throws left-handed. His batting average this year was .2871.

INVESTIGATE KENTUCKY SPORTS

Probe Is Ordered by President; Students Accuse Coach.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Investigation of the athletic situation at the University of Kentucky was ordered today by President Frank L. McVey in response to student demands which followed the football team's worst season in six years. The inquiry will cover business, financial and coaching affairs of the athletic department.

The Kernel, college magazine, recently started a series of editorials in which it said it would "seek out the causes and motives behind the much-bruited charges of inefficiency, incompetence and isolation of the present system of athletic management, determine the truthfulness and soundness of the basis of these charges and promote necessary reorganizations of the athletic system."

Political Machine Built By Coach, Charged.

Unsigned leaflets charging Coach Harry Gamage with having built up a "political machine" and saying he had engineered the election of the last three football captains, including that of Howard ("Dutch") Kreuter, of Newport, Ky., newly elected 1933 captain, were distributed on the campus last week.

The university football team lost five and won four games this season, winding up with a 26-to-0 drubbing by Tennessee Thanksgiving Day.

In Paducah today to attend a football banquet, Coach Gamage commented that the airing of the charges had shown that "a man has more friends than his attackers thought he had" and added, "My friends are rallying to my support." Gamage's five-year contract has another year to run.

Three Grid Teams In Stop at Tucson

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Three football squads, two headed for an invasion of the South and the third returning home from the Pacific Coast, halted here briefly today. They were the University of California at Los Angeles, en route to Gainesville to play Florida next Saturday; the University of Oregon, bound for Baton Rouge to engage Louisiana State, and Notre Dame, defeated by Southern California.

Pirates Sign Waner Brothers at Increase

Pittsburgh, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Signing of the two Waner brothers—"Big Poison" and "Little Poison"—to Pittsburgh Pirate contracts calling for increased pay became known tonight.

Last year, Paul and Lloyd Waner received decreases in line with the general policy throughout the big leagues.

Paul is reported to have signed for slightly less than $15,000 and Lloyd for about $12,000.

PASCUMA AND M'LAREN HURT IN SPILLS AT JEFFERSON PARK

Feature Race Is Won by Blue-Law

Mills, Gilbert Each Ride a Winner in Jockey Title Race.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—A crowd conservatively estimated at 6,000, free guests of the local management, came in for a number of thrills here this afternoon, but the excitement was not all of the pleasant variety. In the fourth race, Tony Pascuma had a bad fall from his mount, Nuhat, which went through a gap in the rail, with the jockey receiving a possible broken right foot. Then, in the featured fifth event, J. McLaren and his mount Easy, went down in the run to the first turn, the boy sustaining a broken collar bone.

Thistle Fyrn, another starter in the fifth, also stumbled and nearly fell at the far turn. The horses, Nuhat and Easy, escaped injury.

Mills and Gilbert Each Ride Winner.

Hank Mills and Johnny Gilbert, battling for the jockey championship, each rode a winner today. Gilbert earned a tight verdict astride Sweet Lacruse in the second contest, chalking up his 190th score, with Mills shooting his 187th winning mount home, when he scored on Blue Law in the feature. Blue Law reached the judges a neck before Jeanne Wachs, while Huraway was third in a blanket finish. The winner paid $5.60, and his time for the mile and one-sixteenth was 1:47 1-5.

Blue Law was badly outrun early, but Mills got him into his stride after 6 furlongs, and the favorite came around the leaders to register his fourth straight triumph at the local track.

The talent started off with a reverse when Judge Lueders, despite good handling, lost a neck decision to Luckpiece, the latter returning $11.80 for a $2 ticket. Elizabeth S. was a fast-closing third. Jockey C. Hooper took his time before sending Luckpiece after the leaders, but his mount had plenty of run in him, and in a final drive wore down the favorite to win going away. Johnny Gilbert had Scalia close to the pace from the start, but the filly tired in the stretch and finished fourth.

Stop Gap Much the Best In Third.

Stop Gap, well played, was much the best of the platers in the third event, registering by four lengths to return $9.20. Mekachee nosed Hatsola out of the place award. The second and third horses were used up in their desperate duel for the leadership in the first 6 furlongs and Stop Gap found it a simple task to run over them when his rider called on him entering the stretch.

The winner was Lerack, which assumed command after Nuhat ran out of the track, to score by three lengths at $15.40 for $2. Chat Eagle took the place a neck before Col. Cloister. The latter was catching Chat Eagle at the end, but neither could menace Lerack.

The sixth race was run to order for Bill Looney, which came from behind to drive home by a length at odds of $12.60 for $2. Anne L, was four spans in advance of Most Wise for the place. Flying Don, a fast stopper, set a dizzy pace into the stretch where he curled up all of a sudden and left the main issue up to Bill Looney and Anne L, the latter giving way in the closing strides.

Mike Apperdi Leads Tech Eleven in 1933

Coach Hap Hardell last night announced the appointment of Mike Apperdi as captain of the 1933 Tech High School Football Team. Apperdi, a half back, played a prominent role in helping the Maroon and Gray win its fifth consecutive championship in the season just ended. He is a junior. In making the announcement of Apperdi's appointment, Hardell let it be known that it was in line with his policy to have boys with a "mike" in their name lead the gridders. Al Meiklejohn was captain during the past season.

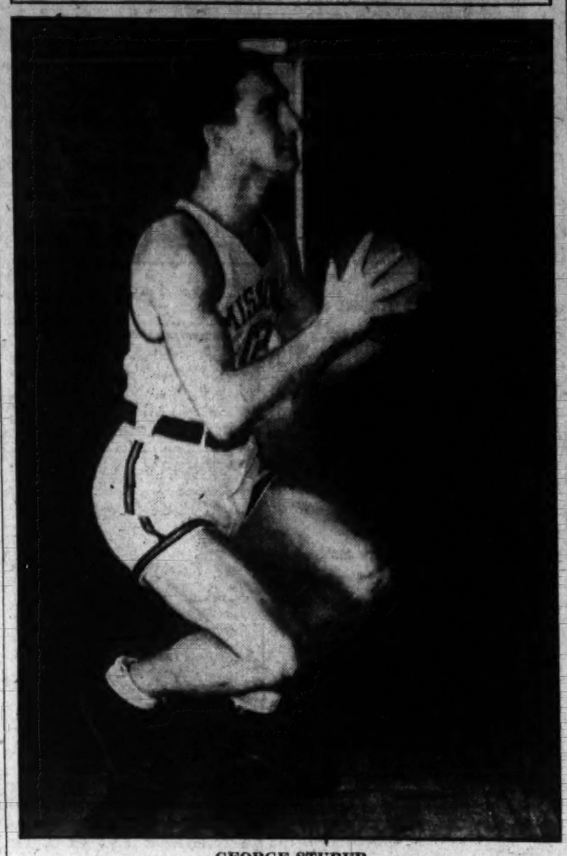
Clever Shot of Missouri Quintet



GEORGE STUBER,

Missouri's regular football quarter back of the past three seasons is transferring his winter's activities to the basket ball court and will be seen in action here Thursday when Missouri meets the George Washington five.

Boyd Grooms Veteran Tech Five for Scholastic Series

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

KNUTE ROCKNE used to complain that after a player had been on the Notre Dame football squad two or there years it became increasingly difficult to exhort the men to greater efforts when addressing them between the halves of a game because they knew almost to a word what he would say.

But Rockne had nothing on Artie Boyd, Tech basket ball coach, for three members of the present Tech squad have been with the team three years, entering their fourth this season, and four others are beginning their third.

Waverly Wheeler, Bernie Reichardt and Joe Miller are beginning their fourth year under Boyd, while Karl Nau, "Little Knockney" Thomas, Jimmy Reed and "Swede" Olverson are starting their third. With the exception of Nau, Olverson and Miller, all are regulars.

"It's getting so bad they think they are assistant coaches," Boyd said yesterday. "Consequently when they get into the series they'll lose everything but their shirts, and they're liable to lose them if they are not sewed on."

But as the panting young gentlemen started on their tenth lap around Tech's ample gym it was quite apparent that they heartily disagreed with the coach.

Boyd is building for next year and the year after that, for his present crop of courtmen graduate in June, with the lone exception of Dan Daly, center.

When Everett Russell departed from Tech last spring the school lost one of the greatest basket ball players it has ever turned out. Russell was 50 per cent of its scoring power, and he will be missed this season. The return of Jimmy Reed, who was scholastically ineligible the best part of last season, places Tech high on the list of contenders for the championship.

Dan Daly was hurriedly rushed into center when Reed was declared out last year, an incident that cost the Maroon and Gray the title. Daly, although absolutely raw in court etiquette at the start, improved rapidly, and this year he will continue at the tap-off job, while Reed will be shifted to guard.

District Grid Officials At Banquet Tomorrow

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: JEFFERSON PARK, DEC. 12.

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party. I started to write that sentence about four times, sign "Bill" and let you have it. In fact, that's about all I can say about my selections for today. They fell down, they made a lot of moves on the back stretch, they passed tired horses, they were off well, they were poorly ridden, they were short and they were all beaten, and I don't mean by noses. Yes sir, Mrs. Benning's boy was blanked, shut out, skunked or what would you suggest? My only excuse is that I'm all tired out from running to the pay-off windows last week. Well, pal, let's quit talking results and concentrate on entries. Providing I've still got the job, this will be in the paper.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—QUARTERDECK, twitch and all, to take this opener. Has his bearing here now and has been burning up the course in trials. BUCK HERO is in rare form, but might need a little more distance. Also totes top weight. WATCH GIRL for the show.

SECOND RACE—TOMBEREAU certainly outfigures this gang but whether or not he'll outstep them at a short price remains to be seen. VLADIMIR and NOON PLAY for the rest of it.

THIRD RACE—BLACK FLASH gains my backing. May favor this longer route and has given the timers the heebie jeebies with his trials. If I must name two others they'll have to be JOE MACAW and NEXT CALL.

FOURTH RACE—PRECEDE will have to be beaten here before they can hang up any other number. Likes the course and is at tops. THISTLE ACE may be second. BILL NORA showed me some fine early speed in Maryland and I'll give him a chance for the show end.

FIFTH RACE—It's just possible that this is the spot for LA SALLE. I've been patient with this one. CAMP BOSS may not fancy the fast track. PROMETHEUS for the lesser award.

SIXTH RACE—PORTAM beat me once before when I referred to his unsound legs. Has been fairly reliable since. TRIPLE THREAT may be the one to upset the top fellow. ST. MICA to beat the rest.

Mills, Gilbert Each Ride a Winner in Jockey Title Race.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—A crowd conservatively estimated at 6,000, free guests of the local management, came in for a number of thrills here this afternoon, but the excitement was not all of the pleasant variety. In the fourth race, Tony Pascuma had a bad fall from his mount, Nuhat, which went through a gap in the rail, with the jockey receiving a possible broken right foot. Then, in the featured fifth event, J. McLaren and his mount Easy, went down in the run to the first turn, the boy sustaining a broken collar bone.

Thistle Fyrn, another starter in the fifth, also stumbled and nearly fell at the far turn. The horses, Nuhat and Easy, escaped injury.

Mills and Gilbert Each Ride Winner.

Hank Mills and Johnny Gilbert, battling for the jockey championship, each rode a winner today. Gilbert earned a tight verdict astride Sweet Lacruse in the second contest, chalking up his 190th score, with Mills shooting his 187th winning mount home, when he scored on Blue Law in the feature. Blue Law reached the judges a neck before Jeanne Wachs, while Huraway was third in a blanket finish. The winner paid $5.60, and his time for the mile and one-sixteenth was 1:47 1-5.

Blue Law was badly outrun early, but Mills got him into his stride after 6 furlongs, and the favorite came around the leaders to register his fourth straight triumph at the local track.

The talent started off with a reverse when Judge Lueders, despite good handling, lost a neck decision to Luckpiece, the latter returning $11.80 for a $2 ticket. Elizabeth S. was a fast-closing third. Jockey C. Hooper took his time before sending Luckpiece after the leaders, but his mount had plenty of run in him, and in a final drive wore down the favorite to win going away. Johnny Gilbert had Scalia close to the pace from the start, but the filly tired in the stretch and finished fourth.

Stop Gap Much the Best In Third.

Stop Gap, well played, was much the best of the platers in the third event, registering by four lengths to return $9.20. Mekachee nosed Hatsola out of the place award. The second and third horses were used up in their desperate duel for the leadership in the first 6 furlongs and Stop Gap found it a simple task to run over them when his rider called on him entering the stretch.

The winner was Lerack, which assumed command after Nuhat ran out of the track, to score by three lengths at $15.40 for $2. Chat Eagle took the place a neck before Col. Cloister. The latter was catching Chat Eagle at the end, but neither could menace Lerack.

The sixth race was run to order for Bill Looney, which came from behind to drive home by a length at odds of $12.60 for $2. Anne L, was four spans in advance of Most Wise for the place. Flying Don, a fast stopper, set a dizzy pace into the stretch where he curled up all of a sudden and left the main issue up to Bill Looney and Anne L, the latter giving way in the closing strides.

SAINTS OPEN TODAY WITH EASTERN

THREE games are listed for high school and prep teams today, but only two of these are for local consumption. Central's squad departs at noon for Baltimore, where it encounters Mount St. Joseph's later in the afternoon. Locally, St. John's opens its campaign with Eastern and Alexandria invades Roosevelt for a tilt with the Teddybears.

Cadet hopes for victory over the powerful Eastern quintet, already alim, were dealt a serious blow yesterday when it was learned that Paul Skelly would be lost to the team, temporarily, owing to a death in his family. Skelly, who had clinched a regular job at forward, is fast and has a dead eye for the basket.

Coach Jack Dunn plans to start Smith and Simone at forwards, McCarthy at center, and Parkhill and Stanley at guards. Of the five, McCarthy is the only veteran. He was all-prep center last season. St. John's lost Scanlon, Hartnett, Fred Scheele and Breen through graduation.

Cadets Have Fast Players.

The current edition hailing from Vermont avenue is fast and fairly accurate in scoring, but a weak sister in comparison with the team that battled its way through stiff competition to the prep school championship last season in a tournament conducted by The Post.

It will be Eastern's second game. The Light Blue made an impressive debut last week, plastering a 35-23 defeat on the Boys Club. All the team needs is an experienced center to make it one of the most powerful of all recent teams turned out at Lincoln Park.

Roosevelt demonstrated that it will not be the weak sister in this year's title chase by handing Emerson's rangy team a 23-18 lacing in its debut last week. The Teddybears will be handicapped by their height, as there is not one man on the squad who can be called tall, but all are smooth, hard-working players and will earn their share of victories.

Cavanaugh, Sherman, Scherr, Black and Harris are the most promising courtmen under Coach Lynn Woodworth's wing at this time, but Woody has a number of other ambitious youngsters who may muscle in on a regular position.

The time-worn excuse, little is known of the strength of the visitors, &c., must be used again this time.

Pitt Starts Drills For S. California

Pittsburgh, Dec. 12.—Eyes West on the Rose Bowl, the Panthers of Pitt began hard work on a gridiron covered with snow slush today as Jock Sutherland returned from Baltimore to develop a plan of strategy to be hurled against the Trojans of Southern California at Pasadena January 2.

Sutherland, the Pitt mentor, who coached the All-North Team in their game Saturday against the All-South, sent the players through a brisk signal drill and finished with a short dummy scrimmage against Southern California plays.

Scouts Bill Kern and Ulhard Hangartner are expected back from the West Wednesday with information on which Sutherland is expected to build his campaign to muzzle the Trojan attack.

Young, Injured Athlete, Is Slightly Improved

The condition of Herbert Young, who was injured in a basket ball game at Central High School Thursday night, was reported to be slightly improved last night at Garfield Hospital, where he was removed following the injury. He is believed to be suffering from a severe concussion of the brain, although the exact nature of his injury has not been determined. It is planned to make X-rays of the injury as soon as his condition will permit it.

He is a member of the United States unlimited team. He is married and resides at 105 Seventh street southeast.

J. C. C. Five Is Ready; Wants Sunday Game

With the last winter's quint intact, the Jewish Community Center cagers are anxious to arrange a game with some crack unlimited team Sunday night at 9 o'clock at their gymnasium. Managers are asked to call Coach Jim McNamara at Decatur 1671.

The Jewish players have been working out for several weeks under the watchful eye of Coach McNamara and are planning an ambitious schedule. Jake Understein and Bennett Hirsch are displaying old-time form at the forward posts, with Milton and Lester Sigmunds performing at center. Lee Levine, Cody Shapiro, Joe Ginsburg and Sid Wallerstein are being used at guard.

WOODLAWN FIVE AHEAD.

Woodlawn courtmen swamped the Monroe A. C. last night, winning by a score of 58 to 30 in a fast game. Farrell, who tallied 20 points, and Green, with 18, led the winning team. For games with Woodlawn, call Cleveland 9170.

92,500 SAW G. W. GRID GAMES

Colonials Led Nation With 300 Per Cent Gain Over 1931.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Football attendance figures gathered by the Associated Press from all over the country indicate that the football fan of 1932 could either take his football game or leave it alone, staying home in his carpet slippers before the radio if the game wasn't promising.

A survey by the Associated Press among representative colleges reveals substantial gains in attendance by 14 out of a total of 40. These ranged from a fractional increase to a high mark of 300 per cent, reported by George Washington University (Washington, D. C.) in playing this season before 92,500 fans in seven home games.

The figures follow too closely the trails blazed by sectional and conference champion or challengers to allow of any other conclusion with Notre Dame playing to 27,000 more than in 1932, Pittsburgh's attendance figures up 53,000, Brown almost doubling its 1931 totals and the University of California at Los Angeles playing to almost 100,000 more cash customers than in 1931.

Good Michigan Team Fails to Draw.

There were a few exceptions, Michigan, despite an all-victorious season, playing to 5,000 less and Missouri, having one of its worst seasons in years, playing before 20 per cent more customers than in 1931, but they only proved the rule.

Among the big losers in attendance were New York University, playing only one less game than in 1931 but to 124,000 fewer persons; Yale, off almost 100,000; Harvard, some 60,000 under 1931; Stanford, down 40,000; Fordham, down 40,000, and Army, 39,000 under 1931.

Southern California, probable undisputed national champions but only an ordinary looking team in early games, fell off 82,000, but played one less game. The Rose Bowl contest with Pittsburgh January 2 probably will bring their season total to approximately the same as in 1931.

Attendance generally was 15 per cent below 1931, when the attendance was off 10 per cent from the previous year.

NEWCOMERS TO WRESTLE THURSDAY

Former V. P. I. Star, Polish Champ on Turner's Card.

WILLIE DAVIS, former Southern Conference wrestling champion, while bedecked with the colors of V. P. I., will be among the several newcomers to the local wrestling wars Thursday night, when Prof. Joe Turner pits him against old Joe Stecher, former champion. Davis was undefeated in college rassling, but his career since than has had the stability of a washing machine paddle.

Another match announced yesterday by Turner reveals a new face in one Jack Wagner, of Providence, R. I., who will meet up with the poet laureate of leering, Tiger Nelson.

New Face Due On Card.

In fact, here's a brand new face listed among the three bouts which already have been announced. He is Joe Naroki, who, unless somebody bigger comes along, claims the championship of Poland, with a cash value of three Confederate dimes. Joe meets Everett Marshall, and would be in a fair way on the brink of losing his title if Ev were Polish. Ev should polish him off in short order, as it is.

Abe Coleman meets Frank Judson in the other preliminary, while the feature this week is being dispensed by Jim McMillan and Joe Cox.

The local rassling trust will suffer a severe clerical loss next Saturday when Jim McGrath, long associated with Promoter Turner as ticket seller, ballyhoo dispenser and radio announcer resigns to become an announcer at Station WMAL.

Capital Ring Officials Organize at Meeting

At a meeting held last night at the Jewish Community Center, the Capital Boxing Officials Association was organized, with Charles Fyfe, local A. A. U. official, acting as temporary chairman, pending the election of officers. Charter members of the association are James McNamara, Jewish Community Center athletic director; Denny Hughes, Charles Reynolds, Knights of Columbus athletic director; Harry Childs, of the Boys Club, and Capt. Heine Miller.

The association's principal object is to obtain uniformity in boxing rules and to regulate amateur boxing in this city. It will also attempt to inaugurate the five-point rule in vogue on the Coast. Under this rule the winner of each round in a bout earns five points. The loser is given a score of one to four points, depending on his work.

A second meeting will be held next week at the Jewish Community Center. Officials desiring to obtain membership are invited to attend.

Nats Guests of Honor At Congressional Club

Joe Cronin, manager of the Washington ball club; Walter Johnson, Tom Flaherty and several members of the baseball team, will be the guests of honor at the stag dinner and entertainment at the Congressional Country Club Thursday night.

Seven boxing matches also will be on the program, which will be preceded by a dinner at 7 o'clock.

Stocks Maintain Advances In Quiet and Firm Market

Neither an effort toward a rally nor its result was particularly impressive, and closing prices were somewhat irregular, but on balance the market showed a small net gain so that last week's upward trend was maintained.

Extreme advances of about a point measured the degree of Wall street's cautious hopefulness. Embryonic pool activity was again apparent in some of the lower-priced shares, especially industrials, yet aggressive support for an upward move was lacking and the market settled back in the late trading. Sales totaled 924,270 shares.

With debt settlement day so near at hand and the cables still humming with late developments, the financial community was obviously willing to proceed along conservative lines. There seemed to be some evidence that traders who are making the present market felt at least mildly cheerful over business prospects, once the winter dullness is hurdled, particularly if Congress should give budget-balancing an expeditious handling.

Rubber shares were fairly responsive to bullish whims, but most of the other motor equipments lagged. U. S. Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage statement proved to have been well discounted as a market factor; both stocks of that company finished a shade higher, although the preferred had an early dip. American Can, General Electric, Westinghouse, Harvester, Case, Cudahy, U. S. Gypsum, Owens Illinois Glass and an assortment of preferreds eased on the day, but there were net gains for Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Sears Roebuck, Bethlehem Steel, Industrial Rayon, Consolidated Gas, National Dairy, Coca Cola, Shattuck, Kroger Grocery and Kennecott. Oils acted somewhat skittish in the face of reports that Mid-Continent crude prices might be cut. Rails were steady to firm. New York City tractions firmed.

Trade news, as is usual on a Monday, was limited. One of the steel trade reviews said structural material buying had taken at least a temporary spurt and that Ford was releasing orders for new models, which took some of the sting from a sag in the operating ratio. One rail mill is expected to reopen later this week.

Foreign copper was down a little, but domestic held at what is regarded as a nominal quotation. Consumers appear to be awaiting repercussions of the conference breakdown and no business has been reported for two or three days.

The enormous oversubscription to the Government financing spoke eloquently of the jam in short-term money markets, a situation which is expected to last for some time to come. The possibility of any immediate change in Reserve system policy is regarded as remote.

Stocks.

Advances were continued as a quiet market firmed. The average gain was three-tenths of a point. Sales climbed slightly to 924,270 shares. Rubber issues were stronger.

Bonds.

Loans of the United States and foreign countries led bonds in an upturn of one-tenth. The turnover of $11,969,000 was the heaviest since September. Nickle Plate gained 8¼ points.

Curb.

Prices advanced as sales volume mounted to 180,000 shares. Utility issues dominated trading. Oils were moderately active.

Wheat.

An upturn in prices was more than wiped out by profit taking. Reported abandonment of winter wheat acreage caused the rally. Corn closed lower; oats a shade higher. December wheat sold at 45⅜ to 45½ cents.

Cotton.

New high ground was reached in early trading, but hedging and scattered realizing trimmed the gains to 4 to 8 points net. March sold at 5.94. December was moderately quiet. Liverpool reported a steady, quiet market.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—With trading quiet on the Stock Exchange, gilt-edged securities improved slightly owing to better sterling exchange. Foreign bonds benefited by developments at Geneva, while transatlantic issues and oil shares were inclined to ease. The market closed dull.

Paris—The bourse was unsettled, issues falling to sustain their early gains. Rentes declined under realizing and rio prices reacted on the weakness in copper in London. Repercussions were limited, however, and the closing was firm.

Berlin—Trading on the boerse was cheerful, owing to the Geneva agreement. The closing was a bit below the best.

GOVERNMENT BONDS LEAD IN ADVANCES

One-Tenth of Point Is Added as Sales Volume Rises to $11,969,000.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The bond market spotlight was today focused on United States Government and foreign issues and some rail specialties.

Due to the sale of two blocks of Treasury 3⅜s of 1941-43, totaling 2,000 bonds, in the final hour of trading and a heavy turnover of some German government and domestic carrier loans, the day's transactions aggregated $11,969,000, par value, the largest since September. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds advanced one-tenth of a point.

Reports that Germany was repatriating some of her external loans by purchases in this country brought an increased demand for both the Reich 5½s and 7s. These advanced a point or more and German corporate maturities also moved up in response to better sentiment regarding Germany's trade and financial position.

French 7½s jumped to another new high for the year, but later eased mildly. Gains of a point or more were recorded by bonds of Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Poland, Norway, Prussia, Free State, Rhine-Westphalia, Sao Paulo, Tokyo Electric Light, United Steel Works and Vienna City. The Australians and Argentines were a trifle heavy.

Most Federal loans were inclined to sag, after starting the day with rising prices. While liberty fourth 4¼s were rather active at a fractional gain, Treasury 3s and 3½s were reactionary, losing 1-32d and 3-32ds of a point, respectively. The heavily traded 3¾s closed unchanged.

Nickel Plate 6 per cent certificates gained 8¾ points, 308 changing hands, following announcement that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had decided to advance 25 per cent cash to the road to aid in refunding the outstanding notes which were defaulted October 1. Other Nickel Plate loans were up a point or more. Additional rail gainers included some liens of Baltimore & Ohio, Alleghany Corporation, Boston & Maine, Canadian Pacific, Central of Georgia, Central Pacific, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Great Northern, M-K-T, Mobile & Ohio and Southern Pacific. At the same time small losses were shown by a number of carrier bonds.

The utilities and industrials were comparatively steady, with few usual gains or losses. Strength was displayed by issues of Mead Corporation, National Dairy Products, St. Joseph Lead, U. S. Rubber and Western Union.

Plans Made to Develop Oil Fields in Eastern Venezuela

Special to The Washington Post.

Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 12.—It may be said that the mineral wealth of Venezuela still remains undeveloped, although for some time gold mining has been going on in the Guayana and other sections, the coal mines of Coro and Barcelona have been worked for many years and the vast petroleum fields of the west have been actively exploited. Preparations are now being made to open up oil fields in the east of the country.

What remains, however, is vastly greater than anything so far touched. In Guayana gold is abundant both in alluvial and deep mining; there is large store of coal in Coro, Barcelona, Guarico and elsewhere; El Tocuyo has a wealth of tin; in Yaracuy we have both copper and gold; iron exists at Imataca and other points, and there is a supply of practically all metals used in the arts and industry.

Modern methods will do much to bring this great wealth to market at low costs. There is also another factor of importance, namely, hydro-electric power, of which no less than 3,000,000 horsepower are available. This will effectively solve the problem of labor.

No more attractive opportunity is offered today, for the domestic or foreign capitalist, than the mines of Venezuela. The field is practically virgin, there are fine highways, ships of all nations come to our ports and there is a complete telegraphic and telephonic system. Venezuela is easily accessible from both Europe and the United States, the mining legislation is fair and liberal recognition is given to all factors which stimulate and favor the progress of mineral exploitation, with simple regulations for acquiring rights in the matter.

Insull Properties Fight Separation

Eastern Division Making Efforts to Unite on Reorganization.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Fresh efforts were launched today to hold the Eastern properties of the Insull utility system together.

E. L. Williams, trustee in bankruptcy for the National Electric Power Corporation, and the National Public Service Corporation, conferred with bank creditors in an attempt to work out a reorganization plan for the two holding companies which would enlist the support of all creditors. Quick action was made necessary, if reorganization were to be effected in view of the announced intention of the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. to auction securities held by it as collateral for a loan of $5,780,917 to the National Public Service Corporation, which is now in default.

Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch, receivers for the Middle West Utilities Co., have sought to prevent dissolution of the Eastern part of the Insull chain. Dismemberment of the national system, it was pointed out, would wipe out any equity Middle West Utilities might have left of its original investment of $40,000,000 in the Eastern properties.

Second, a pool between the two German lines and the United States Lines regarding service to New York.

Third, a pool of German lines and the Yankee Line to Boston and Philadelphia.

Fourth, all lines servicing out of German ports and companies servicing out of Rotterdam and Antwerp to New York and other ports.

CURB CLIMBS HIGHER IN HEAVIER TRADING

Utility Issues Hold Lead as Trading Volume Rises to 180,000 Shares.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The Curb Market moved moderately higher today with transfers approximating 180,000 shares, against 150,000 last Friday.

The utilities were fairly well bought, although Electric Bond & Share dipped a minor fraction and United Light & Power A was off moderately.

A flurry of buying developed in American Suprespower first preferred, following announcement of that company's proposal to accept one share of that stock in exchange for two shares of United Corporation $3 preference stock. The stock moved up 3½ points to 65½, where it was about on a line with terms of exchange.

Niagara Hudson Power, American Gas & Electric and American Superpower common were firm. Cities Service was steady.

Roan Antelope dipped more than a point in quiet trading. Inability of the recent copper conference to agree on production curtailment caused by some speculation over possibility of fresh overproduction in the South African field. Newmont was steady.

The oils were moderately active, the three Standards holding at Saturday's closing levels, Gulf gaining fractionally and Humble moving up more than a point.

Ford of Canada A, Swift International and Aluminum Co. lost small fractions. Deere & Co. extended its recent gain by a small fraction. United Shoe Machinery gained 2 in small dealings.

Steel Leaders Continue To Sustain Wage Scale

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Dow, Jones & Co. said today that leaders in the steel industry who have been responsible for preventing another cut in salaries and wages in recent months, "are planning to continue their efforts to maintain present scales until it becomes evident that there is not to be a spring rise in business in proportion to their current expectations."

"They are more confident than in some time," said the agency, "that there will be improvement in the steel industry during the spring months. First signs of such betterment should be in evidence by the end of next month. Whether this increase in demand will be sufficient to maintain the current wage rates can not be forecast definitely at present, but the leaders are hopeful."

WHEAT GAINS LOST ON PROFIT-TAKINGS

Chicago, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Wheat scored late upturns in price today, but quick seizing of profits at the last more than wiped out the advance.

Assertions that heavy abandonment of domestic winter wheat acreage probably did much to stimulate the price rallies. One trade authority said wheat in the Southwest had already been so damaged both by lack of protection from cold and by drought that even with favorable conditions hereafter the indications were for a crop of only 400,000,000 bushels, about the same as the total in 1912, the lowest on record.

Wheat closed unsettled, ½ to ⅝ under Saturday's finish; corn, ⅛ to ⅜ off; oats, unchanged to ⅛ higher, and provisions varying from 7 cents decline to a rise of 5 cents.

Supply Is Decreased.

A liberal decrease of 2,500,000 bushels shown today in the United States wheat visible supply counted as a transient bullish factor, and so too did the fact that today's receipts at primary points were but 600,000 bushels, hardly half as much as either a week or a year ago. The principal stimulating influence, however, was the unpromising outlook for winter wheat Southwest, where subzero temperatures and only meager snowfalls appeared to be the rule. Numerous Chicago traders professed belief that with continued cold and with lack of any adequate snow blanket, the groundwork was being laid for a big crop scare next spring unless there was a decided change of conditions.

In some quarters, however, it was contended that Saturday's advance of wheat values had largely discounted for the present the crop damage from cold and drought. Another handicap to wheat bulls was the fact that today's Liverpool quotations were lower than expected. Enlargement of the amount of wheat on ocean passage, with the total 40,852,000 bushels against 29,736,000 a year ago, was likewise of some effect as a weight on the market.

Corn and oats were relatively firm owing to wintry weather that increased live stock feeding and tended to restrict rural shipments of corn.

Provisions were irregular, governed mostly by changes in hog values.

COTTON UPTURN CUT IN REALIZING DRIVES

March Closes at 5.94 as General Market Nets 4 to 8 Points.

March contracts which had advanced to 6.03, or 16 points above Saturday's finals and 50 points above the low price of last Thursday, closed at 5.94 with the general market closing steady at net advances of 4 to 8 points.

The opening was 5 to 11 points higher in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables and reports of unfavorable weather for the movement in the South.

The market worked up to 5.91 for January and 6.13 for May during the afternoon, or about 15 to 16 points net higher on the more active positions. Steadiness in the stock market and reports of a steadier market for cotton goods were probably contributing factors on the advance, but the demand tapered off somewhat later with January closing at 5.79 and May at 6.04.

December Is Quiet.

December was relatively quiet and responded slowly to fluctuations in other months, as the interest in that position has evidently been reduced to small proportions.

According to the New York Cotton Exchange Service, domestic consumption of cotton of all growths in this country for November amounted to 516,000 bales, against 503,000 for October and 426,000 for November last year. There were reports of a fair volume of business in the local goods market toward the end of last year, with a steadier ruling of prices.

Wire from Texas said that bad weather was interfering with the movement and that there was a fair European demand. Liverpool cables reported a quiet, steady market there.

Liverpool imports today were said to include 17,640 bales of Russian cotton. Exports today, 27,691, making 3,578,987 so far this season; port receipts, 44,544; U. S. port stocks, 4,840,543.

Foreign Moneys Steady To Firm in Quiet Sales

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Foreign exchanges were steady to firm in an orderly market today. The French franc dipped 1-16 point to a new 1932 low of 3.90¼ cents for Paris cables at the opening, but later recovered. It closed for a net gain of 1-16 point. Sterling cables were up ⅛ point. Italian lire, Belgian belgas, and Swiss francs were steady. German and Dutch currencies gained slightly.

Reports were current in Wall street that both British and French balances were on hand here in sufficient amounts to meet those countries' December 15 debt installments to the United States Government.

Visible Supply of Grain.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes in bushels: Wheat decreased 2,590,000; corn increased 1,529,000; oats decreased 544,000; rye decreased 214,000; barley increased 126,000.

GOODS MARKETS.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—Narrow sheetings sold in fair volume today and some improvement in demand was noted on Rayon crepes. Bleached sheetings were reduced. Burlap was quiet and unchanged. Wool goods are selling in moderate lots for early spring. Rayon trading was quiet.

SECURITIES REGAIN STRONGER DEMAND

Upturn in Sterling Aids General Market as Debt Issue Wanes.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—The security markets took on a more rugged complexion this week—in fact, gave the best account of themselves since the postelection rally a month ago.

Markets were generally quiet, but after three weeks of steady, gradual declines, both stocks and bonds were able to regain a portion of their losses, almost half, in the case of stocks. The bond market steadied, but failed to make marked progress, although United States Government issues, some of the foreigns and the best grade domestic utilities attracted considerable buying.

The renewed strength of sterling exchange appeared to have a beneficial effect upon the markets generally. The decline in the pound had progressed more or less simultaneously during the preceding three weeks, starting with the reopening of the war debt controversy almost directly after election. The British currency recovered about 7 cents during the week. Starting on Tuesday, cotton rallied around $2 a bale, and, during the same period, wheat firmed more than a cent a bushel.

Wall street concluded that sterling exchange had fully discounted the war debt problem, and that shorts in the pound were covering. Signs of official support were lacking, seasonal pressure against sterling usually lifts toward the end of the year.

The performance of the French franc was, if anything, more interesting than that of the pound sterling. It sagged to the lowest since post-war stabilization, and to a level making gold shipments from Paris to New York theoretically profitable. No important movement started, however, and it was felt in some international banking quarters that an effort may be made in Paris to support the franc above a level which would result in any heavy gold loss in the near future. French gold holdings have gained sharply, largely at the expense of the United States, during the past year, and, in view of the large French deficit, taxation already heavy, and trade adversely affected by the British tariff, an eventual outflow is expected in several quarters.

$905,985 IS EARNED BY CUDAHY COMPANY

Loss Laid to Shrinkage in Inventory Prices; Sales Tonnage Holds Up.

Chicago, Dec. 11 (A.P.).—Edward A. Cudahy, chairman of the board of the Cudahy Packing Co., in annual report to stockholders today said that net profit for the fiscal year ended October 30 amounted to $905,985, compared with $2,009,991 the previous fiscal year. Falling off of earnings, he said, was due to declining inventory prices.

The total tonnage of sales handled this year was within a fraction of 1 per cent of last year's, the report said. The company, he said, was in excellent shape financially.

New York, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—American Car & Foundry Co. and subsidiaries had net loss of $985,365 in the six months ended October 31, against losses of $982,349 in the same 1931 period.

CONGRESS LIBRARY WORLD'S LARGEST

4,477,431 Books Repose on 84 Miles of Shelves; Leningrad Second.

The Library of Congress is now the largest repository of books in the world, the report of Librarian Herbert Putnam, issued yesterday, shows. There are now 4,477,431 books on its shelves, exclusive of millions of maps, manuscrips, musical compositions and engravings.

During the past year the incoming books and pamphlets reached the total of 185,143. Every 24 hours during the past year 505 books were added to the collections. The annual increment to the collections required 8½ miles of shelving to place them.

In the past six years, the report shows, the library has added 1,057,086 volumes. The present rate of growth is over 1,000,000 volumes every six years. All books in the library now require 84 miles of shelving.

The only rival of the Library of Congress is the Public Library in Leningrad, which has about 4,832,948 books, pamphlets, &c., and if the Library of Congress possessions were counted in that inclusive way a grand total of 7,350,982 books, pamphlets, &c., would be disclosed.

Among the valuable accessions to the library in the past year are original manuscripts and documents of Andrew Jackson, Gen. Jubal A. Early, Admiral David D. Porter and Marlton Marble.

Billings Asks 90 Days To See Elderly Mother

Folsom Prison, Calif., Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Warren K. Billings, serving a life sentence in Folsom Prison for the 1916 San Francisco preparedness day parade bombing, denied today that he would seek an ordinary parole, but said he would like a 90-day release upon condition that he return voluntarily to the penitentiary after he had visited his aged mother in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Billings was convicted with Thomas J. Mooney, San Quentin prisoner, of planting the bomb which killed 10 persons and injured 40 others during the 1916 parade. When told what Billings suggested the governor, James Rolph, jr., said he would discuss the matter with the parole board. He was noncommital concerning his reaction to the suggestion.

Boy Is Awarded $2,000 After Cab Downs Wire

William H. Howard, 19, of 34 Sherman circle yesterday was given a verdict of $2,000 against the City Cab Co. because of an unusual accident, November 30, 1930, on Woodley road. At that time, a City Cab ran into an electric light pole and knocked a live wire to the ground.

Running from his home, which then was on Woodley road, Howard stepped on the live wire and badly burned his foot. Through Attorney Alvin Newmyer he claimed the injury was caused by the negligence of the cab driver in hitting the pole. The trial was held in the court of Justice Joseph W. Cox, in District Supreme Court.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

FORREST T. STAUFFER, golf professional at the Barton Hills course, Ann Arbor, Mich., sank his first hole-in-one on the 145-yard No. 5 hole at 10 o'clock on the morning of September 13, 1930. A year later, to the day and hour, and using the same club, a spade mashie, he aced the same hole. Both shots were made on the fly, as neither ball touched the fairway or the green on its flight from the tee to the cup. The green is about 4 feet higher than the tee and is entirely surrounded by sand traps.

William Penn, the great apostle of peace, would be about the last man on earth one would expect to find sitting in full armor for a portrait, but, strange as it seems, his only authentic portrait shows him thus attired.

Penn was a dashing young cavalier when he posed for the portrait. When he became a Quaker he refused to sit for a painting.

Six pieces of carved mahogany, cut so that when forced together they form a tight-fitting box, make the mystery box owned by Miss Vera Parker, of Toronto, Ontario. The strange box, which is held in place without any kind of nail, fastener or glue, was made by Miss Parker's grandfather. There is no way of opening it without destroying it.

H. I. PHILLIPS

THE KEY TO HEALTH.

("The speaker told the Association of Life Insurance Presidents that three years of depression had improved the health of America."—News item.)

* * * *

I.

The sheriff has my house and lot
My auto has been seized;
The bankers have me on the spot,
By creditors I'm squeezed.
My savings have been swept away,
My poverty is real;
They came and took my shirt today—
It's great how fine I feel!

II.

For three long years I've been aground
And high upon the rocks;
The pavements daily do I pound—
I've walked right through my socks!
I haven't anything to eat
And not a thing to drink;
Each day some hardship new I meet—
But am I in the pink!

III.

My wife is taking washing in,
My kids are hollow-eyed;
I haven't seen a double chin
Since the bull market died.
I haven't had a dime in weeks—
Some apples I must sell;
Quite white and sunken are my cheeks
Because I'm feeling swell!

IV.

The little shop I used to run
Was closed long, long ago;
The poorhouse now I barely shun—
'Twill get me soon, I know.
I'm sleeping in the public park
Beneath the old bandstand;
It's things like that, I oft remark,
That keep my health so grand!

V.

I can not find a thing to do—
There are no jobs, I guess;
I'm feeling sunk and weak and blue,
And great is my distress;
I've never known such trying days—
Boy, how I toil and scrape!
But while the big depression stays
I'll be in perfect shape!

L'envoi.

Away with talk of better times—
Withhold prosperity!
Oh, muffle all the bells and chimes
Proclaiming solvency!
With good old days I now am through,
I want no more of wealth;
Away with cash, and comfort, too—
They might affect my health.

THE BREAD LINE FOR THE DOCTORS.

If three years of depression have been good for the health of the country, as the Association of Life Insurance Presidents is told, two years more and you'll never know us!

* * * *

The speaker is mistaken. We're not feeling any healthier; we're just too nervous to stay in bed.

Navy Worker's Death Is Ruled as Accident

Coroner Joseph D. Rogers yesterday issued a certificate of accidental death in the case of Charles W. See, 58-year-old navy yard worker, of 911 Seventh street southeast, who was found dead on the pavement adjoining his home yesterday morning.

See, a boarder at the Seventh street address, is believed to have stepped onto the porch adjoining his room for some fresh air, and to have accidentally fallen over the rail some time during the night. When found, physicians said he had been dead for about four hours. He died from a fractured skull.

Park System Topic At Peabody School

Stanton Association and P.-T. A. Body Hold Joint Meeting.

Glimpses at the future appearance of Washington, with contemplated systems of parks, were shown last night before a joint meeting of the Stanton Park Citizens Association and the Peabody-Carbery-Hilton Parent-Teacher Association, at Peabody School last night.

Two movie reels showing maps and views of sections that will be improved with recreational centers and parks were presented. John Melpole, Board of Associated Charities, spoke on playground provisions.

Miss Gertrude Young, principal of the school, said that the immediate problems confronting organizations in the locality were free milk for school children, traffic around parks and playgrounds and baskets for the needy for Christmas.

Baffled Girl

White House Is Landmark to Board Street Car for Legation.

To most visitors, the White House represents the abode of Presidents, but to a bewildered German girl who was riding in a taxicab early yesterday, the Executive Mansion is just a landmark by which she can board a street car for home.

Apparently unable to understand his passenger, a taxi driver approached park policemen stationed at the White House and said that the young lady occupying his cab wanted to go to the mansion.

In her native tongue, the passenger produced a passport and an address. Communicating with Leonard A. H. Peters, agricultural attache of the Netherlands Legation, whose address was given, police found that the girl worked for him, and sent her home. Mr. Peters said the girl, whose name is Hilda Knopf, explained that she wanted to get to the White House, for from there she knew which street car to take for home.

SECOND BONUS ARMY IS ARRIVING TO MAKE APPEALS TOMORROW

Arriving hourly from the far West, East and North, more than 2,500 former service men, members of the so-called veterans "rank and file," are expected to be in Washington by sundown tonight, for a scheduled appearance at demonstrations before the Capitol and White House tomorrow afternoon.

A prediction of "surprising developments" came with this announcement last night from officials of the "central rank and file committee." Claiming subsequent strength of nearly 3,000 men, the committee declared final arrangements for presentation of their demands will be made tonight at a mass meeting in Typographical Hall, 423 G street northwest.

Are Stopped at Line.

Groups of arriving veterans last night were stopped by police at the District line, and after questioning, were escorted to billets at 905 I street northwest. It was claimed that more than 500 veterans are already here.

Officials of the "rank and file" met their first setback in preparations last night. They were refused the use of Typographical Hall. Following a hurried conference the veterans declared the building was obtained through efforts of Linn Gale, of the Washington Open Forum, Mr. Gale, however, could not be reached for a statement.

Group From New York.

A group of 30 veterans arrived shortly before dark last night from New York City. Other new arrivals listed men from Oregon, Washington, Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

Police apparently are convinced the "second bonus march" will in no way resemble proportions of the first B. E. F. invasion. No unusual preparations are being made to handle the bonus seekers.

Senate Resolution Asks Probe of B. E. F. Eviction

Open hearings before a Senate committee on the Army's evacuation of bonus marchers from Washington last summer were asked yesterday in a resolution introduced by Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee.

Investigation would be by a committee of five senators appointed by Vice President Curtis. The resolution seeks to establish responsibility for the movement of troops into sections of the city occupied by veterans here in quest of bonus payment.

Senator McKellar said he wanted to know if the bonus marchers were in Washington legally, if they were orderly and peaceful, if they were armed, and who called the troops out to oust them. The committee would be given $5,000 for expenses.

Wife of Hundred Returned to D. C.

Believed to Provide Only Hope of Recovering $18,000 in Loot.

Admitting that their only hope of obtaining the more than $18,000 worth of loot alleged to have been taken by Kenneth M. Hundred, alias Kroneck, in a series of recent housebreakings here, lay in what information could be obtained from his wife, police last night bent every effort in the questioning of Mrs. Frances Hodge Hundred. Mrs. Hundred was returned here from Baltimore late yesterday by Heaquarters Detectives Tom Sullivan and A. M. Tolson, after charges of receiving stolen goods there had been dropped.

Kenneth Hundred, according to the detectives, is still being held in Baltimore facing charges of seven or eight housebreakings there, and little hope for his return to Washington is held out by police here. He was removed to Baltimore last Thursday when police there obtained Gov. Roosevelt's signature on extradition papers.

The removal to Baltimore, it was pointed out, brought to naught a police plan of "borrowing" the man to point out the hiding places of the stolen goods. It is impossible Hundred has explained, to indicate these locations by any method other than going there in person.

Maj. C. A. Brode was elected by the Hillcrest Association last night as a representative to the Federation of Citizens Associations. Meeting in the East Washington Heights Baptist Church, the organization also elected new committee chairmen.

RENT INVESTIGATOR TO REPORT TODAY

Brinkman Testimony Before Senate Probers Likely to Be Sensational.

Oscar H. Brinkman, rent investigator for the Senate District committee, at 10:30 a. m. today will lay before the subcommittee probing District rentals, findings resulting from a five-month study of the rent situation here.

The statement made just three days before the deadline set by the Senate for the District committee to report the result of its investigation, will be heard by Chairman Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas; Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, and Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah.

Sensational testimony is expected, in the light of Brinkman's declaration at the outset of the inquiry that he had in one sealed envelope evidence tending to prove a rent-fixing combination in Washington.

Brinkman later was challenged by prominent local realtors to open the envelope and produce the testimony. He declined to do so, however, declaring that "the time has not come." Later he threatened that there might be some prosecutions in the courts as a result of the inquiry.

Local realtors consistently have denied there is any combine here, or organized blacklisting of tenants who break their leases.

Mrs. Marcum's Divorce Set Aside Upon Appeal

Holding that Mrs. Maria S. Marcum was not a legal resident of the District of Columbia, the District Court of Appeals yesterday set aside a decree for a limited divorce which she obtained in District Supreme Court from Philip H. Marcum, special assistant to the Attorney General.

Mrs. Marcum originally filed suit for maintenance only, and while that was being heard in Supreme Court her bill was amended to include also a limited divorce request. She was awarded $135 a month maintenance and was given the limited divorce. The decree entered yesterday permits the maintenance to remain, but sets aside the limited divorce. Attorneys Dwight E. Rorer and Cyril S. Lawrence appeared for Mrs. Marcum. Her husband was represented by Richard L. Merrick.

Trolley Merger Urged by Citizens

Group in Brookland Also Favors Continued Cut Fares for Pupils.

Resolutions approving the merger of Washington street car and bus lines, the continuance of reduced fares for school children, and asking for better service on the Brookland and Rhode Island avenue cars were adopted last night by the Brookland Citizens Association.

A special committee was appointed to investigate and seek a solution of the railroad smoke nuisance which was declared particularly bad in the Brookland district. The association favored more stringent enforcement of the smoke nuisance laws in the District.

The association disapproved further pay cuts in any manner or curtailment of leave for District and Federal employes.

POLICE DROP PROBE OF SHOOTING RIDDLE

William Kappel, Gun Victim, Not Seriously Hurt by Mystery Wound.

Homicide squad detectives last night dropped their investigation into the strange shooting of William Kappel, 31, of 209 P street northwest, early yesterday morning, when it became evident that his injuries were not of a serious nature.

Kappel was found wounded in the groin by an Emergency Hospital physician, who was summoned to 523½ Eleventh street northwest by telephone. He was removed to the hospital, where his injuries were at first believed to be serious.

Two young women at the apartment were questioned and released by police. They were Florence Mary Cabello, 23, and Mildred Hammond, 31.

Police had not been able to determine just how Kappel was shot. He at first said that he did not know himself, and later insisted he did it, police said.

Detective Sergt. H. G. Wannamaker, who investigated the case, said that neither of the young women could tell him how Kappel was shot.

According to Capt. William E. Holmes, of the First Precinct, Kappel and the women had gone to the apartment after attending the dance marathon at the Auditorium. The shooting occurred shortly afterward.

Dental Society Meets Tonight at G. W. U.

Dr. Irving R. Hardy, of New York, authority on dental subjects, will be the essayist at tonight's meeting of the District of Columbia Dental Society at George Washington University. His subject will be, "Aids to Esthetic in Denture Construction."

Dr. Harold W. Krogh, chairman of the clinic committee, has been requested by the Virginia State Dental Society to furnish clinicians for the meeting of that society in Richmond in April and is making a list of available men.

Rum Is Seized in Raid As Auto Makes Delivery

In a raid at 59 Seaton place northwest, as an alleged rum car was making a delivery, Headquarters Detectives J. E. Becket and G. C. Deyoe yesterday afternoon seized 75 gallons of alleged alcohol.

James T. Cole, 25, and Raymond Powdler, 24, were arrested and booked on charges of illegal transportation, illegal possession and violation of the prohibition law.

Car Robbed of $1,000 In Clothing and Gems

Clothing and jewelry valued at $1,000 was reported stolen Sunday night from the car of Milton Brancberg, of New York, parked in front of the Winston Hotel, on First street northwest. Branchberg told police the door of the car was jimmied.

The loot included fourteen dresses, eight suits and several overcoats.

Silk hosiery said to be worth $100 was stolen from the Faultless Hosiery Shop at 713 I street northwest, Sunday night. It was reported that a rear window was broken open.

Charles Ailes Elected Head of Legion Post

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

Don't try and beat the traffic lights.

The motorist who tries to beat the red light just before it flashes on or off is not only endangering his own life but the lives of others as well.

All the lights are timed to a certain speed, so the motorist who hopes to "get there" quicker by beating the lights can not hope to make any better time because he will just be stopped at the next corner. Fines and a possible jail sentence face these violators.

The past week-end has materially increased the number of accidents. The figures are:

	1931	1932
Deaths	72	115
Injuries	3,330	3,593
Accidents	7,665	7,330

"Be Careful!"

CAPITAL POOR FACE DESTITUTION UNLESS SAVED BY CONGRESS

District Relief Cut Forced to Make Available Cash Last Until Jan. 15.

Unless Congress enacts District unemployment relief legislation, with money immediately available, before its Christmas recess, some 6,000 families now being cared for in an admitted inadequate fashion will suffer further privations.

This was revealed yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the special committee on emergency relief of the public welfare board. Leroy A. Halbert, director, was instructed to spread the already scant fund over an additional two weeks, until the middle of January, because of the uncertainty as to when a further appropriation will be available.

"We are already operating at a less-than-bare-living scale," said Mr. Halbert, "and I hardly see how we can cut the amount of relief any more, especially with the mounting applications and the severe weather we are likely to experience during the next six weeks."

With but $154,000 remaining, including the Community Chest's donation of $100,000, the emergency relief organization will have to make this money last until January 15 unless Congress acts quickly, according to Mr. Halbert. After administration expenses are deducted, there will remain only $22,000 to $24,000 a week for relief.

For the last few weeks the organization has been expending on an average of $25,000 a week for relief alone, and at times this has risen to $28,000. Additional relief applications average 50 a day.

At present 5,047 cases, practically all of them families, are being cared for and 334 applications remain to be investigated.

The Board of Public Welfare recommended about ten days ago that $1,500,000 be asked of Congress for the calendar year 1933, half under the urgency deficiency bill and half in the 1934 District budget.

Hope for Early Action.

The Commissioners sent their estimate to the Budget Bureau, where the matter now rests. District officials hope that the request will reach Congress this week.

The Council of Social Agencies yesterday was advised to be prepared with concrete facts and figures regarding the local unemployment situation before seeking relief funds from Congress.

This warning was given by Edward P. Reidy, director of public aid of Providence, R. I., who spoke of "What Depression Means in Terms of Relief," at the council's meeting at the Y. W. C. A.

Lewis Merriam, of the council, submitted a report on 33 cities for the first six months of 1932, showing that the average per capita spent for relief has been $4.25, while Washington has spent $1.34 per capita.

Furniture Sale Appeal Dismissed

Two Men and Storage Firm Took Court Step After Woman's Suit.

The District Court of Appeals yesterday dismissed an appeal brought by the Fidelity Storage Co., David B. Karrick and Harry S. Plager because the issues from which they were appealing have not yet been entirely decided in District Supreme Court, where the original suit was brought.

In the lower court Mrs. Mary A. Jaques brought suit against the storage company, Karrick and Plager, who charged that furniture belonging to her had been sold to satisfy a mortgage without due notice to her, and without a due notice of sale, and that the disposition of her property was conducted in such a manner as to constitute fraud.

The court entered a decree declaring the sale null and void and referred the matter to the court auditor to determine the liability of each of the defendants. The appellate court, in dismissing the appeal yesterday, said the decree as it now stands is not one upon which execution could issue, and the whole case stands in "status quo awaiting the report of the auditor and the final decree of the court based upon that report."

ANALOSTAN ISLAND, NAMED ROOSEVELT, ACCEPTED BY U. S.

President Praises "T. R." as Widow Asserts Gift Is Dream Come True.

A wooded island in the upper Potomac River yesterday became a lasting memorial to a great President of the United States.

With impressive ceremonies in the historic east room of the White House, President Hoover, in behalf of the Nation, accepted Analostan Island as a permanent shrine to the memory of Theodore Roosevelt.

In the presence of a small but distinguished group, the President directed that the island, located in the Potomac between Key and Lincoln Memorial bridges, "shall hereafter be known as Theodore Roosevelt Island and dedicated to the Nation."

"T. R." Tramped Region.

The island forms a gateway to territory along the river, which was long the scene of President Roosevelt's favorite tramping expeditions. Its impression of wild, primitive country, forms an appropriate setting as a memorial to the famous "rough rider."

The late President's widow although not present at the exercises had termed the site as "a dream come true." Included in the distinguished gathering seated in a semicircle beneath the east room's huge crystal chandeliers, were Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of "T. R.;" Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Gen. John J. Pershing and members of the Roosevelt Memorial Association.

Hoover's Speech.

In his acceptance speech President Hoover said:

"The fame of President Theodore Roosevelt has grown in luster and stature as the years have passed. Time constantly brings his essential greatness into clearer and clearer outline. His accomplishments will bulk large in the pages of history but equally he will be remembered for his personality and his character. His was a virile energy an abundant optimism and courage, a greatness of vision and a faith in his country's future which knew no boundaries of limiting doubts. These qualities inherent within him and his strength were unconsciously developed in communion with nature. He lived much in the open; he loved the mountains, the woods, the streams and the sea. From them he gained a spaciousness of outlook which permanently endears him to his countrymen.

Shrine Well Chosen.

"There is thus an especial appropriateness in this memorial which you are giving to the Nation. This wooded island, set in the midst of the Potomac, is forever within view of the Lincoln Memorial, the Washington Monument, the Capitol and the White House. You have wisely chosen a bit of nature within the boundaries of the city which he loved and where he rendered such noble service. As years go by, the Nation will add to its usefulness and its appropriateness as a memorial to so great a President.

"In the name of the people of the United States and on behalf of the Federal Government, I accept this gift and tender to you and to the thousands of citizens whose generosity made it possible, their warmest commendation and grateful thanks. In consummation of these purposes I direct that Analostan Island shall hereafter be known as Theodore Roosevelt Island and dedicated to the Nation."

Flooding of Reservoir For Ice Skating Urged

The Piney Branch Citizens Association last night decided to request formally the flooding of the Sixteenth Street Reservoir for winter skating.

The association also informally discussed the hunger marchers and other such proposed demonstrations this winter. Although no formal action was taken, the consensus was against all such marches.

Kalorama Would Join District School Body

The Kalorama Citizens Association last night voted to join the District Public School Association.

Two films were shown, one showing the development of Washington, with an explanatory accompaniment by Charles W. Eliot 2d, director of planning for the National Park and Planning Commission.

MARCHERS ASSAILED AS SEDITIOUS GROUP

Northeast Citizens Praise Policemen in Handling Hunger Invaders.

Stating that the recent "hunger marchers" were, in their opinion, a seditious group, members of the Northeast Citizens Association last night proposed an amendment restricting them from future entrance to the city.

Given advice on the constitutional rights of petitioners, however, the association, meeting at the Ludlow School, adopted a resolution to be sent to the District Commissioners which stated that the group was opposed to any demonstration or parade with legislative proposals as their objective.

The organization commended the police and fire departments for their handling of the city during the stay of the marchers, and stated that the burden placed on the city by organized intruders was unfair. The right of petition, it was stated, could have been granted to a small delegation.

Capt. Richard Mansfield, in command of the Ninth Precinct, addressed the meeting, urging the necessity of cooperation between citizens and police.

New members voted into the association are Capt. Mansfield, Dr. W. E. H. Krechting, Mrs. Walter F. Smith and L. C. Stoddard. Evan H. Tucker, president of the group, presided.

Woman Injured as 2 Autos Collide on Road

Mrs. Bertha I. Malvin, 4514 Alabama avenue southeast, suffered scalp lacerations and possible rib fractures yesterday afternoon when the car of her husband, J. W. Malvin, collided with the car of Patrick D. Murphy, 1013 I street northeast, in front of 3905 Reservoir road.

She was treated at Georgetown Hospital.

Free Transfers on Two Traction Firms Ordered

Both the Capital Traction Co. and the Washington Railway & Electric Co. were ordered to issue free transfers on intercompany transfers yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission. The transfers, of course, are to be issued only when there is no looping.

The commission also authorized the Potomac Electric Power Co. to sell $171,000 worth of an issue of gold bonds authorized in 1929.

CAPPER SEES LITTLE CHANCE OF TRACTION MERGER AT PRESENT

Citizens Committee Warned Concessions Necessary by Trolley Lines.

The citizens' joint transportation committee, seeking immediate merger of Washington's traction companies, was advised yesterday by Chairman Arthur Capper, of the Senate District committee, that there is little likelihood of early consolidation unless the street railway companies make important concessions.

Meanwhile, Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican), Vermont, in charge of the Senate District committee's majority report in favor of a merger, conferred with Assistant Senate Floor Leader Charles L. McNary in an effort to get right-of-way for the bill in the Senate.

Conditions Called Chaotic.

The Citizens' Joint Transportation Committee called at the Capitol to present Senator Capper with a copy of their resolution, seeking an end to alleged "chaotic" transportation conditions here. Dealing with the transportation problem as a whole, the resolution not only asked an immediate traction merger, but regulation of taxicab operation by the Public Utilities Commission.

Senator Capper told the group it displayed "the first organized movement on the part of Washington citizens designed to hasten the merger and bring about a better plan of mass transportation."

"Army of Lobbyists."

He said that heretofore only a few public-spirited citizens have evinced interest, against an "army of lobbyists."

Senator Capper and Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, submitted a minority report last session opposing the merger bill unless the Public Utilities Commission were given complete power control and universal transfers granted by the companies.

Milkman Fixing Truck Seriously Hurt by Car

Clayton Birmingham, 26, of 321 Fourteenth street northeast, a milkman, was struck and seriously injured on the Baltimore Boulevard near Laurel early yesterday by the car of Joseph Osborne, of 127 Maryland avenue northeast. Birmingham is said to have been tinkering with his truck, which had broken down, when the car knocked him to the pavement.

He was brought to Emergency Hospital, where it was found he had suffered a fracture of both legs and bruises.
